Biggest Shopping Crowd in History Packs Atlanta's Stores and Streets

Trade Exceeds All Records for Annual Event

Buyers Arrive Early, Wait for Business To Open.

Atlanta and Georgia went on a spending spree yesterday.

The biggest, most enthusiastic shopping crowd ever to pack the business section on any one day in the city's history sent The Constitution-sponsored after-Thanksgiving carnival of bargains soaring to new records.

Merchants who co-operated in the great sale estimated that business this year would far exceed that done on the same day last year. In three years, they declared, the day had developed into a merchandising mammoth more than doubling in volume of trade the business done prior to 1937, when The Constitution first inaugurated the after-Thanksgiving sale. "It presages," said one official, "the biggest Christmas season ever experienced here."

Transportation Heavy

Other agencies not connected with merchandising bore out the statement of the merchants. Georgia Power Company officials reported that between 9 o'clock and 10 o'clock, when transportation was free to shoppers they hauled an estimated 18,000 persons. The average load at this hour is 8,000. Thirty extra buses and street cars were called into service.

Suburban Coach Company, which brought shoppers to town free from 9 to 12, reported that they had to increase their service by 60 per cent to take care of the load, and the Black and White and Yellow Cab company, which carried shoppers to town and back for the price of one fare, reported rushing business.

The crowd came early. Long before 9 o'clock parking lots in the business section were filled with out-of-town cars as people from throughout this section, most of them with the hour's advantage of eastern time, came in early.

Waited for Opening

Throngs stood before store doors at opening time, and the day got away with a rush of buying from the start. As free buses and trolleys began to deposit their thousands, the rush continued throughout the morning.

Most people seemed to stay downtown all day. Restaurants began to fill shortly after 11 o'clock, and at the S. & W., Woodings and the Holsum Cafeteria, who gave free meals to many shoppers, every seat was taken from then until mid-afternoon. Other restaurants did an equally flourishing business.

Traffic was heavy, but was expected.

BARGAIN BUYERS—This scene was typical of nearly every Atlanta store yesterday as thousands, not only from Atlanta but from throughout this section, thronged the business section for the mammoth Constitution-sponsored, after-Thanksgiving sale. Merchants called it "the biggest, most enthusiastic shopping crowd in Atlanta's history," and predicted the best Christmas season the town has ever experienced.

Bank Statistics, Sales Indicate Business Gains

Department Stores' Selling Increases 24 Per Cent Over '39.

Booming fall business in the Atlanta area was reflected in department store sales and bank clearing statistics released yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Sales in Atlanta for the week ending last Saturday gained 24 per cent over the same week last year, while district sales were up 23 per cent, the bank reported. Comparing the four weeks ending the same date with the same four weeks of 1939, Atlanta sales showed an 11 per cent gain while district sales rose 10 per cent.

Yesterday's bank clearings totaled $18,800,000, a gain of $4,200,000 over the same day last year. Clearings through October totaled $2,748,000,000, an increase of $305,000,000 over the first ten months of the previous year, a gain of approximately one million dollars a day.

While bank officials are usually reluctant to accept clearings as a true index of economic conditions within a community, Malcolm H. Bryan, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank, said yesterday that when the increase is "as big as that, there is an unquestionable increase in trade."

Bryan was careful to explain that clearings were only a record of transactions between banks and there was no way of breaking them down to ascertain the percentage of gain caused by thriving trade or increased production of goods.

Clearings for the business week ending November 2 showed a $7,000,000 gain over the same week last year, with the week ending November 9 showing a similar gain. Clearings for the period ending November 12 were $68,000,000, compared to $50,000,000 for the same week of 1939.

Market Would Hurt Section, 500 Protesting Citizens Say

Fourth Ward Civic Leader Charges That Convicted Racketeer Is Scheduled To Head Proposed Food Terminal; Plans Formed.

Charging that the proposed location of a $5,000,000 food terminal at Murphy avenue and Sylvan road would destroy values of scores of homes and bring detrimental influences into the community, more than 500 citizens of the Capitol View and West End sections of Atlanta yesterday formed plans to oppose the project "to the last ditch."

Headed by Ernest Brewer, president of the Fourth Ward Civic Forum, who called a mass meeting of those interested in "preserving this section of Atlanta," the group appointed committees to contract local and national representatives in their drive to keep the project out of "our section of the city."

Brewer explained "our opposition to the development cannot be construed as a fight against legitimate farmers, but against an undesirable element which neither farmers nor urban citizens countenance."

Brewer said that it was planned to place a convicted racketeer in charge of the market after it has been constructed.

"I have the facts to back that statement up," Brewer said, "and I give it to you for what it is worth. He stands convicted of an offense and not only paid a $1,000 fine, but has a suspended sentence hanging over him."

Brewer did not name the man. The audience cheered when Brewer announced the Fulton county commission had withdrawn earlier in the day its proffered co-operation in grading the 15-acre site for the project. The commissioners last Tuesday agreed to assist to this extent, but under pressure from property owners and citizens, rescinded their former action.

Pledges to assist in finding a suitable site for construction of the food terminal were given, but the group was unanimous in its contention that the property in question is "not the proper location."

Dan W. Watson, insurance executive, was made chairman of a special market committee to acquaint various officials with the sentiment of those present and to urge another site.

Columbus Roberts, Georgia commissioner of agriculture, and Governor-elect Talmadge, who has been retained by Roberts to help promote the project and to work out details, were out of the city last night and could not be reached for a statement as to their attitude following the mass meeting.

Others Speak.

Mrs. Robin Wood, of the State Agricultural Department, spoke briefly at the gathering, urging co-operation of the group in finding a suitable site. This was the only intimation of the attitude of the State Agricultural Department.

Among other speakers were: Cicero Kendrick and Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, Fulton county legislative members; Councilman John T. Marley, Councilman-elect Paul H. Butler and Roy Bell; Mayor Hartsfield; Walter Richards, vice president of the forum; George L. Wilson, former president of the West End Business Men's Association; the Rev. Dennis Starnes, assistant pastor of the Park Street Methodist church; the Rev. W. Lee Cutts, pastor of the Capitol View Baptist church; Mrs. Vera Hall, P. T. A. leader; and Mrs. J. E. Andrews, of the Atlanta Woman's Civic Council.

Georgia Road Board Change Is Proposed

Standardized Audit System Also Urged to Com- missioner Group.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

Proposals to revamp the Georgia Highway Department to save the state-wide road program from bogging down in politics, and institution of a standardized system of audits for Georgia's 159 counties yesterday featured a meeting of the board managers of the Association County Commissioners of Georgia.

Discussion of the highway proposal developed several plans, but the two which gained the most support were:

1. Creation of five state highway districts, composed of two congressional districts each, with members to be elected by the voters of each district.

2. Authorizing the Governor to appoint a five-man highway board instead of three men as formerly.

Go to Committee.

Although no final action was taken on either of the proposals made by Frank Kimble, of Worth county, former president of the association, they were referred to a four-man legislative committee, which will map a legislative program to be sponsored by the organization.

Judge Frank Gabrels, of Habersham county and association president, named Scott Candler, DeKalb commissioner, as chairman of the legislative committee. Other members are Frank Gross, of Stephens; W. E. Beverly, Thomas, and J. J. Bouhan, of Chatham.

Judge Frank Smith, of Rabun county, urged that commissioners, public accountants and the state auditing division should formulate a standard system so comparisons can be made and a strict account of the financial condition of "our counties can be maintained."

Among other proposals discussed and referred to the legislative committee were:

1. Reduction of the homestead exemption now allowed on owner-occupied homes from the present $2,000 maximum to $1,200.

2. Extension of the authority of counties to levy a special 2.5 mill tax for relief purposes. This power expires at the end of this year.

3. Abolition of legislative allocation of certain county levies for specific purposes and levy of a blanket and uniform county tax to provide revenue for all purposes.

Bombs Bursting in the Air Provide London Night Life With Plenty of Excitement--White

No Paper Hats or Rattles Needed for Noise- Making.

By W. L. WHITE

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(By Wire)—In spite of the blackout and food restrictions London's night life is still the liveliest of any world capital, considering the fact that you get this excitement without a big cover charge, a paper hat or a tin rattle.

The other night I dined at one of London's restaurants famous for its food, which is more solidly British than Winston Churchill. Suddenly there was a tremendous bang outside. It brought all the diners to their feet, and was followed in about three seconds by another explosion about seven and three-eighths times more tremendous.

I stood up in time to see the dignified clients and the august waiters diving under tables and chairs for safety.

SPEAKER — John W. Studebaker, United States commissioner of education, last night addressed the 15th annual convention of the Georgia Association of School Administrators here.

Twenty-five days after Italy set out to "break Greece's back," the troops of that little country tramped into Koritza, big Italian base in Albania, yesterday on the heels of the retreating Fascists. The Greeks said at least 72,000 Italian troops were fleeing the Koritza area.

Educators Get Defense Labor Training Plan

U. S. Would Support Vocational Program, Studebaker Says.

By BETTY MATHIS.

John W. Studebaker, United States commissioner of education, came to Atlanta yesterday to offer to school superintendents of Georgia a plan whereby the federal government would support an intensive program of vocational education.

The immediate reason for such a program is the national defense program which is "seriously hampered," the educator said, by lack of skilled men to do the jobs required in national defense industry.

In the far-reaching aspects of the program, benefits would accrue to the national government in the form of greatly reduced expenditures for public relief, since persons now untrained could be given skills which would enable them to find employment in private industry, Studebaker said.

Already WPA is experimenting in vocational training with a group of approximately 20,000 persons who at the completion of their training are expected to go immediately into well-paying jobs in industry, it was pointed out.

Studebaker, addressing the 15th annual convention of the Georgia Association of School Administrators last night at a downtown hotel, explained the plan would embody a system of educational centers, each specializing in a particular branch of training in the manual arts.

The program would be financed by the federal government almost entirely, he said, but administration would be in the hands of the state departments of education.

Martial Law Proclaimed by Turks' Cabinet

Greeks, Jubilant Over Koritza Capture, Shout 'On to Rome.'

By The Associated Press.

The official Soviet Russian news agency Tass last night flatly denied reports that Hungary's adherence to the German-Italian-Japanese alliance had been made with the co-operation and approval of the Soviet Union.

Tass spoke of reports that the German newspaper Hamburger Fremdenblatt had made such an assertion and added:

"Tass is authorized to state that this report does not correspond to fact in any extent."

Greeks Take Koritza.

Twenty-five days after Italy set out to "break Greece's back," the troops of that little country tramped into Koritza, big Italian base in Albania, yesterday on the heels of the retreating Fascists. The Greeks said at least 72,000 Italian troops were fleeing the Koritza area.

Coincident with this Greek military victory over Germany's partner Turkey proclaimed martial law in nearly all sections of European Turkey—a proclamation considered significant because of forecasts that Germany may send Nazi troops streaming through Bulgaria to attack Greece in the east.

The proclamation was made shortly after Franz von Papen, Germany's ambassador to Turkey, returned via Sofia, Bulgarian capital, to his post following consultations with his chiefs in Berlin.

Von Papen was presumed to be carrying a virtual ultimatum to pro-British Turkey to join in the Axis-planned "new order" in Europe. The Axis program already has been subscribed to by Hungary. New membership is expected to include Rumania, where Nazi troops already are based; Bulgaria, German-protected Slovakia, and perhaps Yugoslavia.

Russian "Desertion" Hinted.

Turkey's press reflected anxiety that her friend and big neighbor, Soviet Russia, might be willing for Adolf Hitler's troops to strike at the Dardanelles, but nevertheless again declared Turkey's intention of going to war if her sovereignty is threatened.

Turkey's proclamation followed a three-hour meeting of the council of ministers which also was reported to have approved a bill so strictly rationing gasoline that it prohibits use of private automobiles or power boats.

There were unofficial reports

It's Very Democratic When Patrons Dive Under Tables.

Suddenly a hissing noise began and grew until it sounded like a Santa Fe freight engine running away backwards down grade and due to jump the track at the next curve.

I knew very well what this sound was. So I prudently dived head first into what I thought would be the protective shelter of a doorway. But it turned out to be a smoothly curving, naked stomach of a solid concrete cupid.

Just as my forehead struck this concrete cupid there was a flash, a tremendous bang and a gust of wind, which sent me rolling around in broken glass on the sidewalk. This third bomb, landing just down the block and around the corner, had pierced the pavement.

British Await Master War Stroke by Axis

German Panzer Units Expected To Swarm Through Bulgaria.

By DREW MIDDLETON.
LONDON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—British military leaders, striving to anticipate the Axis' next major stroke, are trying to piece together its probable outlines.

A military expert said tonight it was likely to take the form of a grand-scale pincer campaign striking at the Suez canal and Egypt from two directions, designed to end Britain's dominance in the eastern Mediterranean and Iraq's oil fields, one of war's rich prizes.

This look into the future assumed that the Axis would have the friendly neutrality of not the co-operation of Soviet Russia—something that remains to be seen.

Bulgaria Courtied.
The return of German Ambassador Franz von Papen to Turkey and Germany's efforts to woo the Bulgarians into the ranks of the active Axis allies were interpreted as diplomatic preparations for a military offensive whose success would mean the end of Greece and Turkey as free states and the eventual concentration of almost all the Axis forces on beleaguered Britain.

This informant felt the bombing of England, gestures of friendship with Spain and feints at the fortress of Gibraltar were merely side issues in a plan of unparalleled military and political activity.

Nazis Would Lead.
Here is this informant's idea of Germany's new drive nach Osten (drive to the east) which, he said, had been maturing since Italy entered the war:

1. While Italy engages the bulk of the Greek army, still weak in modern equipment and aircraft, German troops led by famed panzer (armored) divisions will boil through Bulgaria into northern Greece, first occupying Salonika and then Athens.

2. Turkey will be asked by Von Papen to allow German and Italian troops to proceed through her territory to Syria and Palestine. Germany's demand will be backed by Russian pressure going as far as a threat of war.

Italian Stroke.
3. Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, of Italy, will attack General Sir Archibald P. Wavell's middle eastern army from Libya, in North Africa, simultaneously with the first contact between the Axis and British troops in Palestine. The Italian general's main stroke will be at Cairo and Alexandria, his secondary attack at Khartoum, on the upper Nile River in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, seeking to cut the Nile and intercept possible British reinforcements from South Africa.

4. Great Britain will be forced to send a large part of her already outnumbered army into Palestine to protect the Suez canal and halt the Axis flanking movement toward the oil fields of Iraq. Graziani's blow must be met west of Egypt.

May Begin Soon.
There are numerous signs, this informant said, that the military part of some such campaign is about to begin.

Russia's reward for taking part in such a plan would be great. My informant declared she had been offered Athens, a Mediterranean port she has long coveted, a slice of western Turkey, including the Dardanelles and Istanbul, and Iran (Persia).

Such an Axis plan, my informant added, has manifest disadvantages. The Axis would operate over extended lines of communication, across mountains, deserts and rivers, with a constant threat of aerial bombardment by the British.

Reinforcement of men and materials in North Africa would be virtually impossible for the Italians as long as the British navy rules the Mediterranean. The British army in the middle east, although outnumbered, is a fine force, well equipped and trained for mid eastern warfare.

Nazis in Paris Denied

Bad News From Home

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A passenger arriving aboard the Spanish liner Marques de Comillas today reported that German soldiers in Paris had been denied mail from home because some committed suicide when letters informed that relatives had been killed in British bombing raids.

Miss Marion Dix, scenario writer who lived in France four years, gave this report and said also that the French had become sullen and that many refused to talk with Germans.

Air Transports To Speed U.S. Troops in War

Army Trains Men To Back Up Parachute Soldiers.

By EDWARD E. BOMAR.
FORT SAM HOUSTON, San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Army disclosed advanced experiments today to speed troops by air to a hostile air field in wartime in the wake of parachute advance guards.

Using for training a full-scale model of a two-engine transport plane, groups of a battalion of the Ninth Infantry regiment are being drilled to board a plane quickly, fully armed, and to unload ready for battle.

In a rain-soaked demonstration arranged by Major General James L. Collins, commander of the streamlined Second Infantry division, 10 men wrestled a 950-pound antitank gun up a makeshift ramp into the fuselage in a few minutes, then scrambled into folding seats ready for the takeoff.

The current experiments were ordered by the War Department, however, to obtain full data that would be essential if air infantry were employed on a large scale in wartime. The parachute troops are being trained at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Officers explained the air infantry would be flown to an enemy landing field presumably provided temporarily by parachute troops needing reinforcements to hold the point.

Experiments showed that 16 fully equipped riflemen can be carried in a single transport plane with a cargo capacity of some 3,400 pounds.

U.S. 'Ski Troops' Swing Into Action

MOUNT RAINIER, Wash., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Ski-shod soldiers made a reconnaissance of 14,408-foot Mount Rainier today to prepare for the training of ski troops patterned after Finland's famed snow warriors.

The soldiers, part of the 41st Division called up last September for a year's training, were a segment of a ski club formed at Camp Murray last month "for recreational reasons."

The Army announced November 10 that training of ski troops at northern camps had been authorized. Fort Lewis and Camp Murray were instructed to train 40-man patrols.

The Camp Murray skiers were believed the first in the nation to take to the snow fields.

Pair Charged With Photographing Munitions Dump.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 22.—(UP)—United States Vice Consul Robert W. Rinden and Melville Jacoby, United Press staff correspondent in French Indo-China, were detained yesterday by the Japanese military on charges of taking photographs in a Japanese military zone at Haiphong, according to Japanese press dispatches today.

The United States consulate in Hanoi protested against the detention, according to the dispatches, alleging that the disputed photographs were taken at its orders.

The Hanoi correspondent of the Japanese newspaper Osaka Mainichi said that Japanese military headquarters in Hanoi explained the incident in a communique tonight as follows:

A Japanese sentry guarding a munitions dump at Haiphong discovered an automobile in a prohibited military zone at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. In the car were a United States vice consul and an American newspaperman one of whom was taking photographs of the munitions dump. They drove off when challenged by the Japanese sentry.

The sentry summoned help and Japanese soldiers in a motor truck overtook the American car.

The Japanese authorities then registered a "very strong protest" with the United States consulate.

Joel Hurt Park To Be Opened This Afternoon

Turning on of Fountain With Colored Lights To Be Feature.

In a ceremony in which city officials, descendants of the late Joel Hurt and civic leaders will participate at 5 o'clock this afternoon, Atlanta's only downtown park area, the Joel Hurt Memorial park, will be dedicated and formally opened to the public.

A two-year construction program to make the tract one of the most beautiful and attractive spots in the south will reach its climax with the dedication of the park. The park is owned by the city of Atlanta.

The park entrance will open at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon and members of the Georgia Girls' Military Band will give a half-hour concert. When that is concluded, Mayor Hartford, one of the prime movers in creating the park, will take charge as master of ceremonies.

Invocation will be by the Rev. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, retired pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, and the mayor will present William C. Pauley, landscape engineer who designed the park and supervised installation of the huge electric fountain, the gift to the city of the Emily and Ernest Woodruff Foundation, headed by Thomas K. Glenn, chairman.

Glenn will present the fountain to the mayor, who in turn will deliver it to George I. Simons, general manager of parks, and Councilman Cecil Hester, chairman of the city's council parks department.

Miss Hurt will turn the fountain putting the fountain with its rainbows of lights into play, and the band will give another concert.

The fountain, with its nozzles and sprays and its varicolored lights, will be the highlight of the formal opening. It takes 20 minutes for the water and light patterns to run their cycles, and Atlantans will be able to see a re-showing of the artistic presentation every 20 minutes.

The fountain and the light displays will operate each night in the future.

Many descendants of Mr. Hurt will attend the ceremonies, Civic leaders, members of council and other officials will be presented as the program progresses.

British Dump Bombs on New Italian Base

Planes Blast Fascists as Albanian Snipers Keep Busy.

By ORIN POPOVICH.
SVETI NAUM, Albanian-Yugoslav Frontier, Nov. 22.—(UP)—I watched British bombers drop explosive bombs on Italy's Albanian base of Pogradec this afternoon.

From a mountain height on the Yugoslav frontier, between Lake Ohrida and Lake Prespa, I stood with a pair of glasses glued to my eyes and watched the planes dive upon the town and drop their cargoes of bombs.

Four times I watched the British bombers return to rain bombs on Pogradec and surrounding villages, to which some of the Italians had withdrawn from Koritza, which fell to the Greeks.

Not a single Italian plane was seen.

The British bombers only once were accompanied by a single fighter.

I also plainly saw Albanians from the wooded heights sniping at Italian troops on the Koritza-Pogradec road. The whine of the bullets could be heard from where I stood.

One British bomber crashed today in the Yugoslav mountains between Lake Prespa and Lake Ohrida.

that the government already was studying the problem of possible removal of civilians from Istanbul, Turkey's largest city and the most vulnerable to air attacks.

Newspapermen at Istanbul put one question to Von Papen—would "normal relations" between Germany and Turkey continue?

His answer: "I have no declaration of any kind to make."

With the Athens populace shouting, "On to Rome!" Greek forces yesterday marched proudly into Koritza.

Greek columns, headed by cavalry, were reported smashing and pursuing Fascist troops beyond the town while others were said to be threatening the second main base, Argirocastro, eight miles within Albania and about 50 miles southwest of Koritza.

A government spokesman asserted that Koritza had been deserted by six Italian divisions—72,000 to 90,000 men—and additional units of reinforced artillery and permanent fortifications.

This was the first official claim that the Italian disaster had been of such magnitude.

The Italians declared only two divisions had withdrawn from the area.

Another Base Falls.
The British Broadcasting Corporation estimated that the Italians were no less than seven full divisions at Koritza and announced that according to a Belgrade dispatch the Italian base at Pogradec, Albania, also had fallen.

Fascist troops retreating from Koritza were declared to have abandoned enormous quantities of equipment—so much, said the spokesman, that it is delaying our advance by being all over the roads."

"... Not a single Italian soldier is now to be found on Greek territory," he added.

Remarkably that he wanted to illustrate Italian morale, he said, that on the southern sectors of the front 460 soldiers and three Italian officers had surrendered in a body.

A Reuter's dispatch said that Italian troops in flight from Koritza were being pursued by their own tanks, now manned by Greeks.

All Greeks rejoiced at the capture of Koritza in the Greeks' own invasion of Italian-held territory.

There were reports that the retreating Italians were harassed by gunfire from Greek mountain emplacements.

It was the same story to the southwest, where the Greeks were driving the Fascists toward Argirocastro, a town only 30 miles from Porto Edra, port on the Strait of Otranto, opposite the "heel" of the Italian boot, where Italian troops and supplies have been moving into Albania.

Duce Still Confident.
The official Rome radio announced last night:

"The temporary Greek entry into Koritza means absolutely nothing, because our General Cubaldo Soddu's troops are organized; they will occupy all of Greece, literally flying through the entire country."

"It will be foolish to say that the Greeks are not brave fighters, but even they will be helpless against what is to come."

Flags snapped from every Athenian building. Happy crowds ran through the streets. A throng in front of the army headquarters building roared an ovation for Premier-General John Metaxas when he appeared on the steps to announce the news.

The time of the Greeks' entrance into Koritza was somewhat confused. The best account of the occupation follows:

Early yesterday Greek batteries installed on the high summits of the Morava mountain range turned a storm of fire on the last Italian positions in the area. This fire neutralized the Italian resistance and Fascist troops fled, leaving valuable war material.

Greek forces chased their foe systematically while other stronger forces began entering Koritza. The population poured out along the approaches to the town to meet the conquerors. Old men, women and children threw flowers at them, crying and kneeling PRIZE IN TUG OF WAR—Heavily linked politically to both, Bulgaria last night was under pressure from Germany and Russia. Germany reportedly was urging Bulgaria to join the Axis actively and Russia was warning her to stay out. As Italy's invasion of Greece went into reverse with the loss of Koritza (A), potential military importance of a drive through Bulgaria across Greece into the Near East increased. Rumania was believed close to signing an alliance pact with the Axis, while an expected German ultimatum to Turkey to join the Axis brought forth a declaration of martial law in that country.

Several senators reported today that in the aftermath of the election in which both parties urged all possible material help to Great Britain—they were receiving quantities of mail urging action to promote the program. In addition, various organizations which have been in the forefront of the move to help England are busily urging that election pledges be implemented with congressional action.

Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, influential member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said today that while he had always been for helping England he was "more so now than ever."

"There has developed a growing knowledge of the relationship of a British victory to our peace and the country is becoming less isolated and more realistic," he said.

If events between now and early 1941 make it appear that national defense may best "be promoted by a marked increase in supplies of all kinds to Great Britain, which requires that some of the embargoes that interfere with transportation be raised," congress could, he said, take up the question in the light of such circumstances.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, also a Foreign Relations Committee member, spoke of the possibility of freeing American shipping from the neutrality act restrictions which now keep it out of belligerent ports. He was flatly in favor of repealing the Johnson act.

News of Koritza's fall circulated swiftly through the capital and the rest of Greece. Church bells rang in Athens, Piraeus and other cities. Meanwhile, Russia was reported advising her little Slav friend, Bulgaria, to steer clear of outright membership in the expanding Axis alliance, a qualified source in Sofia said.

Nevertheless, despite underground tension in the country, most observers are convinced that Bulgaria eventually will go 100 percent for Adolf Hitler's Reich and Benito Mussolini's Italy and their partners in the "new order."

Accordingly, Bulgarian ministers may go to Berlin next week to learn exactly what is expected. The four men who hold Axis-Rumanian relations in their hands held extended conversations yesterday which foreign diplomatic observers insisted would make Rumania a fifth member of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo-Budapest Axis.

Foe of Draft Changes
His Mind in Courtroom

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—(AP) Raymond L. Belisle, 31, who told draft officials he would "not join any army or navy while Roosevelt is dictator," offered today to join the army if the government would forget he made the statement.

The offer was made in federal court where Belisle pleaded guilty to refusing to register for conscription. Judge Harold Louderback said the next step was up to United States attorneys whether they were willing to drop the charge in return for Belisle's enlistment.

"If the prosecution is unwilling to do this," the judge said, "about the only man that will do you any good will be the dictator you spoke about."

To give employment and to get employment—A Want Ad in The Constitution is equally effective in both cases.

U. S. Bombers Used by British In Raid on Nazis

By TAYLOR HENRY.
LONDON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—British pilots in American-made Lockheed-Hudson bombers left the Nazi airfield at Stavanger, Norway, ablaze today in an assault "as slick as it was heavy," the air ministry announced.

"The first aircraft to arrive," said the announcement, "scattered (strewn) the airfield and its buildings with incendiaries and those which followed added greatly to the destruction with a variety of bombs."

"Lines of fire were started. From some of these blue flames shot high after staccato explosions. The targets still were burning nearly an hour after the bombing ended."

This public praise for the performance of American-built planes reflected the growing acknowledgment which is being made directly and indirectly here for United States aid in the war from the King on down.

German planes struck heavily tonight at the industrial Midlands and at scattered areas over nearly all England, in one of the most widespread raids of recent weeks.

The assault upon the Midlands appeared particularly violent—a single town in its western section reported that raiders flew over every few minutes and dropped both incendiaries and heavy bombs.

(The German air force overnight renewed its attacks on Birmingham, dropping bombs of the heaviest caliber on objectives which escaped destruction in previous raids, informed German sources said in Berlin.)

Three separate formations attacked a town in the eastern Midlands.

The Liverpool area, on the west coast; the northeast, and the south also were under attack.

Before dawn, the air raid sirens howled the accustomed message here, and from the Kentish coast word came that "many" hostile bombers had plunged across the channel in the cold, damp and starlit skies and headed northwest.

During the day the counties surrounding London and the southeast coast were under intermittent attack. The number of casualties was described officially as "small," and it was announced that in these daylight forays two Nazi bombers had been shot down.

From their gun emplacements across the channel, the Germans bombarded the Dover area at length.

Envoy to Vichy Offer Declined By Pershing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing has declined an appointment as ambassador to France on the advice of his physicians, President Roosevelt announced at Hyde Park today, and it was reported here that another choice already had been made for a successor to Ambassador William C. Bullitt.

The President's announcement that he had offered the Vichy post to General Pershing, an old World War friend of the French chief of state, Marshal Philippe Petain, indicated that he had decided to accept the resignation of Bullitt.

Bullitt submitted his resignation November 7, but said later the President had declined it. When he left the White House again last Friday, Bullitt said he still was ambassador to France.

It was reported tonight that Bullitt also had declined the post as ambassador to Great Britain, but it could not be learned whether President Roosevelt had made another choice of a successor to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

General Pershing's close friendship with Marshal Petain was said to have been a strong factor in his original selection for the Vichy post. Pershing received a personal message from Petain on his 80th birthday a few months ago.

Educator Says 'Extravagance' To Be Charged

Accusation Will Be Made Before Legislature, Allman Asserts.

By LUKE GREENE.

Charges of "rank extravagance" in the Georgia public school system will be made at the next session of the general assembly in an effort to block the appropriation of money needed to run the schools, J. I. Allman, president of the Georgia Education Association, said yesterday.

He explained that a legislator, whose name he did not reveal, already had visited his office and promised that such charges would be forthcoming when the legislature meets in January.

Allman made this revelation yesterday as he put the state school machinery on display for presidents and representatives of Georgia colleges at a meeting here.

Series of Meetings.
In an effort to combat charges of extravagance, the G. E. A. president, who also is supervisor of business administration in the State Department of Education, said the school department is sponsoring a series of 28 meetings in various parts of the state and warning superintendents and boards to put their houses in order.

"We are telling them that the State Department is not responsible," he said. "We are saying to them, in your county it is you and your board—if there is extravagance, then eliminate it."

He pointed out that the legislature will be called upon to provide approximately $7,500,000 for the schools between now and July 1.

"Moral Obligation."
"That is some job considering the fact that everybody is pledged to no taxes," he commented.

Allman said he had been informed by the state auditor that approximately $8,065,000 would come from the general fund for the schools, but that about $11,500,000 was required, leaving the legislature to provide $3,435,000 for the 1940-41 term.

In addition he said the legislature had a "moral obligation" to pay back $3,910,000 which it promised at the last session when the teachers were asked to go on teaching, but which it did not get around to approving.

"My information is that this money is going to be paid back by March 1," he said.

Sees Co-operation.
Allman said he expected the incoming legislature generally to be sympathetic toward the schools and co-operate in financing the program.

The G. E. A. president said every effort was being made to remove what he termed "ugly situations" in the state system. He cited as an example a case in which a school trustee accepted a $50 retainer fee in return for giving a woman a job in the school.

Speaking further on finances, Allman said an organization called the "Citizens Road League of Georgia" was attempting to take the equalization fund away from the school system by urging that all gasoline tax money be used entirely for roads. He emphasized that the state department did not want the equalization law changed.

Anniversary Program.
Ralph Ramsey, secretary of the G. E. A., outlined plans for observing the 75th anniversary of the education association in April. He said the anniversary convention would be held in Augusta and that a special edition of the G. E. A. Journal would be issued.

He said the colleges were turning out 2,000 school teachers in Georgia every year and urged that they be conscious of their responsibilities in moulding the teaching profession.

Grades of Cotton Higher in Georgia

The Agricultural Marketing Service yesterday reported higher grades and longer staples in the cotton ginned prior to November 14, compared with ginnings of last season.

"In Georgia middling and higher grades made up 57 per cent of the ginnings compared with 33 per cent last season to the same date," the study showed.

"In Alabama it was 63 per cent compared to 27; in South Carolina 54 per cent against 38 per cent; in North Carolina 46 per cent against 29 per cent, and in Virginia 22 per cent against 11 per cent."

Ginnings of staple an inch or longer amounted to 51 per cent in Georgia compared to 38 per cent last season.

In South Carolina it made up 72 per cent of the ginnings against 59 per cent last season. The other states included Alabama 34 against 26; North Carolina 89 against 68 and Virginia 96 against 26.

Japanese Release American Nurse

ONTARIO, Cal., Nov. 22.—(AP) Miss Edna Lawrence, 46, a missionary nurse arrested November 13 at Yokohama and charged with violating Japan's peace preservation law, has been released unconditionally, her sister here was informed today.

Mrs. George M. Mahan received a telegram from J. L. Hooper, secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church, New York, telling of her sister's release.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 23, 1940.

We Should Learn

Martin Dies, and the congressional committee of investigation he heads, have, not infrequently, made charges of subversive activities in the United States which have been so extreme many people have been inclined to look upon them as a mere striving for sensationalism. Or, at best, as a modern version of Aesop's boy who cried "Wolf!" so often the shepherds ignored his warning when the real danger came.

It has been stated that FBI and other law agencies of the government have been irritated by the activities of the Dies committee. The committee, by ill-advised publicity, it has been said, has "flushed the quarry" before the FBI had all the desired evidence in its hands.

Publication of the new committee "white paper," however, should be received with utmost seriousness by everyone in the United States. It is another warning, but the nation must know, if it is to save itself, that this is no false cry of "Wolf!" but a very genuine alarm.

The Dies committee has, with patience and utmost detail, investigated tons of evidence, has heard testimony from hundreds of witnesses. Some of what it has heard has been unsubstantiated and some has been the outpourings of fantastic minds.

But this "white paper" is the real disclosure. It contains only such things as to which the committee is able to furnish the proof. It is a startling document, but startling only in the sense that it should startle us into full realization of the menace that is even today at work in our midst, boring and sapping the national morale for the service of that dictator, Hitler, and his partner Mussolini, who dream their dreams of world conquest.

If proper steps can now be taken to halt the flood of poisonous propaganda which has flowed from the sources named by the committee, Martin Dies and his collaborators will have performed perhaps the greatest service to their country of any present day group.

If the nation ignores their warning it will have only itself to blame for the resultant national debacle.

Dies is seeking to awaken Americans from their tragic sleep of false security. If Americans do not awake, the things that make America will probably fade and die before another generation.

No doubt the gods, watching from Olympus, have a word for it: Whatever the Greek is for "attaboy."

The French Are Stirring

General de Gaulle, leader of the "Free French" forces in the world conflict, reports that his strength has increased 50 per cent within the past two months. Frenchmen outside of the small area under the Vichy government—hence under control of Hitler—are flocking in ever greater numbers to the standards of freedom.

It is reported that a "large French battleship" has surrendered to the British at Gibraltar. Inasmuch as only one French warship answering this description remained outside of British hands, this must remove from the seas the final French vessel of heavy gun caliber.

Marshal Weygand, outstanding military leader remaining to the French, is in Africa and, it is reliably reported, has refused to return to Vichy on the orders of Pierre Laval, who has emerged as the chief of Hitler's Fifth Columnists in remaining France proper.

It is reasonable to surmise that Weygand is nearing a break with the Vichy government. If he joins the "Free French" forces, there can be no doubt that he will prove a powerful influence to all other French who are in position to oppose the Axis powers. For Weygand is still a figure of intense popularity with the French and where he leads undoubtedly tens of thousands will follow. It is not at all unlikely that if Weygand takes the definite step and breaks with the Vichy government, he will carry with him practically all French forces and all French territories in Africa.

The combination of indications, and possibilities, gives promise that France may yet play a large role in the struggle to break the grip of totalitarianism in Europe.

The critical position in which Italy now finds herself, growing popular dissatisfaction among the Italian population and the developments regarding those forces of France still able to freely decide for themselves, are all signs pointing toward a coming Mediterranean and African debacle for the Axis powers. The picture of the world struggle may have taken an altogether brighter hue, from the Allied viewpoint, before next summer comes.

"Boers learn the truth about conditions in occupied Holland from letters tied to migrating storks." Somehow we had never associated the stork with the real facts of life.

Is This Significant?

Two strikes have been called, within the past week, in plants engaged in vital defense production. The first was in the Vultee Aircraft plant in California. The second, called only yesterday, halted operations at the main plant of the Aluminum Company of America, in Pennsylvania. This corporation is the only producer of aluminum in this country and aluminum is essential in the building of airplanes, as well as in much other defense equipment.

The Pennsylvania plant employs 7,500 people and had been running 24 hours a day on government defense orders.

Such strikes are serious. Serious at all times, they are doubly so now when the very safety of the nation depends upon the rapid completion of the defense program. The man, or men, who would do anything to halt work on vital defense programs must, perforce, be suspect as to the quality of his Americanism, his love for this country.

The fact that both strikes have been called by unions affiliated with the CIO may have significance. There have been widespread charges that the ranks of CIO officials number not a few Communists or followers after other foreign isms among them.

It would not be surprising if Communists, who must obey the orders given them by the Internationale, at Moscow, should endeavor to instigate any strike or other happening which would slow up or hamstring the American defense program. For the growing strength of this nation is the greatest stumbling block in the world today to the consummation of the dreams of world empire of the dictators. If there was not, behind her, the potential strength of the United States, and all the Americas, for the building of a new free world after the fighting is done, Britain would not have the heart to continue an otherwise hopeless struggle.

Both the great factions of organized labor in America have been accused of harboring undesirable characters in their ranks and particularly in positions of official authority. The AFL has, it is said, numbers of known racketeers, gangsters and greater or lesser criminals, in its rosters. The CIO is accused of being permeated throughout with individuals of Communist belief and of loyalty to other governments than that of this country.

Phillip Murray is the new president of the CIO, succeeding John L. Lewis, resigned. Reports from the convention at Atlantic City are that a resolution against policies of Nazism, Fascism, Communism, etc., in the organization, has been adopted and that it gives to the new president power to purge the group of these elements.

It is to be hoped the new president will put his nation's safety and welfare first of all, will weed out all foreign-directed agents from the organization and put a stop to strikes such as those in the Vultee plant and the aluminum company factory, which cast unholy suspicion upon the men calling them and the organization which gives them their power.

It is time that everyone in this country stop placing the spotlight on the second and third letters only of the word "America" and caught the vision of the complete word itself.

A feeling grows that the famed carbonated waters of Vichy may not mix as well with Nazi schnapps as was first supposed.

Editorial Symposium

NEW DEAL FOR LABOR BOARD

A hotbed of controversy since its inception, the National Labor Relations Board receives its most favorable "press" with the appointment of Dr. Harry A. Mills, Chicago University economist, to the post of Chairman J. Warren Madden, whose term expired last August. "The vacancy was too hot, politically, to handle at that time," explains the LOS ANGELES TIMES.

"It didn't take long to demonstrate the wisdom" of Dr. Mills' appointment, enthuses the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL, which points out that "within a few hours three of the extreme staff members resigned. . . . They quit because they knew the jig was up for the radical philosophy of administration they represent." In that same vein, the PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN adds the thought that with the resignation of the three aids, "the prospect is that the new majority will infuse a new spirit into the board's procedure and remove many causes of complaint."

"If men like Dr. Harry A. Mills had been appointed to the board 'when it was first created, a vast amount of controversy, illfeeling and confusion in industrial and labor circles might have been avoided," is the opinion expressed by the WASHINGTON POST, which recalls that "Dr. Mills is known for his ability in settling labor disputes instead of for an aptitude in creating antagonism between employers and employees." The NEW YORK TIMES sees the appointment a step forward for "The cause of industrial peace."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

TWICE AS FAST. TWICE AS LARGE. WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 22.

Conflict of ideas involved in the truly curious feature of the struggle now being joined between the scenes over the future of the national defense set-up. For despite the dark aspect of affairs abroad and the desperate need for haste at home, the chief topic of controversy at the White House seems to be the rather time-worn New Deal favorite, how to treat the businessmen.

The need for a decision on the part to be played by businessmen in the government is inherent in the problem confronting the President. In the existing defense set-up, authority and responsibility are completely dispersed between the Defense Commission, the War and Navy Departments and other branches of the government. With such a cumbersome mechanism, the best that any one hopes for is a continuance of the present tempo of rearmament. A tremendous speed-up is highly unlikely. Yet the fates of Coventry and Birmingham suggest, all too clearly, that there must be a speed-up if we are to be sure of meeting the grim war crisis ahead.

As the long-term defense plans are generally excellent, no speed-up can be hoped for unless American industry is put on a footing of total emergency. The defense authority and responsibility now so widely dispersed must be concentrated in a single agency. Men must be found to work from the existing plans, yet to drive industry to turn out defense material twice as fast and in twice as large quantities as the plans call for.

A real sense of emergency has not yet seized the country. Industry cannot be driven by executive fiat. Thus the men who are to drive industry successfully must command industry's confidence and obtain industry's consent. They must, in the present state of politics, be businessmen themselves.

BUSINESSMEN WON'T GET TOUGH

Dealers argue that government men are better able to drive industry than businessmen, since "businessmen won't get tough." Even among the fiercest New Dealers, however, only a small minority maintains that the needed powers can be got from congress, or the required support from the country if the new task-masters of industry are chosen among government men. For example, when Lord Beaverbrook put the English air industry on an emergency footing, he threw out bodily the managements of the Boulton-Paul and two other air plants. They were inefficient, and they had to go. Similar soft spots exist in our industry, yet they can hardly be dealt with satisfactorily if a great cry of dictatorship and state socialism is to be raised in consequence.

The President is, of course, thoroughly aware of the practical aspects of the current situation, but he would undoubtedly have yielded long ago to one of the abortive movements to give this government man or that a big place in the defense set-up.

On the other hand, all the signs suggest that the President is also extremely reluctant to confer on the businessmen more power in the government than they now enjoy. The present defense set-up was carefully planned, chiefly by the President himself with the aid of Harry L. Hopkins and Robert H. Jackson, with the end in view of utilizing the skills of businessmen without granting them real predominance. The order for its establishment was only issued under strong public pressure for something of the sort. Undoubtedly, the President would have preferred to prepare national defense "through the regular government channels."

FACTORS IN THE STRUGGLE

Thus the conflict of ideas involved in the struggle over reorganizing the defense set-up is seen to be a conflict over how far the businessmen can be trusted. There can be little doubt as to the President's confidence in and respect for such individual recruits from the ranks of business as William S. Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius and James Forrestal. The trouble is that many of the men around the President, and probably the President himself, are inclined to feel that even the best of businessmen inevitably treats his fellows too softly.

Among businessmen, there is a tendency to suppose that every member of the administration has the same Robespierreish instincts as the most sea-green incorruptible in the purloins of the Labor Relations Board. And among government men, unhappily, there is an equivalent failing, by which it is often assumed that every businessman is as bad as Insull. Thus substantial business profits are eyed with suspicion. It is felt that stringent tax laws must be enacted, to prevent general pillage. The constant impulse is to treat business rough.

Such are the controlling factors in the current struggle. Those who hope for a really drastic change in the defense set-up argue practical necessity, and point to the danger abroad. Those who oppose claim that the business class is too tenderly, the support of the mass of the people will be lost. As has already been stated in this space, the two sides are so evenly balanced that matters are likely to be let slide for a while. As for the eventual victory, none can predict where it will be.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

To Town On Thanksgiving.

Those of us whose jobs made it necessary that we come to the city on Thanksgiving Day, for greater or lesser while, found some causes for thanksgiving that those who took the holiday and stayed at home knew nothing about.

Imagine, if you can, the pleasure of driving to town at the hour when, on normal weekdays, the streets are a mass of congested traffic, and finding it as quiet as—well, as a British city during blackout, but before the bombers have come.

Imagine the thrill of driving straight along from one traffic light to another without pause or delay or near-crushed fenders. Imagine being able to drive without pause straight through Edgewood, from Pryor street, across Five Points and on to Broad street at Marietta.

And, think too, of the joy of the street car and bus riders on discovering that they didn't have to hang on a strap or cling to the back of a seat or a post. Plenty of seats for everyone who wanted to ride, for once.

Different Scenes.

The city streets look altogether different, in case you don't know it, on a holiday to any other time. It is like, yet unlike, Sunday. Not quite as quiet and deserted as on a Sunday morning, but almost so.

A certain number of people, of course, have to work. The street cars and buses are still operating. Restaurants and a few other stores are open. Soft drink emporiums seem to be doing a fairly good business, and the man at the parking garage is on the job. Though not many cars are in his place, this day. Incidentally, that's another matter for thanks for the workers on Thanksgiving Day. No trouble to park, at all, at all.

You see, on the streets, quite a few parties whose objective is easy living. Young couples with baby in his arms and the carrying one of those little bags, or overnight cases, that contain the special milk for the baby and a supply of those white cloths which stage comedians think are always folded triangularly but which, as a matter of fact, are not.

That's young dad and mom and the kid going to grandma's for the Thanksgiving turkey dinner.

You'll see groups of young people, in autos or on street cars, with lunch baskets and jolly, festive, staid energy. Going picnicking somewhere. Perhaps that round package is towels and bathing suit and they're going to take advantage of a warmish day for a last swim of the season, somewhere.

The Spirit Of The Day.

But, over the city, everywhere training.

you go, there is that peculiar spirit that belongs to Thanksgiving Day. Folks are smiling, more than usual. There is an added friendliness to greeting and contact with friend and stranger alike.

It is the spirit of sincere gratitude. For we of America, of Atlanta, have so much to be thankful for and we don't fail to realize that fact. It is a happy, cheerful sort of gladness that we are alive and well after another year and that, still, we can say with deep truth that our lives have been cast in such pleasant places.

Last Thursday there was only one slightly jarring note.

Coming to town I passed the place where a new residence is being built. And I noticed the workmen were busy at their tasks on the structure, just as though it were any ordinary weekday. And I didn't like it. Is the completion of that house one day earlier so terribly vital? Or do those workmen, paid by the day, hate so badly to lose one day's wage that they'll ignore Thanksgiving?

Oh, yes, I had to go to my office for a few hours in the morning. But newspapers have to be published 365 days in the year and 366 on leap years, you know. And I didn't stay on the job long. Was back home, to stay, in time for the midday turkey dinner.

Somehow feel sorry for those masons and carpenters, etc., who were at work on that house. Whether it was the fault of the contractor or their own, they should have been able to take the one day off. Anyway, I hope there was turkey in their lunch boxes.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Tuesday, November 23, 1915:

"Columbus, Ga., November 22.—The bodies of six persons have been recovered, and nearly forty other persons are in hospitals in Columbus tonight as a result of a head-on collision between a passenger train and a special train carrying the Con T. Kennedy Carnival shows, six miles west of here this afternoon."

Labor Trouble In Carolina

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The United Press tells us that construction work on a dam in North Carolina has been seriously impeded by strife between local workers and men of special talent imported from the north and west. According to the United Press, the dam is "an important link in President Roosevelt's plans for a series of power projects to aid in the national defense." The superintendent of the job appealed to Governor Hoey in Raleigh for protection for his "foreigners" in a situation amounting to mob rule, and the Governor sent highway police to restore order.

What is wrong with that picture?

According to the contentions of both the American Federation of Labor and the CIO, nothing is wrong with it. The southern workmen, even though it does not appear that they are organized in a formal union, are well within the rights claimed by the AFL and the CIO and many precedents recognized or condoned by the national government in recent years.

A group of men have taken the liberty of establishing certain qualifications for workers on the job. They insist that only local men be employed and their picketing is riotous, but they can plausibly insist that the rioting is provoked by the "foreigners," who in this case have the status of scabs, rats and finks. If the scabs, rats and finks would go away or the company would agree not to employ them, there would be no rioting. A similar proposition was stated by John L. Lewis in a wire to President Roosevelt when a great force of coal miners were gathering in Pennsylvania for a march on one of the steel centers to win an organization strike for the steel workers.

Old Hitler Mr. Lewis viewed the events which might occur unless the national government appeared a large body of men who were threatening to riot and, perhaps, under the precedent of Herrin, Ill., commit a massacre. It may be observed parenthetically that Adolf Hitler always employs the same reasoning. Appease him and he will not kill you. Oppose him and you are responsible for the consequences.

At the present time the American Federation of Labor is pursuing a course on various national defense jobs parallel to that of the North Carolina country workers. The construction unions of the AFL have established hiring shacks on the premises where cantonnments and other defense works are building at which citizens desiring to work must buy work licenses. The license fees run from $20 for common laborers to $80 for carpenters. "No fee, no license, no job" is the rule, and if the contractors should insist on hiring non-union men the unions would picket, reserving the right to riot if peaceful picketing should fail.

Not Public Licenses

It would seem from the United Press' story and from what most of us know of labor organizations that this North Carolina incident is a union matter. But that does not alter the case. A union charter is no legal license to riot, although public opinion has come to believe that some fine print must exist somewhere in the constitution or the laws of the country granting this special privilege to unions. The AFL and the CIO have no more rights than the unorganized locals or homers of North Carolina. They are just groups of private individuals, and the organizations themselves are only clubs or associations. The charters which they issue to their national unions and the charters which the nationals hand down to the locals are not public licenses and confer no rights on the groups or sub-groups or the individual members which do "not belong equally to other citizens."

There is nothing unusual, however illegal it may be, about the conduct of the North Carolina men. They say outsiders may not work in their part of the country. The AFL has said that for years, but has made special rules to permit an American citizen to work in new territory, provided he first spend a certain period in idleness and then pay a naturalization fee to the local union.

Am I pointing out something alarming? Does any group of men anywhere have a right to bar other men for reasons of its own, whether because they are freckled, bowlegged, out-towners, vegetarians or philatelists, and beat them up and blame them for their own injuries? Look at the record of the AFL and the CIO.

Colonial Fronting For Auditorium?

Editor, Constitution: In passing the city auditorium recently (since its damage by fire) the thought occurred to me that, inasmuch as the front of the building will have to be repaired, a change in the structure might make it more impressive to those approaching the building.

It seems to me that the Joel Hurt Park and the electrical fountain give it the proper setting for a colonial fronting. I believe that if the entrance gave the effect of being supported by at least four large white columns, three stories high, the appearance would be characteristic of the old south and represent the true spirit of Atlanta. I believe it would be a mecca for our visitors, pointed out with pride by our citizens.

Atlanta.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

DELIGHTFUL DAY

We were, of course, proud of the 80-page edition of The Atlanta Constitution on Thanksgiving morning. It was the third such annual edition and, from every viewpoint, the most successful. This feeling of pride was accentuated by the response of yesterday when approximately 50,000 or more persons responded to each of those 80 pages and came to Atlanta to shop.

It was interesting to be out and to be a part of the gigantic crowd which filled every street and store in the city. Comments were many and unusual.

It is apparent the early Thanksgiving day is popular. Those with small means appreciate it more than any other group. Those who do not have to practice strict economy on food do not realize it, but the early date permits an easing of the strain. The crowding together of late Thanksgiving with Christmas shopping for presents, necessities and the extra food for a Thanksgiving and Christmas Day dinner was more of a strain on thin purses than is the present date. The earlier date is without objection, except, of course, from those whose prejudice was based on political reasons. This year no one appeared to recall the debate of last November.

Actually, of course, Thanksgiving has had no permanent date. It has been celebrated in July and August. It has been all over the calendar.

At any rate, Atlantans liked it. Thousands and thousands of them liked it. Atlanta was exciting as merchants set new sales records; as perspiring traffic men directed the heavy traffic; as packed street cars and buses loaded and unloaded their crowds.

THOSE REMEMBERING

Most heartening to me is the fact that many persons remember those who have little for which to give thanks.

The football game at Grant field was a very grand thing. There were some 25,000 persons there to see a good game between the freshmen teams of Georgia Tech and Georgia. Most of them went, I am sure, because they wished to assist the Scottish Rite Crippled Children's hospital. This hospital is a very vital and fine thing. It is non-sectarian. It takes crippled children who can be saved or repaired and does a job which has inspired others in other states to build hospitals.

I know of several homes for children whose parents cannot care for them, who had all that other children had, turkey and dressing, vegetables and desert.

Thanksgiving is a warming, friendly sort of day. There is much for which to be thankful. For us, as yet, we can eat in peace and sleep in peace. Ours is a rich and powerful land. No one wants us as an opponent. Most of the nations are jealous of us and resent us. We must know all things but must be confident in our own strength.

Thanksgiving was disturbing, too, if one considered that in Atlanta there were some who were not fed at all or, at best, fed badly and inadequately. Their counterparts were to be found in all our cities. They are the great loud argument in behalf of government for all the people. They cry out with hungry mouths against those who would say that the responsibility of government does not extend to them. Clashed hatred is made in hungry stomachs. And not, as some persons seem to think, by those who seek to fill those stomachs.

"THE PINCHED BELLIES"

John L. Lewis, able, intelligent, dangerously ambitious, violent of temper and, in my opinion, a dangerous and unstable man, is smart enough to say, in his CIO swan song, "I align myself with the pinched bellies of the nation."

It is a strange fact that too many of us have left the cause of the pinched bellies to demagogues and to politically ambitious men. It is strange, too, that a sincere man who espouses their cause and fights for them, meets with such unrelenting opposition.

And so, sitting before a log fire late Thanksgiving evening, I thought what a grand day it had been. Great organizations, always ready to assist the sick, the needy, the aged, the young and the crippled, had been given a boost. The next financial pressure was a few weeks away.

Life, despite the turkey, the crimson cranberry sauce, the giblet gravy, the dressing, the rice, the asparagus and the oyster stuffing, was going on much as before. Earlier I had been to a hospital. There were persons desperately sick; there were babies coming into a strange and, temporarily at least, awful world; there were surgeons arriving for emergency cases.

The day was just a day. It had to have some significance to make it worthwhile. It seemed to me that, while we enjoyed food and while we thanked God that our way of life remained; that our liberties and our rights still were ours; that we might resolve to translate them into meaning for those who were ill-fed and hungry; for those who were sick and in need. We ought to make the day not one for smug thanksgiving but one for rationalizing ourselves with the entire picture.

Another Letter From A Bald-Headed Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My Dear Louise:

A sect in wise and ancient India believes that joy and sorrow are balanced in the life of every individual, so that good times and bad things are always equalized in the final accounting.

Since you consider life unfair to many people, I have no doubt you will call that theory silly nonsense, but wait a bit before judging.

When Sir Isaac Newton, father of modern physical science, discovered the laws that control the operations of the universe, he found the secret of order in the simple law of balance.

When the fathers established our government and protected it by checks and balances, they were not experimenting with a new idea but only finding a new use for the fundamental law of nature.

That ancient law keeps the sun in place and holds the planets to their courses. For every action there is a balancing reaction. Every fact is checked and balanced by another.

The plants take nourishment from the earth, but die and decay and return to the soil the elements they borrowed. Giant ferns in ages past absorbed the heat energy of the sun and then were buried and carbonized into coal; now we burn the coal and it releases the heat energy borrowed from the sun. It is one law that is never broken.

Whether it applies to spiritual values, I do not know; but I find it easy to believe that the Indians may be right. They explain apparent failures of the rule by saying that a few minutes of joy may be intense enough to balance many joyless years.

Right or wrong, they must find the theory comforting; for when they are happy, they do not worry about the future, and when they are miserable, they know they are storing up credit and insuring rich returns of joy.

Whatever the truth of that may be, your own experience will demonstrate that the law of balance does affect your life as it affects everything else. There is no escaping the ancient truth that whatever a man sows, that shall he also reap.

You sacrifice yourself to benefit others and your reward is the pleasure of living with an approving conscience. If you violate your standard of right, your punishment is shame. By making yourself an admirable person, you invite the respect and affection of admirable people.

So apparently the law of balance applies to spiritual as well as to physical things, and nothing is left to chance. Thus you are enabled to be your own prophet and arrange your future with mathematical certainty merely by inviting what you desire. Ask for it and you get it.

Love, DAD.

Alla Nazimova Comes Back—And I'm Cheering.

In a day when the accent is upon youth and men past their forties find job hunting discouraging it is gratifying to know that Hollywood still has a place for the good ones—if they really are good.

Movie directors are not as dumb as commentators, trying to be funny, often represent them. They couldn't be and hold their jobs and spend the producers' millions. They realize the great movie public demands youth and beauty and grace and glamour. And sometimes the publicity bureau does build a dumb girl with eyes and hair and legs into a glamorous star—for a season.

But they also realize they must also have a story. A good story, and they're hard to get. And they must have a supporting cast of actors and actresses who can act. They may not get top billing. They don't attract many folk to the box office—but they make the picture. Just as that section of first and second violins and that choir of woodwinds, and those brasses—the trumpets and trombones and French horns—and the busy chaps with the tympani—kettle drums, you call them—make an orchestra. Toscanini or Ormandy get the praise. But they wouldn't if Fraag Zittman, the virtuoso of the oboe, played sour notes.

I'm thinking just now of that marvelous woman, Billie Burke, who must have found Ponce de Leon's spring of eternal youth. And of Marie Dressler, whose passing not so long ago caused the world to mourn—never a beauty even in her youth, but what an actress! And of dear old May Robson, the beloved grandmother of a score of fine pictures. And of the many "supporting" men or "character actors." Charley Grapewin, Al Shean, the beloved Lionel Barrymore.

What started me musing about these folk was a poster in the lobby of the Grand. It announced "Escape," starring Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor. And well down in the billing, Alla Nazimova.

"There's an actress," I remarked to an usher. "Nazimova."

"How'd you pronounce it?" he asked.

"Nahtz-IM-ova," I explained. "At least, that's what she told me. She ought to know."

"Never heard of her," said the usher. "What pictures was she in?"

That didn't surprise me. On a radio quiz program a few nights ago I heard a woman who had picked "show folk" for the subject she knew most about answer a score of questions about who in Hollywood was the wife of the husband of somebody or other. But she didn't have the slightest idea who played the leading male role in "Birth of a Nation." As if anyone could forget Henry S. Walthall!

On checking on movie history I discovered that Alla Nazimova, the Russian actress, did have a chance in Hollywood 15 years ago, failed to please the directors, and was fired off the lot. That didn't interest me. I was thinking of the magnificent actress I knew on the stage. In Ibsen's "Doll's House," for instance. That was long, long ago. But memory's eye can still see her, lying on her stomach on the floor, her black silk-clad legs kicking in the air in sheer joy over something or other.

Nazimova, it appears, has come back. Ethel Vance's novel, "Escape," centers around an elderly woman, formerly a great actress, condemned to death in a Nazi concentration camp. Of the efforts of her son to save her. And of his love affair with a countess.

It shouldn't have been hard to find the son and the countess. Robert Taylor and the lovely Norma Shearer would be "naturals."

But for the mother? Well, now, let's see. "We gotta have an actress for that. An actress who can act."

"Who was that woman—that Russian?"

And so, Nazimova! I trust that after all this I've written about the Nazimova I remember she'll steal the show. If not—well, many's the time I've put my money on the wrong horse.

JUDGE ART PIECES—These juror-artists judged paintings, works of sculpture and crafts yesterday afternoon at 60 Peachtree street, where Atlantans will show their works in the National Art Week exhibit. Left to right are Leroy Jackson, supervisor of art at Bass Junior High school and chairman of the judging committee; Ben Shute, Mrs. Julian Harris, secretary of the jury; Julian H. Harris, sculptor and chairman of the exhibition committee for the National Art Week, and L. P. Skidmore, director of the High Museum of Art.

poll I can forecast the result. Trousers can be given home repairs which will forestall arrest under the indecent exposure statute. But paper-thin, tire is something else. Besides, if the worst comes to the worst—which it damn near has—I can stay at home and write my drive letter. But what's the use of a car if it must stay at home?

One Dr. Wong, a Chinese horticulturist residing in Michigan, is said to have discovered a way to raise a seedless watermelon. Which stirs to the depth of my soul.

What does a Chinese know about watermelons, especially if he lives in Michigan? I don't care how many degrees he has. Besides, who wants a seedless watermelon? If it were not for the object of collecting seeds who'd give a melon-cutting party and invite everybody in the county?

I had an uncle once who spent years and finally achieved success in raising a tomato with a fuzz on it like a peach. But it turned out, oddly, that the vast consuming public didn't like fuzz on tomatoes. My uncle admitted afterward he'd have done better developing a peach with a smooth skin like a tomato. But he was discouraged by then and decided to stick to cotton. He said he knew he'd lose money on every bale he raised, but, heck, a man has to do something.

Nazi Hierarchy Plot Charged In Argentina

Military Drills Held With Firearms, Newspaper Says.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 22.—(UP)—The newspaper Critica today described an alleged Nazi-Fascist plan for division of Buenos Aires into four districts controlled by a hierarchy of Nazi officials as a step toward rapid dissemination of totalitarian ideas in Argentina. Critica named Godofredo Sandstete as gauleiter of the Nazi hierarchy in Buenos Aires and charged that his organization, with members wearing Nazi uniforms and insignia, held military drills with firearms.

The newspaper also charged that a "Mussolini brigade" of Italians between 18 and 30 years of age had been constituted recently to support the Nazis and were equipped with firearms.

The newspaper alleged that the first Buenos Aires district, headed by Ricardo Strassburger, includes the downtown business section; the second district, headed by Henry Mosch, comprises the territory along the River Plate embracing the Belgrano residential area; the third district, placed under the leadership of Otto Drenker, covers the Palermo residential zone, while the fourth district, confided to Hans von Horsten, takes in the large western part of the city where the poor live.

Maritime Session Will Hear Welles

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, will give the principal address at the opening of the first Inter-American Maritime Conference at the Pan-American Union here Monday, it was announced today.

Other speakers will be Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the union, and one of the delegates from Latin America yet to be announced.

The conference was called by the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee, of which Welles is chairman, to seek ways and means to counteract abnormal conditions in inter-American shipping occasioned by the European conflict.

Charge Is Dismissed In Egg-Hurling Case

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Police Judge Robert S. Starcher today dismissed a disorderly conduct charge placed against George Lipton, 18, after an egg splattered the automobile in which Wendell L. Willkie rode while on an election campaign visit here October 18.

Lipton, a mailing room employee for a publishing company, testified that he tossed the wrapper from a candy bar in "the general direction" of the Republican presidential nominee's car, but that he had no knowledge of the egg throwing.

The arresting officer did not appear to testify in the case.

Astor Descendant Leads Volunteers

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—No. 1 man named for army service at local draft board No. 32 today was John Astor Drayton, a great-grandson of the first John Jacob Astor in this country and a nephew of William Phillips, ambassador to Italy. His order number was 371 but he was the first in his district to volunteer.

Painters Urge American Art Appreciation

300 Paintings and Works of Sculpture Judged for Exhibit.

Atlanta and Georgia artists are tossing aside the pictures of stilted old cathedrals in totalitarian countries and are urging friends to do the same. They want more appreciation of American art and to have in every home and office some piece by an American artist.

To foster this plan more than 300 paintings and pieces of sculpture went before a group of art judges yesterday afternoon at 60 Peachtree street, to be studied and selected or weeded out of the exhibit. Most of the work by local artists for hanging was accepted and only about one-fifth was considered not good enough for the show.

WPA workers prepared the exhibition halls and the contributing artists came from an area around Atlanta.

The exhibits will be on display from next Monday until Saturday from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., it was announced yesterday by Julian Harris, sculptor, chairman of the exhibition committee for the National Art Week sales exhibit.

U.S. Loans Granted For 3,961 Homes

Atlanta Housing Authority has contracted for United States Housing Authority loans to build 3,961 homes at an estimated total development cost of $17,430,000. The USHA has announced on the completion of its third year.

In all, the public housing program has resulted in the completion or start of construction of 109,233 homes, or about one-third more than there are in the city of Atlanta.

The national authority has recently completed arrangements for the erection of 21 projects, providing 6,408 homes for families of army and navy personnel of workers in defense industries.

Non-Skid Safety Strips To Be Put on Highways

Non-skid safety strips—first tested on U. S. Route No. 41 between Cartersville and Calhoun, will be placed along numerous "slippery when wet" highways in Georgia, the traffic service department of the State Highway Department announced yesterday.

The "safety strips," 24-inch-wide strips of asphalt covered with crushed granite, are placed at the outer edges of the highway.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Sunday's lesson, the eighth chapter of Luke, is a study in attitudes—attitudes toward the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, interpreted by Jesus in the remarkable parable of the sower. The golden text, "Take heed, therefore, how ye hear," Luke 8:18, is the crowning admonition of this lesson.

Jesus was on His second preaching tour of Galilee. It was in the late summer of A. D. 28. He was in Capernaum at the time of the notable parables recorded in this lesson. "A great multitude came together, and they of every city resorted unto Him," we are told by Luke.

Jesus started talking to them in the house where He was stopping, probably Peter's home; but the crowd rapidly grew, and He went outside the house and stood near the shore of the beautiful sea, where He continued to preach to the multitude, pausing now and then to heal some afflicted person in the great audience. At last the crowd was so great, and pressed so eagerly upon Him, that He got into a boat and pushed a few yards away from the shore, that He might be seen and heard by all of the people.

His use of the parable as a teaching process has never been equaled by any other teacher in all the world. One will do well to read not only this eighth chapter of Luke, but the other passages in the New Testament recording the parables of Jesus.

In the particular parable before us, that of the sower and the soils, Jesus pointed out in powerful emphasis the various attitudes toward the Gospel. Some seed fell by the wayside, some upon the rocky soil, some among thorns, and some into good soil.

Later, when the disciples asked Jesus to interpret the parable of the sower and the soils, He told them that the seed falling on the hard soil represents the people who hear the Gospel, but whose hearts are hardened by having become the pathway of every sort of trespassing thought, and there is no chance for the Gospel to find

New Drug May Cure Tuberculosis

ROCHESTER, Minn., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Mayo Foundation doctors today had under investigation a new drug of the sulfanilamide group, called promin, as a possible tuberculosis remedy.

Trials in guinea pigs with experimental tuberculosis have appeared promising, the doctors—W. H. Feldman, H. C. Hinshaw and H. E. Moses—said.

Their report showed that guinea pigs with experimental tuberculosis lived when treated with promin while all of the 20 untreated animals were dead in 82 days. Thirteen of the 29 animals treated with promin were living after 164 days. The Mayo doctors said this fact suggested that the drug was of value as a remedy.

Greatest Shopping Crowd in City's History Sets Record for After-Thanksgiving Sale

NORTH SIDE, SOUTH SIDE From all over town and from all over Georgia the people thronged yesterday to the great Constitution-sponsored after-Thanksgiving sale.

ALL OVER TOWN Stores were crowded to the doors and extra forces of sales clerks joined the regular staffs in nearly all the stores to serve the city's greatest shopping crowd.

FREE RIDES Street cars and buses offered free rides from 9 to 10 in the morning, 18,000 rode. Suburban buses, free from 9 until 12, were increased by 60 per cent over regular service.

HERE'S THE TRAFFIC Traffic officers battled all day long to keep the endless lines of cars moving, and succeeded well, without a single bad tangle to tie things up. Veteran officers said they had never seen heavy traffic extended over so long a period. Parking lots were jammed by 9 o'clock, and officers removed all restrictions on parking against a yellow curb. No accidents were reported.

PACKED BUSES Never before had the street transportation system borne so big a burden all at once as the throngs which crowded it during the first rush of the morning traffic.

STREET SCENE The throng pictured above gives some idea of the size of the crowd which turned all Atlanta yesterday into a carnival of bargain-hunting. With prices low, money seemingly plentiful, and the town full of people, merchants did booming business on this history-making sale day. People came early, stayed late, ate free at some restaurants, saw free movies, found many bargains, went home happy.

LIKE A RIVER The stream of traffic flowed endlessly as, urged by the necessity of getting Christmas shopping done, the thronging thousands moved from one store to another. Men, caught up in the sea of bundle-laden femininity, felt helpless, and were content to drift along with the tide. Department store officials saw in the big day an indication of what may be the biggest Christmas season yet.

Extra Salespeople Are Called To Handle Overflow Crowds

By DEEZY SCOTT.

Since Atlanta was Marthasville and early Christmas shoppers, who had the forethought to get their presents bought early, wandered through the general store, there never has been such a shopping day here as yesterday.

From the opening of store doors in downtown Atlanta at 9 o'clock in the morning, and even before, the streets and sidewalks were jammed with folks from all over the state who came to take advantage of the greatest sale that Atlanta stores, great and small, have ever offered.

Hundreds of extra salespeople were needed to accommodate the crowds who thronged each department in the stores where special items were on sale.

"This is the first time I've ever come to Atlanta and didn't have something I just had to buy, but I wouldn't have missed this city-wide sale for anything," one woman said as she got caught in a swirl of humanity in the aisle of a large Atlanta store.

Salespeople literally were on their toes, and perhaps the happiest crowd of shoppers ever to descend on the town made the hard work easier by its good nature and willingness to wait.

Noticeably absent in the after-Thanksgiving bargain buyers were the heroines of hundreds of cartoons, women who grab and fight for a dress, or piece of material. There was plenty for everybody and apparently everybody in Atlanta and neighboring cities were around to get their share of the bargains. Man and boy, tots and old women were all a part of the great shopping spree.

Novelties offered as Christmas gifts were popular buys, of course, but everything from shoes and sluggies to tables and toilet articles were in demand.

Prosperity was in the air; and the personnel of the stores are prepared to handle similarly huge crowds right up until the last minute Christmas shopper leaves late on Christmas Eve. The rush is on, and the cry may well be "come and get it."

Whether you have a few suitcases or many items of furniture to be moved you can find somebody for the job by turning to Classification 84 — "Moving and Storage."

All Restaurants Are Crowded By Thousands of Shoppers

By BETTY MATHIS.

Forsyth street was crowded. Broad street was jammed and walking up Peachtree street was like trying to break through the Alabama first-string line without interference. They were all shoppers taking advantage of bargains advertised in Thursday's Constitution.

Most of the crowd was walking fast, intent on the bargains anticipated at the next store. The very old and the very young, who were very much in evidence, slowed up the more agile shoppers considerably, however.

Ladies stepped out of their limousines in front of large department stores clutching copies of The Constitution and shouldering their way into the crowds.

Friends passing were ignored by women bent on but one thing—bargains—and friends less intent were forced to collar their acquaintances if they wished their presence acknowledged.

But even ladies—and men, too—headed straight for a sale had to take time out to eat. Even the species Shopper Americanus develops an appetite around noon after three hours pushing through crowds and, walking up steps because there is no elevator room. But the shopper, very likely, was disappointed, if she wanted a quick lunch, because it was almost impossible to obtain a place in restaurant, tearoom, lunch counter or hot dog stand.

Lines were long at all eating establishments. And when the patient seeker-after-food finally got a table, she was usually informed that everything on the menu but the mashed potatoes and the rice and gravy was gone. Reducers had a hard day of it.

The green salads, the lean lamb chops had disappeared long before 1 o'clock. One cafeteria reported double business over the usual noon-hour rush. Others reported from 50 to 75 per cent increases.

Difficult, also, was finding a place to park fitful Junior and little sister, who were along on the shopping expedition because the schools were having a holiday. Department store nurseries to take care of the little ones were filled to overflowing, and bewildered mothers and children, and even a father or two, were having trouble getting together again at the appointed time.

Theaters reported large increases over normal Friday business, with estimates running from 10 to 30 per cent. Theatermen pointed out that the increase was especially indicative of good business; since the week contained a holiday, when crowds are always heavy, and consequently make for lighter business on other days of the week.

Columns Proposed For Auditorium

Gleaming, white columns of the ante-bellum south may be the motif of the fire razed front portion of the municipal auditorium when it is rebuilt.

Dr. T. C. Davidson, prominent Atlanta physician, yesterday suggested to Councilman John A. White, chairman of the city council committee in charge of plans for reconstructing the burned area, that a "Gone With the Wind" front be built.

White referred Dr. Davidson's letter to engineers of Robert & Company, who are preparing revised plans for rebuilding the damaged structure.

Illegal Balloting Charged in Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 22.—(AP)—

Charles E. Young, Democratic state chairman, said tonight in his party's first formal comment on the governorship result that Governor Payne Ratner's apparent reelection by 427 votes had been accomplished by illegal out-of-state absentee ballots.

In a sharply worded statement, Young added that supporters of William H. Burke, the Democratic nominee, "propose to carry on" a fight in the courts with "every means and every resource" to win the governorship for the Little River stock man.

Burke's attorneys already have filed one supreme court suit asking the supreme court to compel the state board of canvassers to permit Democratic representatives to see affidavits detached from the out-of-state ballots.

Carroll Official Studies Attack By Grand Jury

Chappell Says He Is Bewildered at Proposal To Raise Bond.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
CARROLLTON, Ga., Nov. 22.—Admitting he was a bit bewildered by a suggestion that he raise his own bond from $2,000 to $15,000, Roads and Revenue Commissioner Hamp Chappell today answered a Carroll grand jury slap at his administration with the observation "it is all based on the charges of a bunch of convicts who have already sworn that they had sworn to lie."

Courthouse opinion agreed that the commissioner would be in the position of hiring a quasi-detective to track down his own administration of county supplies if he followed the jury recommendation that he engage a yard foreman at the prison to put the magnifying glass on every item entering and leaving the institution.

Chappell, by no means downcast, said he hoped "God will forgive all my accusers, and none of them will have to face the ordeal I have had." As to whether he would follow any of the recommendations, he said he would study them first.

Louis Turner, under three-to-five-year sentence in the Peek playing, spent an hour before the Carroll grand jury here Tuesday and a day later the jury's charge of irregularities at the prison camp followed.

The jury, headed by John Conner, charged that "several things that have cost the county a considerable amount of money have happened at the prison and reported that a citizen had complained to Chappell that his (the citizen's) life had been endangered because 'on several occasions long-term convicts had been allowed to be at liberty without guards.'"

The commissioner denied convicts had been given such liberty.

Rome Suit Tests Validity Of 'John Doe' Warrant

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
ROME, Ga., Nov. 22.—A suit testing the validity of a "John Doe" warrant, with plaintiff asking $3,000 damages, was on file here today in Floyd superior court, returnable to the regular January term.

Counsel for A. T. Yates, of Walker county, brought the suit against Glenn Falls Indemnity company, with agents in Rome. The company is bondholder for Sheriff H. C. Shelby, of Walker county.

Plaintiff charges in his petition that a Walker county deputy sheriff, Tobe Beard, in company with two other men, conducted a search of plaintiff's home on October 14, 1939, with the use of a "John Doe" warrant. The petition declared that there was nobody by the name of John Doe living in plaintiff's home.

Hogansville Extending Water, Sewer Systems
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
LAGRANGE, Ga., Nov. 22.—Extension of the water mains and sewage disposal system in Hogansville is under way, with Troup County Sanitation Engineer E. B. Barnwell in charge of the work. The project will cost approximately $30,000 and is scheduled for completion by March, with Works Projects Administration labor aiding county forces.

The project is designed to serve 200 additional houses. Plans for the extension call for laying of 14,000 feet of water mains and 3,000 feet of sewerage, as well as erection of fire hydrants at strategic points.

Nut Taken From Lung, Experiment Child Dies
EXPERIMENT, Ga., Nov. 22.—(P)—Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Murphy, of Experiment, had read about those near-miracle operations to remove object from children's lungs. So when Peggy June Murphy, 20-months-old swallowed a peanut and it lodged in her lung tract, they rushed her to Atlanta.

The peanut was removed successfully, but the shock of the operation, physicians said, caused the child to die. Funeral services were held today.

Richmond County Man Attacked by Rabid Fox

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 22.—(P)—The first mad fox killed in Richmond county was reported today by Walter Dobbins, who lives near the Burke county line.

Dobbins said the fox attacked him and was beaten off and killed with a harness gear. The fox attacked and bit half a dozen dogs, he said.

ARRIVES HERE—Free of handcuffs or any other visible sign that would mark him as a prisoner, Seymour Weiss (right) New Orleans hotel executive and intimate political associate of the late Senator Huey P. Long, walked from the Terminal railway station to serve a four-year term in the federal penitentiary for income tax evasion. Behind him is Deputy Marshall Joe Burglass.

Weiss Enters Fearing Roofs, Federal Prison U. S. Solons Quit Chambers

U. S. Agents Bring Them Here To Begin Serving Sentences.

Three prominent Louisianans, one of them Seymour Weiss, wealthy New Orleans hotel man and former treasurer of Huey Long's political organization, entered the federal penitentiary here yesterday to begin serving sentences that were outgrowths of a federal investigation of the Louisiana political machine.

The trio arrived at the Terminal station during the morning in the company of two federal agents. After breakfast in the station restaurant they left for the penitentiary.

With Weiss were Louis C. Lesage, former oil company executive, and J. Emory Adams, a relative of Dr. James Monroe Smith, former president of Louisiana State University, who is now in prison.

Lesage and Adams are under sentence of one year each in connection with the alleged fraudulent sale of the Bienville hotel in New Orleans to the state university.

Weiss, who was given four years on an income tax evasion charge, was also implicated in the hotel sale, and pleaded guilty to conspiring to violate the Connally "hot oil" act.

Volunteers Exceed Quota in Ben Hill

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
FITZPATRICK, Ga., Nov. 22.—Volunteers will fill Ben Hill county's first two draft quotas more than five times, it was reported today by local selective service officials.

The county's quota for the December call was 20, and for the January call, as anticipated from the percentage figures announced from Washington, will be nine. Two registrants already have enlisted in the army, covering the December quota, and 48 others have asked for voluntary induction, more than five times the anticipated January call.

Two adjoining counties also have reported volunteer applications far in excess of their anticipated quotas. Coffee with 41 and Turner with 19.

NINE MEN ENLIST AT ROME STATION
ROME, Ga., Nov. 22.—Nine more enlistments this week have boosted the army recruiting total in Rome to 52 thus far in November, local recruiting officer. The nine were listed as George Benton Barrett, of Calhoun; Jule Paul Morgan, of Aragon; Robert Deyo Oliver and Aaron Damascus Parker, of Trion; James Edward Scott, of Rome; J. M. Estes, of Felton; John Loyd Hicks, of Armuchee, and Buford Sneed, of Centre, Ala.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 21.—(P)—Jackie Hunt, of Marshall, scored four touchdowns against West Virginia Wesleyan today to set a new all-time college record of 27 for a single season. Marshall won, 67 to 0.

Family Visited Twice by Death In Few Hours

Alexander H. Cash Dies; Funeral Rites Set for Tomorrow.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
CARROLLTON, Ga., Nov. 22.—Death twice visited the family of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Aderhold within 18 hours to sadden the Thanksgiving holiday.

Alexander H. Cash, 82, Mrs. Aderhold's father, died yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Margaret Missouri McBrayer, 97, aunt of Dr. Aderhold, died this morning.

Mr. Cash, for 35 years a resident of Atlanta, is survived by two daughters, Mrs. W. A. Aderhold, and Mrs. A. C. Aderhold, wife of the warden of Fort Leavenworth prison; two sons, W. W. Cash, of Atlanta, and Cliff Cash of Thomasville; a brother, David Cash, of Smyrna, and one sister, Miss Missouri Cash, of Texarkana, Ark.

Rites for Mr. Cash will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Nellie Dodd Memorial Methodist church in Atlanta. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

Surviving Mrs. McBrayer are two nephews, Dr. Aderhold, and A. C. Aderhold, and one niece, Mrs. Eura Phillips, of Carrollton. Rites for Mrs. McBrayer will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Powell's Chapel in Villa Rica, with interment in the church cemetery.

Annual Sales Event Draws Record Crowd

ceptionally well-handled by officers who allowed no bad tangles to form. Most of the rules of parking were discarded when parking lots filled up, and yellow lined curbs were used for traffic.

Traffic Problem.
Officer J. F. Sims, at one of the busiest down-town intersections, said it was the heaviest traffic in Atlanta since last Christmas, and was probably the heaviest in history.

"There is no lull in it," he said. "Foot traffic and auto both, just keep coming, steadily, all day. One woman who had passed my corner about four times stuck her head out of the car and said 'Officer, where in the world can I find a place to park?'"

"I said, 'Lady, you probably can find a place about a mile this side of Lawrenceville, Ga.' And she said 'I just come from Lawrenceville.' And I said 'All right, you find, where there is a yellow curb there or not. Just don't block a fire-plug.' She must have, for I didn't see her again. That's the only way you could handle them today. You couldn't worry about yellow lines. You had to keep things moving and get them parked somewhere. I never saw traffic like it."

Streets Crowded.
Foot traffic on the sidewalks was equally as heavy and to walk through the jostling sea of bundled-laden shoppers in the afternoon was adventure.

Everything went smoothly. Detective Superintendent J. A. McKibben assigned special crews of detectives to watch for purse-snatchers and pickpockets and the presence of the police force had its effect, for by late afternoon no crime of the sort was reported.

Many of the leg-weary sought rest and relaxation in movies during the day. Loew's Grand and the Rialto theaters, which gave free tickets, saw lines beginning to form when they opened at 11 o'clock, and other theaters did a flourishing trade.

Most Were Women.
Most of the shoppers, of course, were women. Now and then in a sea of females a lone husband, brought down town to carry bundles, could be seen looking forlornly about him, but in the main it was a woman's day.

One giant ex-athlete, towering above the crowd looking expectantly about him, explained his predicament to reporters.

"I'm looking for a needle in a haystack," he said. "A needle with a red hat on. And I see 16 red hats from where I stand but I don't see the right face under any of them."

"For two weeks," he complained, "I've been telling her to get started on her Christmas shopping, and she didn't do anything about it. Then The Constitution came Thursday morning and she went into a sort of trance. She made a list a mile long and came charging down here into this. Funny thing about it, I'll be beaten to death and she'll be fresh as a daisy when it's over. I'd rather play 60 minutes in the Rose Bowl."

The Christmas spirit was evident. Stores were decorated in Christmas colors. In one, chimes played carols, and many packages in Christmas wrapping were on display.

In every way it was a big day, bespeaking a prosperity reminiscent of the halcyon days before depression.

Ordinary Joseph Law, Of Burke County, Dies
WAYNESBORO, Ga., Nov. 22.—(P)—Joseph A. Law, ordinary and clerk of the Burke county commission, died unexpectedly at his home today.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

A native of Burke, Mr. Law had played a prominent part in political and civic activities of the section. He had been ordinary more than a decade.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Miss Emma Law, of Richmond, Va.; a brother, R. A. Law, of Waynesboro, and a sister, Miss Annie Law, of Waynesboro.

H. W. Hall Rites Set for Tomorrow

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 22.—Harry Webster Hall, 51, farmer, of near Marietta, died in an Atlanta hospital last night of blood poisoning believed to have originated from an infected hand.

Rites will be held in Sharon Baptist church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, with the Rev. Henry Bolling officiating. Interment will be in the churchyard.

Mr. Hall had lived here the last two years, moving from Forsyth county. He had been a member of Sharon church since 1913.

Surviving are his wife; two daughters, Mrs. E. C. Harrison, of Columbus, and Miss Barrie Hall, of Marietta; two sisters, Mrs. C. T. Dempsey and Mrs. L. E. Kidd, of Atlanta, and one brother, J. S. Hall, of Sewanee.

U. S. Is Asked To Take Action In Vote Probe

Evidence of Widespread Stuffing of Boxes Is Reported.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—Reporting evidence of "widespread stuffing of ballot boxes" in three Kentucky counties, the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee today asked government prosecutors to take immediate action.

Chairman Gillette, Democrat Iowa, announced that the special senate committee appointed to police this year's elections had voted to turn over all its evidence on the Kentucky complaint and all similar investigations to the special Justice Department unit recently established to prosecute alleged election frauds and irregularities.

"The most flagrant violations were in Harlan county," Gillette told reporters. "Ballot boxes there were stuffed for the 1940 elections."

He added that committee investigators had reported that in some areas more votes were counted in the "primary election than ballots delivered for the purpose of the election."

"In one precinct investigators found only 94 votes had actually been cast although 643 votes were tabulated with 525 persons registered," the senator said. "In five precincts with only 1,795 registered voters there were 2,216 votes tabulated."

Among evidence turned over to the Justice Department prosecutors, the senator said, were affidavits from numerous persons who were not registered and did not vote but "whose names were tabulated."

Film Firm Seeks Tax Reduction

A suit for an injunction to restrain Fulton county from assessing Twentieth Century-Fox Film Company for $93,000 taxes for 1940 was filed yesterday in Fulton superior court.

The petition named Guy A. Moore, tax collector, and T. Earl Suttles, tax collector, claiming the $93,000 assessment on the company's motion picture films had been arbitrarily fixed by the tax assessors.

The assessors had assessed the film at 60 per cent of their market value when the company declined to make a tax return upon demand. The company claimed the assessment was too high and Judge A. L. Etheridge signed an order temporarily restraining Suttles from collecting the taxes. Date for hearing the petition will be set.

Dougherty Leads In Tree Orders

ALBANY, Ga., Nov. 22.—(P)—Dougherty county farmers are leading all others in ordering pine seedlings from the Herty nursery here, having placed orders for 350,000 to date, J. C. Richardson, county agent, said. He expects the Dougherty total for the season to be between 500,000 and 600,000.

According to M. E. Murphy, superintendent of the nursery, 952,745 seedlings were shipped in the first three days of the season and, following a Thanksgiving holiday, today's orders brought the total to 1,118,545. He expects to ship 10,000,000 of the young trees this season.

Richardson said he hopes, through handling and transplanting demonstrations, to reduce last year's 40 to 50 per cent loss of trees to 10 per cent this year.

Improved Box Shaper Patented by Marietta

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 22.—A new box shaper, designed to automatically shape cartons, has been patented by George S. Spake, employee of a local mill.

The device, which enables a high-speed machine to turn out as many as 60 boxes a minute, embodies working principles heretofore said never to have been used in any type of box shaper.

Stanford Favors Texas Team as Bowl Foe, Report Says.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Sports trail detectors: The grapevine from the west carries the report that the Texas Aggies and Nebraska will be the No. 1 and No. 2 choices, respectively, of Stanford for a Rose Bowl playmate. That is, figuring Minnesota definitely is out. Howard Holmes, fullback on the Peoria, Ariz., high school team, is top-flight, although deaf and dumb. Quarterback Wendell Holly has learned the sign language so he can communicate with Holmes. Ed "Strangler" Lewis will open a new inn at Long Beach, Calif., Christmas Day. A purse total of $200,000 is in the offing for P. G. A. sharpshooters for 1941. Winter baseball leagues, most of them playing on Sundays, are thriving in Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Diego, San Francisco, Sacramento, San Mateo, and other California spots. Lou Stringer and Lou Novakoff, Cub rookies, are playing in the Los Angeles circuit.

The Brooklyn Dodgers will hold an Ace Parker Day and the New York Giants plan a Mel Hein Day, but Ima Dunne wants to know if last Saturday at Hanover won't go down in Red Friesell's book as his day of daze.

Signal calling from the bench has come in for considerable attention this fall, but it's as old as football.

Biff Jones relates that when he was coaching at Louisiana State, and a game with Mississippi was coming up, he was informed that Wash. L. S. U.'s veteran Negro rubber, couldn't be counted in on the trip to Mississippi.

"He hasn't been there since 1902," Biff was enlightened. "In those days the schools weren't particularly particular about living up to the spirit of the rules, and the L. S. U. bench strategy board used to write a play on the inside of a drinking cup and Wash, as water boy, would head right for the quarterback."

"On this particular day Wash was doing his duty as he seen it, and the quarterback was drinking and getting information simultaneously, when a couple of Mississippi players and an official walked up to be next in line for a drink."

"Wash sized up the situation immediately, reached out with his big paw and crushed the cup until it would have taken crowsbars and blow torches to get it apart, and headed for the sidelines."

"After the game Wash had a start of about a block in getting out of town, but that was three blocks more than he needed. He hasn't been back since."

18 Seniors End Their Careers With Cornell

Dry Field Favors Snavelly Veteran Team at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—(P) Franklin Field's largest crowd in a decade and a record crowd for this rivalry will be packed into the University of Pennsylvania's big double-decker stadium tomorrow when Penn battles Cornell for the Eastern Ivy League football championship.

All seats—78,205 of them—were sold 10 days ago, with Cornell alone accounting for 18,500.

For 18 of the 22 Cornell first and second-stringers, this will be their farewell appearance. With the added incentive of making up for last week's much-publicized upset by Dartmouth, the Ithacans are expected to "shoot the works" from the starting whistle to retain their Ivy League crown.

Penn, beaten only by Michigan and tied surprisingly by Harvard, will field a starting backfield that never has operated as a unit, but that packs a double-barreled offensive threat in Hallocks Francis Reagan and Paul Wexler. Both can pass and run, and they are fast enough to be breakaway threats on pass interceptions.

With a weather forecast of cloudy and colder, the teams should have a dry field. This favors Cornell, which has banked heavily on its aerial game, featuring Hal McCullough and "Pop" Scholl.

Probable lineups:
CORNELL Pos. Penn
Schmuck L.E. Kyzanski
Van Order L.G. Mendelson
Dunbar R.G. Frick
Fineran R.T. Hunt
Conti R.T. Ward
Draho R.T. Chander

No Tea Party

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 22.—May-be Auburn, facing a tremendous football force on the morrow, ought to try the fine bit of strategy employed by soldiers of the Confederacy at Lynchburg, Va., that time.

If football weren't hidebound by such rules as only 11 men can play at a time, it might work. A great movement of boys in Union suits transpired, and really all the Confederates had was a train.

So all one night this empty train was run back and forth as if transporting a great army of soldiers, and the next day the boys in their Union suits were nowhere to be seen around Lynchburg.

In changing their practice site from Greensboro, N. C., to Lynchburg, in the hopes of having better luck on an eastern invasion, Auburn overlooked one little item.

The realization of it shocked Coaches Jack Meagher, Porter Grant and Ralph Jordan no end, as they have been trying to avoid all seeming hexes this time. Four previous trips when Greensboro was a training base were disastrous.

And in moving to Lynchburg, the Plainsmen practiced virtually in the shadow of Appomattox, where General Lee surrendered to General Grant.

But, as someone reminded Meagher, the Plainsmen were working with no thought of surrender in the battle of Boston tomorrow.

It will not be, this meeting of Auburn and Boston College, any sort of a Boston tea party, either.

Game's the Thing

The trip to Boston has been made most pleasant by the estimable gentlemen along. Messrs. Jack House and Fred Parker, of the Birmingham papers; Public Relations Agent Elmer Salter, Auburn; Pat Moulton, Mobile, and Max Mosely, Montgomery, are among those traveling with us.

It gave us all quite a kick late yesterday to see the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, but we're still searching for the Trail of the Lonesome Pine.

As we all lapsed into the poetic aspects of things, Jack House recalled the story of the cub reporter out on his first big assignment.

He was sent out to cover an earthquake, and so in a great effort to color up his story, the cub wrote—

"God Almighty sat high up on a hillside today as death and destruction were wreaked on this town by a violent earthquake."

When the editor saw the story, he let out a loud yell.

"Send a wire to Jones," he shouted. "Forget about earthquake. Send 1,000 additional words on God Almighty sitting on hillside."

And so we had best skip the poetic aspects, for we will ignore any flippant wires to rush 1,000 additional on Lee's surrender at Appomattox.

Tomorrow's game carries such significance nationally that it requires no real effort to keep our minds on it, anyway.

Bowl Angle

It just occurs there is one bowl angle that has not been touched upon. And that concerns, first of all, the outcome of the Ole Miss-Mississippi State game.

If State should win, for instance, then there would be a real scrap between Alabama and State to see which would be eligible for a bowl.

Alabama has made a mighty comeback this season. And it is not at all out of bounds to think that Alabama might end up as a principal in one of the better bowls.

So far, only Tennessee has beaten Alabama and Tennessee, of course, is a bowl cinch providing an in-and-out Kentucky team doesn't exercise an old jinx.

Personally, I don't think a jinx is going to help Kentucky a bit. The Wildcats might be in a better position if they could use guns.

Long Odds

Generally, the Boston Eagles, unbeaten and untied, are quoted as 10-3 favorites for the game with Auburn at Fenway park.

These odds seem rather high, but Boston College deserves to be rated as the prime favorite. After all, while there have been some slighting remarks made as to the Eagles' schedule, they have humbled Tulane, Temple, Georgetown and others.

There is a disposition to sing the blues in the local papers, with references being made to B. C. stars being injured, but that is accepted with a grain of salt. It smacks too much of the hokum.

Anyway, Charley O'Rourke, the passing star, is okay, and he seems to be about all B. C. needs.

Coach Frank Leahy admits he has a great team, and it is borne out by the record. So if Auburn should win, it will go down as the year's greatest upset.

South Carolina Nips Miami Eleven, 7 to 2

Enright's Team Tallies Only Touchdown on 57-Yard First-Quarter Drive.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 22.—(P)—South Carolina's Gamecocks broke loose with an explosive 57-yard touchdown drive in the first quarter and staved off several desperate Miami surges tonight to defeat the Hurricanes, 7 to 2, before 11,104 spectators.

FIRST PERIOD.
South Carolina smashed 57 yards to a touchdown after Lowry intercepted a pass to set the stage. Arrowsmith, Grygo, Urban and Lowry worked the ball to the 19. Grygo knifed through center for 15 yards, and four plays later crashed tackle for the score. Arrowsmith placekicked the point and South Carolina led, 7 to 0, as the period ended.

SECOND PERIOD.
Fox intercepted one of Grygo's passes and Miami drove 38 yards on a march that set up a safety for the Hurricanes. Coates' dashes figured in the advance, which bogged down on the South Carolina two. Arrowsmith intentionally grounded a pass out of bounds from the end zone, making it an automatic safety and two points for Miami. Later, the Hurricanes, who had completely taken the play away from South Carolina, moved 63 yards, but the half-time whistle caught them on the South Carolina seven and they trailed at the end of the quarter, 7 to 2.

THIRD PERIOD.

Vols To Meet Aroused 'Cats At Knoxville

Kentucky Primed for 'Best Game' But Is Underdog Today.

By WILLIAM J. TUCKER.
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 22.—(UP)—A heavy, experienced University of Kentucky football team tonight was ready to play its "best game" tomorrow against Tennessee, but most folks believed that would hardly be good enough to upset Bob Neyland's bowl-bound Volunteers.

"We're going to be in there trying every minute," said Kentucky's coach, Ab Kirwan. But even he had scant hope the Wildcats would be able to do what no other southern eleven has been able to do in three seasons.

Neyland characteristically belittled the Vols' chances and said "we expect to have a hard time stopping Erma Allen and the Kentucky aerial attack." Neyland spoke from experience because Allen completed 13 out of 18 tosses against Tennessee last year, although the Vols had little trouble winning the ball game, 19 to 0.

Nearly 30,000 fans were expected for the game, which is Tennessee's home-coming and in the past has been played on Thanksgiving Day. The uncertainty over the Turkey Day date this year caused the game to be scheduled on the Saturday between the two Thanksgivings.

NEEDS VICTORY.

Kentucky needs to win tomorrow to salvage what otherwise will have been a disappointing season. This was to have been the Wildcats' year as very few men were lost after the 1939 season. But after rolling up big scores on minor league opponents, they tied Vanderbilt and Georgia, went down by the lumping count of 25 to 0 by the hands of Alabama and were upset 9 to 7 by West Virginia last week. The team's only top showing was against Georgia Tech, which bowed, 26 to 7, before a clicking combination of Wilcats.

Tennessee, on the other hand, has been rolling right along after taking a 14-0 licking from Southern California in the last Rose Bowl game. That Tennessee's first loss since Vanderbilt defeated the Vols toward the end of the 1937 season. The Vols have finished at least two touchdowns out in front of every foe this fall.

OLD JINX.

On Kentucky's side is an old jinx, which didn't work last year nor the year before when the Vols rolled up a top-heavy score on the Wildcats as a warm-up for the Miami Orange Bowl, in which they subsequently defeated Oklahoma. But three times in four years Kentucky teams held the Vols to ties in the last game of the season to spoil otherwise perfect Tennessee records. The ties were played in 1928, '29 and '31.

If Tennessee wins tomorrow as expected, the Vols will need only to get by Vanderbilt next week to complete their third successive clean sweep in the south. They are in line for the Sugar Bowl with Boston College as a likely opponent. If Tennessee does get in the New Orleans classic, it will be different bowls in three straight seasons for Coach Neyland's team, and that would be a record.

Dixie Sports Huddle

By ROMNEY WHEELER.
Associated Press Sports Writer.
Look for the University of Georgia to have another sensational crop of sophomores next fall to help Sinkwich-Tedesco & Company. . . . The Bullpups trounced Georgia Tech's freshmen, 36-0, in a Thanksgiving Day charity bout. . . . And Tech was supposed to have the best yearling outfit in a couple of decades. . . . You add it up.

ONE THING AT A TIME.
A Louisiana State alumnus, watching Coach Bernie Moore drill his Tigers for their game with Tulane a week hence, asked if Moore intended to give the team a new set of plays to surprise the Green Wave. . . . To which Moore snorted: "Gosh, man, we haven't learned those we have now."

ANTI-AIRCRAFTS WORKING.
Vanderbilt has no great won-and-lost record this season, but the Commodores are one of the best pass-defense teams in the nation. . . . The opposition has completed only a little better than 20 per cent of all passes thrown. . . . And on for the book: Charles Anastasio, senior L. S. U. halfback, broke his leg during his 13th minute in the Auburn game.

MINUTE MEDITATIONS.
Jack Trice in the Atlanta Constitution: "If Auburn can't beat Boston College, Coach Leahy's mighty men will play in the Sugar Bowl, probably facing Tennessee, one of the best."

PAGING MR. CONNER.
A talk about Commissioner Mike Conner cooking up a sizing report on player subsidization in the Southeastern Conference just doesn't register with Florida's footballers. . . . Asked if the commissioner had questioned them about money received under athletic scholarships, Tackle Peanuts Hull retorted: "He didn't have to. He could look at us and tell we aren't making anything."

FLORIDA FLANKMAN—One of the best ends in the south this year is Fergie Ferguson, son of the University of Florida. He will be in action today when the 'Gators meet Georgia Tech. He weighs a mere 202 pounds and stands over six feet two inches. It was Ferguson who blocked a kick to beat Boston College, 7-0, last year.

Auburn Tries for Upset Against Boston College

Blue Chips Are Down as Far as Bowl-Bound Eagles Are Concerned.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 22.—Auburn and Boston College, clashing at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon (1 p. m. Atlanta time), in Fenwood Park will be playing with the blue chips down.
That is, the blue chips will be down as far as Boston is concerned. A Sugar Bowl bid probably hangs on the outcome, as Boston College has only one other game left to play. That one is with an inferior Holy Cross team.

Auburn is prepared to make the old college try. The Plainsmen have not failed to score—or be scored upon—this season.

They are ready to fling passes with abandon. On the other hand, they have been drilled to stop the accurate aerials of Charley O'Rourke, ace B. C. back.

FIFTH EFFORT.
This is Coach Jack Meagher's fifth eastern invasion with an Auburn team, and the Plainsmen still seek their first victory. Twice against Villanova, once against Manhattan and once against Boston College, Auburn has played only to lose.

Boston College, unbeaten and untied and generally credited with having one of the largest and most powerful football teams in these United States, is a natural favorite. Betting odds are long, but in actual score few expect Boston to win by more than a touchdown.

Coach Meagher's record is that few teams ever beat Auburn by more than a point or a touchdown.
Auburn arrived today to find the weather just about as it was when they left the Loveliet Village. There is hardly a hint of chill in the air and a bright day is promised for tomorrow's game.

That will be nothing unusual for Coach Meagher. In more than 20 years of coaching, his teams have had to play only twice on rainy days. Imagine that.

AUBURN IN SHAPE.
Auburn is in fine shape with the exception of not having rampant Rufus Deal, who was left at home. Ty Irby, Bill Reynolds and Charlie Finney, cousin of Boston's Lou Finney, will carry on at fullback.

It is expected to aid the line materially to have Chet Bulger back in action. Big Gordon MacEachern is in good shape, too. So is Nick Ardillo, the fiery Cajan.

On the B. C. side there is a bit of moaning about injuries but it is significant that Charlie O'Rourke is in fine shape and that all his other backfield mates and most of the ace linemen are fit as a fiddle—and ready to go.

Two of the biggest linemen in America will face Auburn. They are Chet Gladchuck, six-foot, six-inch center, who weighs 235; and Blondy Youckos, who stands eye to eye with Gladchuck and weighs 255 as a tackle. Auburn hasn't anybody like this to put on the field, but might do very well with the speed of its smaller men.

As far as Auburn is concerned the game largely will be fought through the air. The Tigers aren't fooling themselves that they can crack the big B. C. forward wall.

On the other hand, B. C. expects to make both passes and power plays go. They figure to have the physical assets necessary to make anything go. Maybe they have. The record to date bears it out.

15,000 To View Annual Battle At Grant Field

Florida To Present Rugged Line, Led by Fergie Ferguson.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
A new spirit and coach will lead a rejuvenated Florida football team against a rebounding Georgia Tech eleven this afternoon at Grant field.

Victors over Georgia and Miami in their last two games and boasting they held the mighty Tennessee Vols to two touchdowns, the 'Gators rode into town last night with high hopes of doing what no other Florida team has ever done—beat both Georgia and Tech the same season.

However, because of their great showing against Alabama last week and the fact they are playing on their home field, the Yellow Jackets are slight favorites with those who wager on what a lot of kids will do on a gridiron.

Fifteen thousand fans are expected to watch the kickoff at 2 o'clock.

NEW TEAM.

But the crowd will be seeing a new Florida team. It will hear the bark of the quarterback, "Ready . . . shift . . . one . . . two . . . three . . . four." It will see the backs dance smartly to their positions. It will see the ends shift with them, swinging their arms in rhythm of the shift.

In short, they will see new Coach Tom Leib's new Florida team and all the trimmings.

The 'Gators brought one of the best defensive lines in the business to Atlanta. It is led by "Fergie" Ferguson, a 202-pound end; Mike Battista, a hard-charging and blocking guard, and "Peanut" Hull, big tackle. It was this line which outrushed the Bulldogs all afternoon, and it was Ferguson who blocked a kick to beat Boston College, 7-0, last year.

BEAT EAGLES.

It was this same Ferguson who blocked a punt against Boston College last season to hand the Eagles their only loss of the season, 7-0. Ferguson is quite a pass receiver, also, and the 'Gators will let fly with plenty of them against the Jackets.

Tommy Harrison, elongated tailback, will do most of the throwing. The 'Gator backfield has been the surprise of the conference this year. After the boys have learned the Notre Dame offense they started going to town. One of the guys to watch is Pat Reen, who has gained fame in two ways this season. First, he was in the clear against Georgia, stumbled and fell without a hand being placed upon him. And, second, he ran a kickoff back 102 yards against Miami for a touchdown.

The Yellow Jackets are in good condition for the game. All crip-

Minnesota Ends Back-Breaking Schedule With Wisconsin Today

Rebels Engage Maroon Team At Starkville

Penn-Cornell Clash Before 78,205; Irish Battle Northwestern.

By BILL BONI
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Minnesota, No. 1 football team in the country, comes to the end of a back-breaking schedule tomorrow and, by all logical means of reckoning, should get there with its back neither broken by defeat nor dented by a tie.

While the Gophers are taking on underdog Wisconsin at Madison, you'll have to look elsewhere for your headlines if you feel that crowds make news, for Cornell, hoping to rebound from the Dartmouth upset, and Penn will draw better than 78,000 here at Franklin Field; some 72,000 are due to see Michigan and Ohio State war at Columbus and 48,000, all they can get in the place, will be in Northwestern's Dyche stadium as the Wildcats square off against Notre Dame.

For close competition, a game that shapes up as tough as any should be once-beaten Mississippi against once-tied Mississippi State. Only the southwest, where Texas A. and M. is resting for next week's finale against Texas, and the far west, where Stanford similarly is saving its strength for California next week, lack really outstanding attractions.

As the season nears its close, with the Big Nine, the Big Three and other major teams closing out their campaigns, this is how tomorrow's major games look from here (home teams first, probable attendance in parentheses):

Penn-Cornell (78,205)—Eighteen of the 22 Cornell in and second-stringers will be playing their last game, and we miss our guess if they don't take the field with blood (figuratively) in their eyes. The Ithaca won last year, and at their best are better this year. Cornell.

Wisconsin-Minnesota (48,000)—The Badgers uncorked a surprise in the decisiveness of their victory over Indiana. But this is a different proposition. Minnesota.

Mississippi State-Mississippi (24,000)—State has at least one fine back in Billy Jefferson. Ole Miss at least two in Junior Hovious and Merle Hape. On that safety-in-numbers theory, Mississippi.

Northwestern-Notre Dame (48,000)—A vote for Northwestern.

Yale-Harvard (48,000)—Tradition alone can't pack the "Big Bowl" any more. Still, it should be a real dog-fight, with this nod to Harvard on defensive strength shown in the Penn and Princeton ties. Tennessee-Kentucky (25,000)—Even Kaintuck hadn't been dumped so unceremoniously by West Virginia. Tennessee would have to be the pick.

Baylor-Southern Methodist (15,000)—Jack Wilson's return has bolstered the Bears, but on form S. M. U. looks too good.

U. C. L. A.-Washington (40,000)—Washington, in spite of the Uclans' rally of a week ago.

Nebraska-Iowa State (25,000)—Another for the Huskers.

Ohio State-Michigan (72,000)—Michigan to finish second in the Western Conference by taking this one.

Boston College-Auburn (30,000)—The Eagles can't afford to take this lightly, but should win provided O'Rourke keeps going.

Alabama-Vanderbilt (15,000)—Alabama and Jimmy Nelson.

Pitt-Penn State (25,000)—Stringing with unbeaten Penn State.

Georgetown-Georgetown Washington (14,000)—Georgetown, barring a complete mental letdown from the B. C. loss, Furrman-Clemson (15,000)—Clemson, but hold your hats.

Rice-Texas Christian (20,000)—Rice in a close one.

Purdue-Indiana (31,000)—Completely in the dark.

Iowa-Illinois (20,000)—Looks like a sad and windup for the Illini.

GOAL LINE UNCROSSED—Washington, Ga., Nov. 22. The Washington High football team of the 10th district is undefeated in 10 contests. They have scored 269 points to their opponents' none. The team's average weight is 144 pounds. E. W. Carson is the coach. Back row: Herbert Dalton, Wyatt Faver, Harold Bramblett, Oliver Dyson, Stephen Blackmon, Thomas Brake, Harris

G. M. A. Clashes With Heavily Favored Pine Bluff.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 22.—Tech High from Atlanta, Ga., headed by Jack Pounds, reputed to be one of the finest running backs in the south, will invade Charlotte for a game with the powerful forces of Charlotte Central high tomorrow afternoon.

The Charlotte team, boasting a brilliant record again this year, has been installed as the favorite over the Georgians, who have lost three games this year, to Boys' High of Atlanta, Marist and Anderson, S. C. The invading Smithies, however, trounced a strong St. Petersburg, Fla., outfit last week in a game which saw them at their peak, so the homelings are expecting a real battle.

The Atlanta eleven has been invading the Tarheel state for this annual game for many years now, and the rivalry between the two schools, which always boast teams that rank with the best in the south, has become intense.

G. M. A. Is Underdog In Pine Bluff.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Nov. 22.—The Georgia Military Academy Cadets will play the Pine Bluff high eleven here tomorrow afternoon. The Bluffers, minus the Hutson twins who were the big guns in beating the College Park, Ga. team on their own field last year, have another strong eleven and are favored to take the Georgians' measure.

Greensboro Beats Madison, 26 to 0

MADISON, Ga., Nov. 22.—The Greensboro Tigers rolled over the Madison Bulldogs, 26 to 0, here Thursday in their annual Thanksgiving Day battle to make it the ninth successive year of not losing a game to their rival Madison team. During this period there has been one tie—a 13-13 dead-lock.

The main Greensboro scoring threat was deceptive end runs which wound up as being a long pass. Several long runs were made by the great Greensboro back, Tarpley, while the play of E. Copelan, Thomas and Kopp was also outstanding.

Madison never seriously threatened the Greensboro team with a score, but the playing of Smith, Orr and Lambert was noticeable.

Barnes Advocates More Night Games

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Donald L. Barnes, president of the St. Louis Browns, said today he thought all major league baseball clubs should play more night games next year.

Here for a brief rest, Barnes said that with the nation "geared up to high production" due to the national defense program, many persons would attend night games when they would be unable to get away from their work during the day.

The Browns played 14 night games last season, through a special arrangement, with all other American League clubs limited to seven night games. His club, Barnes said, "came nearer coming out" on the financial end than it had in several years. "We made money this year by not losing so much money," he smiled.

PRESBYTERIAN BEATS STETSON ON LONG AERIAL
OCALA, Fla., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Presbyterian Blue Stockings struck through the air in the third quarter for a quick touchdown and defeated the Stetson Hatters, 6 to 0, tonight in Ocala's first collegiate football game.

Coach Dick Meisky, of the game by the time all bets on the game were paid off, that half the wealth of Durham would have been shifted to Chapel Hill. Odds on the contest were as high as 8 to 1, or spotting the Tarheels 21 points, and there was plenty of Duke money floating around.

Auburn's trip to Boston to play the Boston College Eagles will amount to 2,434 miles. Seven of the nine guards on the Auburn grid eleven are sophomores. The other two are seniors. Five first-year men are running on the Bengals' starting team this fall, and five others have been seeing a great deal of action.

LOW JENKINS KAYOES LELLO IN 2D ROUND

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Texas Low Jenkins exploded his astic dynamite against the chin of Chicago Pete Lello in a hurry to-night and retained his world lightweight championship with a knockout in the second round of their 15-round contest in Madison Square Garden.

Jenkins weighed 131 3-4, Lello 134 1-2.

Flailing away with his bomb-pocked gloves as soon as the second round opened, after a slow "feeling-out" first heat, Jenkins not only kept a tight hold on his share of the 135-pound laurels—as recognized in New York, California and several other spots—but also gained sweet revenge for a knockout defeat he suffered a year and a half ago.

He walked out at the bell for the second heat, dropped Lello in mid-ring with a snapping left hook to the chin for a nine-count. He floored him again for nine more with a smashing right near Lello's own corner, repeated the procedure near a neutral corner with a two-fisted attack for nine more and then, when he had put Lello down for the fourth time in the round, Referee Arthur Donovan stepped in and halted the proceedings.

Dick Bates, junior tailback, has seen a lot of service at tailback in scrimmages this week and he is likely to start the game in place of little Johnny Bosch. If he doesn't, he will come in for a lot of service as he looked good against Alabama.

Bates is a fine passer, but his running isn't as good as Bosch's. But he has shown improvement in this department in recent games and developed into a good reserve for the diminutive Bosch.

With a little more experience, DeVault is expected to become a bright star. . . . Wonder how the Boilermakers let him get away? . . . Last Saturday an old gentleman, a rabid North Carolina fan, decided that he was going to put a jinx on the Duke Blue Devils. Just before the game he dressed up in his Daniel Boone outfit—coonskin cap, heavy coat trimmed with coonskin, a Civil War musket on his shoulder and powder horn at his side. . . . Also, armed with a bottle of locust beer, he headed for the battle. . . . During the contest he rang a little bell, which he claimed was putting the hoodoo on the enemy, and at the same time served locust beer to the fans. . . .

Two members of Alabama's powerful backfield are sophomores, and the other two are juniors. . . . Which means that the entire backfield will be returning intact next year. . . .

Tech Frosh Missed McArthur, Their Signal-Calling Coach

Baby Jackets Tried To Beat Georgia Bullpups With Offense They Only Rehearsed for Three Days.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Georgia freshmen's 36-0 victory over the Tech frosh in the annual Thanksgiving Day game is likely to send over-enthusiastic alumni of both schools off half-cocked with mistaken ideas about their respective teams.

It is doubtful there is enough type in Atlanta to set up the words of praise being said about the Bullpups this weekend. And one could cut the gloom of Jacket fans with a knife.

The whole answer to the score is that Georgia was prepared for the game, such as a freshman team can prepare, and Tech was not.

The Baby Jackets were using Florida plays, which they had a scant three days to learn. And Notre Dame's fighting Irish themselves wouldn't attempt to play Jackson Normal with only three days of work learning the various complex shifts which go with that style of offense.

DID THEIR BEST.
Therefore, when Tech had the ball the boys looked around in the huddle for Scout Roy McArthur to tell each whom to block and where to run. But he wasn't there. So they did the best they could, blocked maybe the right man but more often the wrong one and naturally lost a ball game by a bad score. It's a wonder they didn't butt heads while trying to shift.

On the other hand, Georgia had learned six plays and a pass in the time off they had from scrimmaging the varsity. There was nothing complicated about these plays. There was a simple reverse, a cutback over tackle, a delayed buck, a full spinner and so on.

When the Bullpups finished their chess against the varsity, they went down to one end of the field and ran signals until every man knew what to do.

NO TIME.
The Jackets had no such opportunity. Most of them stay in school until 4 o'clock or later. When they get on the field, they go right to work on the plays they are using that week. Then they work with the varsity and about 6 o'clock, after dark, they go in and dress, ready for dinner, their books and bed.

They had no time to learn the tricky plays Coach Bill Alexander uses on his varsity.

So that had more to do with the Bullpup victory than anything else.

But don't take it wrong. Had the Techs been able to work out plays for themselves, it is doubtful they could have beaten the Bullpups, who had plenty of spark about their line play.

MURPHY WINNER AS COACH HELPS

MURPHY, N. C., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The football problem of coaching from the bench seems to have been solved here by two high school teams, which permitted their coaches to follow them on the field and call signals.

The system worked admirably for players and spectators as Murphy High's 12-man team defeated High High of Knoxville, Tenn., 20-0. Opposing coaches directed their teams' play on offense, relieving quarterbacks of mental burdens. In the 45-minute contest 114 plays were run, considerably above the average.

THE SPORTLIGHT

BY GRANTLAND RICE

UNBEATEN STANDS.

Six unbeaten teams risk their shining shields tomorrow in various tests. They are Minnesota—Tennessee which faces Kentucky—Boston College which plays Auburn—Penn State up against Pittsburgh—Mississippi State against Mississippi—and Lafayette against Lehigh.

Stanford and Texas A. & M. have a resting Saturday, playing their final games next week against California and Texas.

From this list Penn State and Mississippi State have been tied. But neither has been beaten, which is still important in this 1940 swirl of ups and downs where such strong teams as Michigan, Cornell, Georgetown, Fordham, Alabama, S. M. U., Washington, Nebraska, Notre Dame and so many others have fallen by the wayside.

These unbeaten teams should all come through, barring the battle between Mississippi State and Mississippi, but when you recall the Cornell-Dartmouth, the North Carolina-Duke, the Penn-Harvard and so many other weird overtures there is no such thing as 100 per cent immunity. The records of the fading autumn prove this.

But there are games more important, so far as color and action and tradition go. Pennsylvania-Cornell, Notre Dame-Northwestern, Michigan-Ohio State (Harmon's last splurge), Harvard-Yale, Princeton-Army, North Carolina-Virginia (one of the oldest rivalries), Alabama-Vanderbilt, Rice-T. C. U. and Columbia-Colgate.

The Roundup.

Pennsylvania-Cornell at Philadelphia—A game of more than passing interest concerning Cornell's mental attitude after the Dartmouth melee. Both teams good. The edge to Cornell.

Harvard-Yale at New Haven—Another nip-and-tuck afternoon between two of football's oldest rivals. Both have been improving. Harvard's edge in condition should just about get the Crimson by.

Notre Dame-Northwestern at Evanston—Notre Dame lacks the Northwestern offense and Northwestern has the better line. A terrific Irish revival might save the day. Northwestern.

Michigan-Ohio State at Columbus—A flock of star backs, including Harmon, under fire. Setts and Langhurst will be dangerous. Michigan should win a close one.

Boston College-Auburn at Boston—There is sure to be a B. C. letdown after the Georgetown game. Auburn has a fast backfield. But Boston College has too much all-around stuff. Plus the promise of a Bowl party.

Tennessee-Kentucky at Knoxville—Tennessee is still roving and roaming with a fine line and good backs. Tennessee.

Minnesota-Wisconsin at Madison—The final barrier to a clean Minnesota state. This is always a handicap. But Minnesota should have more than the Badgers can meet.

Dartmouth-Brown at Providence—Another armful of hard picking. Little to choose here. A draw.

Southern Methodist-Baylor at Waco—Southern Methodist, plus Preston Johnston and Ray Malouf.

Pittsburgh-Penn State at Pittsburgh—One of the underdog games of the day. Both are good. Pittsburgh about due to break through.

Manhattan-Holy Cross at Worcester—Extremely close. Holy Cross has been moving up. Holy Cross, with little to spare.

Alabama-Vanderbilt at Birmingham—Alabama has too much superior power and too many reserves. Nelson is hard to stop. Alabama.

Oklahoma-Temple at Norman—Two strong offensive teams. Each has a dangerous backfield star. A battle of action. Oklahoma.

Princeton-Army at Princeton—Army this season has been in and out—mostly out. Princeton has been much more consistent and so gets the nod.

Indiana-Purdue at Lafayette—A hoosier scramble where anything can happen. A toss-up.

Illinois-Iowa at Iowa City—This has been a tough Illinois year and Iowa, with Green, has more punch. Iowa.

Nebraska-Iowa State at Lincoln—Nebraska is strong and has all the call.

Duke-N. C. State at Durham—Duke's defense should be too much for State.

Columbia-Colgate at New York—One of the day's closest. Columbia's defense should pull the Lion safely through.

Lafayette-Lehigh at Easton—Unbeaten Lafayette should still remain in that happy state.

Villanova-Duquesne at Philadelphia—Both good and well matched. A slight margin for Duquesne.

Rice-Texas Christian at Houston—Rice has the call by a close score.

Georgetown-George Washington at Washington—Georgetown, with an able set of backs and forwards.

North Carolina-Virginia at Charlottesville—An old-fashioned rivalry, with North Carolina slightly better.

Georgia Tech-Florida at Atlanta—Florida has her chance for an upset with an improving team, but Georgia Tech is the pick.

Freak Weather Freezes West, Warms Boston

Wyoming Has 9-Inch Snow; 68 Degrees Recorded in East.

By The Associated Press. Snow and cold in the Rocky mountain and plain states and almost record-breaking heat for this time of year in Boston were extremes recorded on yesterday's weather map.

The snow measured up to nine inches in parts of the cold section as clearing weather came in all but a portion of central Montana. The snow grew heavier in Colorado, however.

Temperatures dropped below zero in parts of the cold section as clearing weather came in all but a portion of central Montana. The snow grew heavier in Colorado, however.

In contrast at Boston the mercury climbed to 68 degrees in mid-afternoon, the highest mark for the date since 1931 when a 74-degree reading was recorded.

A change to colder was noted in the Mississippi valley, where most temperatures were near the normal mark.

12 Sleuths Hunt Secret Service Man's Slayer

Birmingham Head Believed Killed for 'Personal Vengeance.'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 22. (UP)—Twelve of Uncle Sam's best crime sleuths tonight hunted for a cold-blooded murderer who they believed stabbed to death Robert F. Perry, veteran head of the Birmingham office of the United States Secret Service, for "personal vengeance."

Perry, 58, died this morning of head wounds. The murderer plunged an ice pick thrice into Perry's head Wednesday night as he lay in his bed in his apartment. Perry never regained consciousness.

The federal officers' assailant took nothing from Perry's apartment, and investigators concluded robbery was not the motive.

Defense 'Help' Will Continue, Uruguay Says

'Normal' Co-operation Is Seen Despite Row Over Bases.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 22. (AP)—Official circles said tonight the government's program of co-operation in hemisphere defense probably would go ahead on a "normal course" despite the stormy political debate stirred up by negotiations for United States bases in building air and naval bases.

After a day-long study of last night's senate debate, these circles took the view the government had weathered its first parliamentary test in which a motion of censure of Foreign Minister Alberto Guani was presented.

Since the senate did not adopt the resolution, these circles said Guani now was not likely to resign, as at first reported.

Official quarters said the opposition's resolution disapproving "international agreements authorizing the creation of air or naval bases that might cause bondage of any kind for Uruguay or diminish the sovereignty of the republic" was an approximation of President Alfredo Baldomir's stand.

'PROPAGANDA' SPREAD, WELLES CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (UP)—Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles said today that "a great deal of propaganda" has been spread to give a false impression of his previous statement that the United States never has asked any Latin American republic to cede, by sale or lease, sites for establishment of United States naval or air bases.

He also asserted that this government never has made any suggestion "which would in any sense, if carried out, have infringed in any degree the sovereignty of any of the other American republics."

His reference to propaganda was made in answer to a press conference question on the Uruguayan senate's adoption of a motion pledging it not to approve any decisions on bases that would result in Uruguay losing sovereignty over any of her territory.

Fire, Sabotage Defense Set Up

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22. (AP)—Cleveland industries—especially those producing defense orders—will be protected against fire and sabotage in the most comprehensive program of its kind ever attempted here, Safety Director Eliot Ness reported today.

Developed jointly by industry and the safety department, the program provides that all major industries supply fire officials with blue prints of their plants showing layouts, fire-fighting devices and wiring.

Factory guards and watchmen will be sent to classes for additional instruction in fire-fighting and plant protection.

FIGHT MARKET—More than 500 men and women yesterday crowded the city council chamber to protest the proposed construction of $5,000,000 food terminal at Sylvan road and Murphy avenue. They will appeal to the Georgia delegations in the national capital and to local officials. The group, called together by the Fourth Ward Civic Forum, organization in the affected area, cheered news that Fulton county commissioners have withdrawn a pledge to co-operate in construction of the market. Fiscal Period Change Urged By Talmadge

Governor-Elect Makes First Recommendation to 1941 Legislature.

By The Associated Press. Governor-elect Talmadge yesterday made his first suggestion to the 1941 legislature, urging change of the state's fiscal period to coincide with the calendar year.

The fiscal year now begins July 1 and ends June 30 of the following year. Thus administration always change in the middle of a fiscal period.

In his weekly newspaper, the Statesman, Talmadge wrote: "The present administration had the fiscal year changed to July 1 to July 1."

"Why did they have it changed? Was it for the reason that they wanted to spend all of the money for the first six months of the incoming administration and embarrass them?"

"Here's a tip to the general assembly: Change it back and make a fiscal year in Georgia the calendar year—January 1 on January 1, and Christmas Day on December 25, July 4 on July 4. Thanksgiving Day on the last Thursday in November, after the frost has fallen on the turkey."

After the past two years followed President Roosevelt in advancing Thanksgiving Day a week before the last Thursday.

The incoming Governor commented that Attorney General Ellis Arnall batted 500 on two opinions last week vitally affecting state finances.

Talmadge Disagrees. First, he said Arnall was wrong in his interpretation of Superior Judge Lee Wyatt's restraint against highway department expenditures.

Asserting the law department chief construed the order to mean the department could "buy about $150,000 worth of slick, greasy asphalt a week," Talmadge said, "Go slow, Mr. Attorney General. Don't encourage the highway department to buy this worthless material and fattening the coffers of a few individuals."

But Arnall was right, he added, in his advice to Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head that motor vehicle license plates for 1941 could not be sold this calendar year.

"So he has a 50-50 average on last week's rulings," said Talmadge.

In an article on the road agency, the Statesman said, "It would appear that the highway department, under chairmanship of Mr. W. L. Miller, has suffered a long series of accidents. It would appear that Mr. Miller would never hang up much of a record as chairman of an 'accident prevention committee.'"

Talmadge recently suggested that Miller and the other two road commissioners, Herman H. Watson and Lawson L. Patten, resign immediately. They all declined.

Princess Juliana To Be Guest at White House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (AP)—The White House announced today that Princess Juliana of the Netherlands would be a guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt for two days beginning December 18.

Dr. A. Loudon, Netherlands minister, told reporters that the visit of the princess to the White House would be of a "strictly personal and private character." The announcement said she would be accompanied on the trip from Canada, where she has been staying, by Admiral Baron de Vos and Baroness de Vos.

Jamaica Flood Leaves 80 Dead, 400 Homeless

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Nov. 22. (AP)—Flood waters receded in northeast Jamaica today, leaving more than 80 persons dead, 400 homeless and property damage estimated by authorities at a million dollars.

The Swift river valley, hardest hit by the floods which followed a cloudburst Monday night, alone counted 50 dead. An entire family of 15 was wiped out there.

Owens, and Private Billy J. Teeple, Fort McPherson.

COLONEL HASTLEY IS GIVEN PROMOTION

Promotion of Lieutenant Colonel Thomas W. Hastley, Fourth Corps Area air officer, to the temporary rank of colonel was announced yesterday by corps area headquarters.

GENERAL McDONNELL ORDERED TO N. Y.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (AP)—The army announced today Brigadier General John C. McDonnell, who has been on duty with the bombardment group at Savannah, Ga., has been ordered to Mitchell Field, N. Y., to command the seventh pursuit wing of the general headquarters air force.

36 OFFICERS SCHEDULED FOR DUTY WITH TANKS

Twenty-six regular army and reserve officers from the Fourth Corps Area will be selected for duty with the armored force to provide commissioned cadets for the Third and Fourth Armored Divisions and ten reserve tank battalions to be organized next spring, the War Department has announced.

A total of 374 officers will be chosen from all the nine corps areas. Priority will be given those who have had experience with tanks, mechanized cavalry or armored car units. Reserve officers chosen will be of company grade, 75 per cent of which will be lieutenants.

The army's present armored divisions are located at Fort Benning and Fort Knox, Ky. The new divisions are planned for Pine Camp, N. Y., and Camp Beauregard, La.

Legion Reiterates Pleas For Powerful Defense

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 22. (AP)—The national executive committee of the American Legion, completing today its annual meeting, reaffirmed in resolutions the war veteran organization's previous pleas for a strong national defense.

Resolutions called for universal military training, "continuous national defense," a two-ocean navy and "the most powerful air force on earth."

The committee approved a resolution recommending adoption of uniform state guard laws. A model bill will be sent all departments next month.

Barber's Absentee Ballot Breaks 1,651-Vote Tie

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Nov. 22. (AP)—An absentee ballot, cast by W. T. Martin, barber, at Kodiak, Alaska, arrived today and broke a 1,651-vote tie to give a Jefferson county commissionership to Arthur C. Boren, Democrat, over Robert Cook, Republican.

AFL Peace Group To Seek CIO Meeting

Possible Settlement Seen If Murray Has Free Hand.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 22. (UP)—The American Federation of Labor's peace committee will seek a conference with a similar group from the Congress of Industrial Organizations as soon as the AFL concludes its annual convention here, President William Green said tonight.

Green declined to comment on the unanimous election of Philip Murray, whom he has known intimately for 25 years, as president of the CIO to succeed John L. Lewis. When pressed, Green said that if Murray could operate freely the chances of labor peace would be enhanced.

Green told reporters this would not be true if Lewis influenced Murray. Green rejected a reporter's conjecture that Lewis would have to leave the trades union movement entirely before it could have peace again.

"Mr. Lewis said peace with the federation was impossible," Green said. "I am sure that Mr. Murray isn't saying the same thing."

Green said that in past conferences with the CIO peace committee the AFL group had made "many concessions" and they had been rejected. Green declined comment on the remainder of the officers elected to the CIO today.

The convention was in recess until Monday, when Sir Walter Citrine, head of the British Trades Union Congress, will speak. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will address the convention Tuesday. Officers planned to adjourn the convention next Friday or Saturday.

Green sought to dispel the impression that negotiations by the AFL to bring the International Typographical Union back into the fold had collapsed as a result of the failure of a group of officials of the types to make their appearance there. The conference, which was to decide whether the ITU would return to the AFL, was scheduled for Wednesday, November 20.

F. D. R. To Visit Warm Springs 'A Little Later'

President Sends Message to Foundation Through Basil O'Connor.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 22. (AP)—President Roosevelt wasn't spending Thanksgiving at the Warm Springs Foundation, but he said he was counting on making a visit "a little later on."

The chief executive, who wished to remain close to Washington because of the international situation, sent the following message to Basil O'Connor, his former law partner and president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, who presided at the Thanksgiving party here:

"I am more than sorry that I have to give up Warm Springs at this time of the Thanksgiving party. Give my affectionate regards to the Warm Springs family and tell them that I count on being with them a little later on. We know all of us have much to be thankful for this year."

Argentina and Uruguay Agree on River Parley

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 22. (AP)—The Argentine foreign office announced tonight that Argentina and Uruguay had agreed that their joint interests in the River Plate estuary would be examined in connection with the exchanges of hemisphere defense views being held among the American republics.

The announcement was viewed here as clearing up some uncertainty regarding defense plans being discussed by the United States with a number of American governments.

J. J. Traylor, 51, Dies At Augusta Grid Game

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 22. (AP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for J. J. (Bubber) Traylor, 51, who died yesterday afternoon while watching the Richmond Academy-Commercial High, of Atlanta, football game.

Traylor, dairy firm salesman for 30 years, was a brother of Alphonse L. Traylor, the author of Georgia's highway system act.

CIO Bulwark In Defense of U. S.-Murray

Labor Group Called Guarantee Against Failure of Program.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 22. (AP)—Philip Murray, newly elected CIO president, declared tonight that the CIO was "the nation's only guarantee that the miserable failures of the last World War" in the production of defense needs would not be repeated.

"The CIO is the labor movement in our first line of defense," he said in a radio speech.

"The mass producing industries of the mines, mills, factories and workshops, by the strength and discipline of CIO unions have substituted industrial peace and stability for industrial warfare in these first lines of defense."

"This is essential to the successful prosecution of the federal government's national defense program."

"This definite, wholesome and constructive co-operation between management and labor in our vital defense industries makes the production of armaments for our armed forces in needed quantities and on time possible."

Murray said industry failed to do this job in the last war, asserting that relatively little of the guns and armaments needed were produced in time for use.

The new CIO chief said the convention, which elected him as John L. Lewis' successor, had adopted "a program of encouragement for the nation."

LABOR MUST HAVE VOICE IN DEFENSE, SAYS MURRAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. (AP)—Philip Murray, elected president of the CIO today, says in a magazine article prepared for publication next month that industry must "get on with the job" of national defense production by co-operating with labor.

The article, prepared for the Magazine Survey Graphic, calls for retention of existing federal labor legislation and says that "to repeal or emasculate these present-day laws, to deny labor participation in defense industry, is to court disaster."

Six Persons Are Killed In Head-On Collision

PLAINVILLE, Mass., Nov. 22. (UP)—Six persons were killed instantly tonight in the flaming wreckage after an auto and truck collided head-on on Route 1 near Providence.

Five of the victims were identified as: George Mitchell, 25, of Jamaica Plain, driver of the truck, and his brother Theodore, 17, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ando of North Providence and their son Joseph Jr., 25. The sixth victim is believed to be a helper who was riding on the truck.

MISS HELEN RANDALL.

Miss Randall Makes Bow At Brilliant Supper-Dance

In an effective setting of pastel-tinted flowers which simulated a lovely springtime garden, Miss Helen Randall, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Randall, was presented to society at a brilliant supper-dance given by her parents last evening at the Piedmont Driving Club. The affair, which assembled several hundred members of the younger social contingent, was one of the most elaborate of the series of formal debut parties featuring the winter calendar.

Employing myriads of roses, chrysanthemums, snapdragons and sweetpeas in the delicate tones of pink, yellow, orchid and rose, the lovely floral decorations provided a colorful background for the party. The stately columns ranging the length of the club ballroom were linked by double festoons of laurel roping, the tops of the columns being massed with giant Woodwardia ferns and palms from which fell graceful garlands of smilax. Starting the foliage were clusters of flowers in the chosen color combination, the laurel festoons being repeated over the doors and windows. The orchestra which presented a program of late dance music throughout the evening was seated at the far end of the ballroom against a background of palms and ferns and surrounded by a small white picket fence which further carried out the garden idea. Flanking the steps in the foyer leading to the ballroom were white wicker floor baskets filled with long-stemmed roses, chrysanthemums, and snapdragons in the pastel shades. Arrangements of similar flowers graced the tables and consoles in the reception line.

Receiving line. Mr. and Mrs. Randall and Miss Randall received their guests, standing at the right of the entrance to the ballroom against a screen of palms and ferns. Centering the foliage was a large basket of Dresden shaded flowers below which was arranged a novel fan of silver net which was studded with the orchids and floral bouquets sent the debutante by a host of admiring friends.

Other floral tributes attesting her popularity were banked against the screen of foliage. Completing the receiving line was Miss Randall's brother, Luther Randall Jr., and a trio of her Mount Vernon schoolmates who are her house guests, including Miss Maudie Smyre, of Gastonia, N. C.; Miss Alice Webber, of Montgomery, Ala., and Miss Mary Ann McKinney, of Dothan, Ala. Miss Randall chose for her formal presentation a bouffant gown of palest pink tulle, the softly draped bodice embroidered with silver sequins, and the skirt formed of many layers of tulle.

The sequin design which centered about the fitted waistline was repeated in a delicate tracery on the full skirt. The debutante wore a shoulder cluster of purple-throated white orchids, and she carried an exquisite bouquet which repeated the Dresden tints of the decorative theme. Fashioned of purple-throated white orchids and sprayed with stephanotis and narrow silver and orchid ribbons against a fringe of silver and fashioned with a round neckline and brief puffed sleeves. A shoulder spray of pink orchids completed the costume.

Mrs. W. R. McCrary, the honor guest's maternal grandmother, was gowned in black marquisette, the bodice elaborately embroidered in jet. Her flowers were purple orchids. Mrs. H. G. Randall, Miss Randall's paternal grandmother, wore black crepe embroidered in a floral design of white bugle beads. A cluster of purple orchids completed her costume.

Supper was served at 11:30 o'clock from beautifully appointed buffet tables placed at the left of the ballroom. The tables were adorned with handsome silver epergnes filled with rare Tokyo chrysanthemums combined with pale pink snapdragons and Johanna Hill roses. The punch bowls were surrounded by mounds of pastel-shaded sweetpeas and pale pink roses.

Assisting the hosts in entertaining were the debutante's grandmothers, Mrs. W. R. McCrary and Mrs. H. G. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. L'Engle, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Brownlee, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McCrary, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCrary, Mr. and Mrs. Alva P. McCrary, and Mrs. Ernestine Starbuck.

Miss Hodgson Entertains Sunday.

A trio of popular debutantes, Misses Elsa McCull, Margaret Winship and Isabel Vretman, will be honored tomorrow afternoon at the tea to be given by Miss Mary Hodgson, who entertains at 5 o'clock at her home on Lakeview drive.

Members of the debutante club, their escorts and a small group of friends have been invited for the affair. Miss Hodgson is a student at the University of Georgia and is spending this weekend with her parents.

Miss Jeanette Estes Feted at Luncheon.

Mrs. J. A. Broach and Miss Mary Frances Broach entertained yesterday at a luncheon in honor of Miss Jeanette Estes, popular member of the Debutante Club, at their home on Oakdale road. Guests included the members of the Debutante Club and a few close friends of the honor guest.

The Mexican motif predominated in the table decorations, which featured cacti and small Mexican figures of red, yellow and green. The placecards were in the shape of miniature Mexican combreros.

Junior Group Meets.

The Junior Group, Habersham Chapter D. A. R., met recently at the chapter house, with Mrs. Joseph Read presiding.

After the business session Mrs. William L. MacDougall introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Howard McCall, who gave a paper on "Colonial Silver," after which tea was served.

Heating Starts The Season of Coughs

By Dr. William Brady.

This is the right time of year, I regret to remind you, to talk about cough medicine. With the starting of indoor heating, the season of coughs is on.

In the first place please let me work a prophylactic suggestion in here, and then we'll see about some cough medicine.

I have a monograph, yours for the asking if you inclose stamped envelope bearing your address, on air conditioning and humidification in the home. It gives instructions for maintaining the comfort zone, the healthful temperature and humidity in the air, no matter what type of heating you have in your home. Keep the atmospheric conditions in the comfort zone and you'll keep your family free from many a cough or croup which would otherwise fine one or more susceptible subjects in the home.

For cough or croup medicine, for use at home or away from home, I recommend the Foul-Proof Cough Medicine. This is how:

Steep or boil 20 to 30 minutes a heaping teaspoonful of whole flaxseeds in a pint of water. Then dissolve in the flaxseed tea one ounce of sodium citrate (citrate of soda—formerly used in modifying milk for infants) and one ounce of glycerin. (One ounce is approximately two tablespoonfuls). Then add the juice of a lemon, and three or four drops of peppermint flavor. Finally strain the pint of medicine through muslin. Dose, for infant, a teaspoonful; for older child or adult, a tablespoonful, every two hours, for two or three days. This is for acute cough or croup. The same medicine may be tried, if desired, for more prolonged or chronic cough or it may be taken regularly for an indefinite period—it is quite harmless in any case. If used for more than two or three days, a fresh batch should be prepared every alternate day. The medicine is diuretic (promotes kidney secretion), diaphoretic (promotes sweating) mildly sedative expectorant (tends to soothe, loosen and ease cough).

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Cold, Pale Feet.

For three or four years I have had cold feet and legs and they looked pale and felt numb at the time. I began taking your Iodin Ration and for the past few months my feet and legs are warm and pink again. I don't know whether the iodine did it, but certainly I feel grateful. (A. C.)

Answer—Anytime the Iodin Ration can do no harm to any adult—in fact nearly all growing children and adults need more iodine than they are likely to get in food or water. For instructions in taking the Iodin Ration, send stamped envelope bearing your address.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "Billie goes to bed at the same hour every day for his nap. It has always been a part of his daily routine and he doesn't question it."

Because a small child chooses to sleep less than is expected of him is no sign he doesn't need the sleep.

Mother: "Billie fights so against taking a nap, I've given it up. When he really needs the sleep, he falls asleep just anywhere, as he has today."

Slenderizing Lines for the Matrons

By Lillian Mae.

The illusion of a slim figure depends upon good lines and well-balanced style. Lillian Mae has outlined herself with Pattern 4380—(designed to slenderize). Those long, flowing seams at both front and back add inches to your height. And cleavage seams have a double purpose of minimizing your hips and giving effortless extra flare to your skirt. See how carefully gathering is placed at the bustline for gentle softening. You'll like the decorative effect of scallops at the neckline—you may scallop the sleeves too for added charm and perch gay bows down the front. You might make the sleeves and sides of the bodice, front and back, in cheerful contrast, if you wish.

Pattern 4380 is available in sizes 34 to 50. Size 36 takes 4 1/4 yards 39 inch fabric.

Send 15c (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Your wardrobe needs new holiday touches, so order our Lillian Mae style book! Here are dozens of smart modes, each available in a pattern that's simple to cut and to sew. There are inspired gift ideas. A career girl wardrobe on the budget plan. Young clothes for parties at the neckline—your matron, home wear, tailors, afternoon and evening frocks for miss and matron. Today's Charm Tip

Don't ride a slang phrase to death with its constant repetition. Eliminate the "see" entirely instead of saying: "It was this way, see, I was going down town, see, etc."

Jeweled Clips Accent Furs, Hats

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—Jewels on furs? Ida Lupino clamps a large jeweled clip on her jacket of blue fox tails. A jeweled clip also adorns her swoop-brimmed hat of dark brown felt (at the back of the hat is a long, fine veil). Furs, hat and jewels are worn with a bronze green jersey dress. Shoes, bag and gloves are in dark brown suede.

Jewelry, costume and real, plays a big role in Hollywood. Alice Faye, now emoting in "Tin Pan Alley," has a new use for diamond clips. She wears them, epaulet fashion, on the shoulders of a simple black dressmaker suit. The clips are wing-shaped, long enough to emphasize the shoulder line, and are a combination of chased gold and diamonds.

Luxurious accessories that dress up the plain suit or coat find their most flattering expression in hats trimmed with fur—in some instances made entirely of fur—and accompanying muffs. Baby leopard is chosen by Gene Tierney, who wears an off-the-face hat with the under brim leopard-faced, also a pocketbook muffed of the same fur. All this goes with a dark-green tweed coat, untrimmed except for two carved gold buttons that fasten the coat.

Dorothy Lamour, at the El Capitan with Greg Bautzer, wore a gray Alix jersey shirt-maker dress with pencil slim skirt. The entire gown was embroidered sparingly with tiny mirrors and silver beads. Doty wore long gray gloves, silver sandals, and clipped a platinum and diamond rose in her hair (a good flower to cultivate in these hard times). Completing the outfit Miss Lamour had an ermine three-quarter length coat and a silver kid purse.

A bright color innovation from Ann Sheridan is her new fall dinner-gown in Como blue velvet. This is cut simply with the skirt narrow in back, but working up to a slight fullness in front.

For daytime allure, Mary selects black wool smartly combined with striking fur in a coat-dress. Wide sleeves of leopard blend into front yokes of the fur, with black wool fashioning the back of the coat and the skirt. A jersey hat and a leopard muffed complete the ensemble.

Sleeves are long and tight. The low V-neckline is pierced with a diamond arrow matched in small arrows on the lady's ear lobes.

Ann Southern tells me she designed the two-way coat she wears and from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. It's white and has a hood. Both are lined in red flannel and are reversible. On sunny days, she wears the white side out. When the weather is not so good, the red side is featured.

Two-toned suits of the dress-maker type are also popular right now. A bright example is a two-toned beige worn by Marjorie Weaver. The darker beige is almost pale cocoa; the lighter is most cocoa. The latter forms the sleeves and a front panel on the jacket that is continued to the skirt. Incidentally, beige is now seen a lot in Hollywood.

Judy Garland wears on the lapel of a brown man-tailored sport suit a miniature drum, one inch long, in burnt wood, and rimmed in gold.

Lana Turner lunching at Victor Hugo's with Tony Martin. Lana wears a two-piece "Tahitian" outfit. Of light blue and white broadcloth with flowered pattern, the redingote top is plain and held together by a large pink and white shell. Underneath the redingote is a dress in a flowered pattern with flowers going all across the dress. Full, square sleeves match the fullness of the skirt. The pouch pockets are deeply set in the skirt, running from waistline to hipline and are a contrast to the tight-fitting girdle waistline. Lana's hat is in felt and open-crowned. And I ought to mention Lana's necklace and bracelet of pink and white shells.

Ruth Hussey carries the biggest make-up box on the Metro lot. It looks like a triple-size knitting bag in which is crammed all the things a girl thinks she needs during her waking hours. The monogram on it is a foot long!

Use Friendly Phrases

Girls that men like to be with have a supply of friendly phrases to meet any situation. They know how to keep the talk bubbling every moment of the time. And so can you!

It's easy to lure a man out of his shell with "Tell me, what's new on the job?" Then do your share with an occasional enthusiastic comment. "Isn't that splendid!" "How clever of you!"

Armed with smooth phrases you sail with flying colors through every social dilemma. When an argument starts, a tactful "There's much in what you say" soothes ruffled feelings. To refuse an invitation without hurting the giver, say regretfully, "Isn't it just my bad luck to have an engagement Thursday?"

And in everyday conversation you quickly gain a reputation as a wit by knowing clever ways to say things. "Love and murder will out," "blame as a taxi driver."

MY DAY: Thanksgiving In Hyde Park

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Thursday.—We returned to Washington early yesterday morning from Henderson, N. C., and I had the pleasure of having Madame Tabouis to lunch with me. The rest of the day was filled with such things as having my hair washed, trying to catch up on the mail and seeing various people.

This morning I am back in Hyde Park, staying with my mother-in-law and the rest of the family in the big house, where we are celebrating Thanksgiving for the first time in many years.

The President's custom of being in Warm Springs, Ga., with the foundation trustees and the patients on this day, has meant that we have not been able to be here with his mother. The family is so scattered now that we are a small party here, but it is very pleasant to be at home and what we lack in numbers we make up in a sense of togetherness. The sound of someone's voice, whom you really care about, tells you so much more than any written words.

I often think, when the telephone becomes a nuisance in my life and I am irritated at its constant ringing, how grateful we should be for the joyous moments it brings us and for the relief which can come over the wires in cases of emergency. News from far away, a few years ago, took days and weeks to reach us. Today a voice can be carried straight into the sickroom and relieve uncertainty, which is perhaps the most difficult thing to bear.

Though I am staying in the big house on this visit, I have been over to my cottage and found everything being arranged for the winter months. Porch and garden furniture is put away, the climbing roses are all covered up, leaves have been raked up and burned. The work which the tree experts warned me should be done on my trees this autumn, is already begun.

There is only one thing I change in my cottage in winter. I put down before the fireplace a big white bearskin rug, which Mrs. Ruth Bryan Rohde brought me from Greenland some years ago. Somehow he gives added warmth to my hearth when winter is really upon us, and I love to have him in front of the fire.

Most Parents Fall in One Of Four Classifications

By Caroline Chatfield.

As far as we are able to observe, most parents fall into four general classifications. First, there are the Medes and Persians parents who start out with the promise that their word is law fair or no fair, just or unjust, and woe betide the youngsters who offend. The children may have their spirits crushed or they may turn out to be full-fledged young rebels, loathing the iron hands that hold them. Nevertheless, the law of the Medes and Persians altereth not.

Second, there are the love-mothering possessive parents who don't let their youngsters come up for air. Many can't choose the dress she'll wear to the dance, nor have a private moment with her girl friend, nor close her door to write a note without mother's interference or interruption. Johnny is catechized when he goes out, required to diagram his movements when he comes in. Mother strokes his hair, straightens his tie and treats him as if he were a baby long after he's having dates with the girls.

Third, there are the love-em-and-leave-em-to-their-own-devices parents. They farm the youngsters out with family or friends, park them at home with a nurse. These are the pleasure-loving pairs who think children should stay in their place and never under any circumstances interfere with grown-up fun. They kiss the children when they come around, pat them as they push them off, deluge them with pretty talk and then go on to the next party.

Fourth, there are the pal parents who put companionship with their progeny above everything in life. They make plans together, swap secrets, share pleasures, build friendship. These are the parents who maintain a reasonable discipline in the home. They respect the individualities and personalities of the youngsters, so the youngsters aren't repressed. On the other hand there's respect for parental authority.

To which class do you belong, parents? There's a long, long trail a-winding to the journey's end and you and your children will one day be in reverse positions. They may put up the cash to keep you out of the poorhouse, should it come to that. Their sense of duty and decency may insure your security. But that will not be enough for you, will it? The sympathy and understanding which you dish out to them when they are at your mercy is the sort of sympathy and understanding you may expect from them when you are at their mercy. And this may be a pleasant or an unpleasant contemplation.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

THE WOMAN'S QUIZ

Q. How old are most women before they attain full growth?

A. The average American woman attains full growth by the time she is 18 years old.

Q. How often are babies born in the United States?

A. Every fourteen seconds.

Q. In contract bridge, if partner makes a response of one no trump to my bid of one spade, is his bid forcing?

A. No; partner's response is not forcing, for it is not a bid in a suit. In fact, the one no trump response is more limited than a suit take-out and you should pass unless you have a very strong hand or a very strong suit.

Q. Do coffee grounds have any intrinsic fertilizing value?

A. No, because most of the valuable constituents are removed by cooking.

Q. Is it true that a dive in an airplane will cure physiological deafness?

A. No. Some cases of hysterical deafness have been cured by this method, but none in which organic defects existed.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor of The Constitution, 1013 13th Street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Overweight Uses Health As Alibi

By Ida Jean Kain.

Useless and unsafe reducing methods have been exposed—and a very good thing it is too! You know now that fat cannot be melted down or rubbed off, and that bath powders, pastes and reducing creams are just so much fluff! And surely nobody is foolish enough to take anything to reduce!

However, all this hue and cry against reducing aids has had an unexpected effect. There are some overweighters who say they don't reduce for fear it might harm their health, so they keep right on over-eating and piling on more fat.

If this is your alibi, you're the only one who can say just how sincerely you believe it will harm your health to take off a few pounds. But if you are concerned about your health, you had better give a thought to the burden imposed by the fat.

There is not the slightest risk to health on a balanced reducing diet. The science of nutrition has shown us how to make a diet that is abundant in all the protective elements but low in calories. The emphasis on a good reducing diet is to supply liberally everything but calories. Since fat represents only a reserve of calories, nothing else must be left out of the reducer's menu.

But let's look at it from the other angle. When you go on a diet, good or bad, the body does not get along on less material, but instead of getting all the material from food intake, part is taken from body reserves. That's fine as far as calories are concerned; you have plenty to spare in the stored fat. Then by including a adequate amounts of protein, minerals and vitamins, and using the stored calories for part of your energy needs, you are on a perfect diet. You will be just as well fed, or perhaps better fed, than when you are overeating.

Mr., Mrs. Haverty Fete Debutantes

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haverty were hosts at an elaborate buffet supper at their home on Cherokee road last evening complimenting Misses Evelyn Harrison and Helen McDuffie, attractive members of the Debutante Club.

Centering the table, which was overlaid with a handsome lace cloth, was an antique soup tureen containing an artistic arrangement of valley lilies and white roses. Silver candelabra holding burning white tapers were placed at either end of the table. Arrangements of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums were used throughout the home for decorations.

Guests included members of the Debutante Club and their escorts. Miss McDuffie was honored Thursday at the football breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. William Jenkins, who entertained at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The affair preceded the football game and assembled 50 members of the debutante set. Among the attractive guests was Miss Mary Shaw of East Lake, C., who is visiting Miss McDuffie, and William Broadfoot, of Wilmington, N. C., the guest of George McDuffie. The Thanksgiving motif featured the decorations and during the morning Graham Jackson played. Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Collet Munger and Miss Sarah Jenkins.

Miss Barbara Indell Is Honored at Tea

Twenty-four guests assembled at the home of Mrs. Owen McConnell on Woodward way yesterday afternoon for the tea at which Mrs. McConnell was hostess in compliment to Miss Barbara Indell, attractive member of the Debutante Club.

Mrs. Harry Indell, mother of the honor guest, and Miss Mary Virginia McConnell, daughter of the hostess, assisted in entertaining.

Guests were seated at the dining table, which was overlaid with an Italian cutwork cloth centered with a cornucopia holding flowers featuring autumnal hues. Placecards were miniature cream and sugar containers filled with flowers, these having corresponded with the invitations to the party, which were shaped like tea kettles.

Buffet Supper For Bridal Couple

Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Gleason, of Decatur, were hosts last evening at a buffet supper complimenting Miss Virginia McWhorter and James Freeman, following their wedding rehearsal at the First Baptist church in Decatur.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. W. Hugh McWhorter, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Freeman, Dr. and Mrs. Dick Hall, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Diekmann, Mrs. T. E. Lanigan, of Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Harold Hemrick, of Swainsboro; Misses Myra Barber, Dorothy McWhorter, Virginia Gleason, Sara Freeman, Lieutenant W. Hugh McWhorter, of Middleton, Pa.; Lewis Freeman, James Griffith, Jake Hoffman, Albert Jones, Pat Dobbins, and the honor guests.

Mrs. Cochran Fetes Miss Poole

Miss Patricia Poole, popular bride-elect of Dr. Dell Fleming, was honored at a luncheon given by Mrs. W. N. Cochran, who entertained at her home on Peachtree Battle avenue. The table was covered with an imported Venetian lace cloth centered with an epergne filled with patrician grace chrysanthemums, white snapdragons and white swainsons. The crystal and china carried out the amytist shades and place cards featured the bridal motif.

Covers were placed for a group of friends of the honor guest including Misses Ruthanna Butters, Martha Ewing, and Mesdames Clyde King, Troy Bivings, Ewell Gay, Asa W. Candler Jr., William Candler Jr., Charles Freeman Jr., Morris Ewing and L. P. Kilpatrick.

Mary Jo Bailey Feted at Party

Mrs. Jesse O. Bailey entertained recently at her home on Virginia avenue at a birthday party honoring her young daughter, Mary Jo Bailey, on her ninth anniversary. The birthday table was overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with pink roses and an embossed cake.

During the afternoon games were enjoyed by the young guests, who included Nancy Starr, Elizabeth Starr, Howard Drane, Ann Dellinger, Jean Knight, Joel Knight, Minyon Pollert, Roy Norvell, Caroline Phillips, Bill Wilks, Jane LaFontaine, Richard Johnson, William Finch, Hershel Bergman, Paul and Betty Euling.

Garden Division Meet

The Garden Division of Grant Park Woman's Club met recently at the clubhouse, Mrs. W. H. Lee, garden chairman, presiding. The division's project of beautifying the club grounds is nearing completion. Mrs. E. L. Gifford spoke on "Lilies, Their Selection and Cultivation." Mrs. R. B. Giles gave the oddsities of the day, and Mrs. M. L. Wheeler was a visitor. Plans were made for a spend-the-day party on December 11. The program will be on "Christmas Decorations," and each member is requested to bring an arrangement for judging. There will be a "what have you contest," and a display of scrapbooks.

Mrs. W. H. Berry judged flower exhibits, awarding ribbons to Mesdames Joe Gluck, J. P. Miner, Hostesses were Mesdames J. P. Miner and P. H. Savin.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN MCCLELLAND.

Miss Barbara Settle Weds John Edward McClelland

The Druid Hills Baptist church formed the setting last evening for the marriage of Miss Barbara Settle to John Edward McClelland, which was brilliantly solemnized at 8 o'clock in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends of the popular couple.

Dr. Louis D. Newton officiated, assisted by Dr. W. M. Elliott Jr. Mrs. John B. Felder, organist, presented music.

The altar was banked with palms interspersed with baskets of pale pink chrysanthemums and pink gladioli. Pink tapers gleamed from cathedral candelabra and family pews were marked by pink tulle bows topped by clusters of pink chrysanthemums.

Judge John Spence McClelland served as best man for his son, and groomsmen included Spencer McClelland, Earle Yancey Jr., Henry Finch, Jack Branch, Ralph McClelland, Harry Boling Jr., Neville James, John Zachry and Vernon Kyle. Ushers were Earle Yancey Sr., John Sibley, Robert Troutman and Hughes Spalding.

Miss Emily Hunt, of Mount Sterling, Ky., was maid of honor, and Mrs. Howard Lovess Jr., of Chickamauga, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Lillian Carpenter, Marion Barber, Miriam Rudessal, Betty Taylor, Salle Parker and Mesdames Frank Dobbins and Roy Higginbotham. Julia House was junior bridesmaid.

The attendants wore empire gowns of pale symphony pink faille taffeta, those of the bridesmaids shading to a deeper pink. Gowned with bishop sleeves, the fashions featured yokes of marquisette embroidered with seed pearls. The hats worn by the attendants were made halo style of matching material, and they carried bouquets of pale pink carnations, sweet peas, pink snapdragons and pink roses, designed colonial style and outlined by frills of pink net and satin.

J. Fleming Settle gave his daughter in marriage. The pale pink motif predominating throughout the wedding also prevailed in the bride's exquisite ensemble which was of bluish-tinted slipper satin fashioned princess style. The Play Postponed By Blackfriars.

Because of conflicting programs in the auditorium, Blackfriars of Agnes Scott College will be unable to present "Brief Music" this evening as was previously announced.

Miss Hawthorne Weds Harold F. Morris

The Rectory of the Cathedral of Christ the King formed the setting for the recent marriage of Miss Nancy Caroline Hawthorne and Harold F. Morris. Rev. Father Moylan performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families of the couple.

The lovely bride was gowned in soldier blue wool, with which she wore a matching full length coat trimmed with blue fox collar. Black accessories and a shoulder spray of pink sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley completed her costume.

Service Club Plans Annual Dinner

Service Club of Mary E. La Rocca Grove, Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, will entertain at its annual dinner Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Owen, 1056 Lawton street, in Atlanta. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Jeannie Brown and Mrs. Kate Thompson will assist Mrs. Owen.

La Rocca Grove held its business meeting recently in the Masonic hall in East Point, guardian, Mrs. Brown, presided.

A nominating committee composed of Mesdames Daisy Moultrie, Lella Cottoning, Beatrice Owen and Kate Thompson was appointed to select officers for the new year.

Election of officers will be held at the first meeting in December.

Tech Sponsor To Be Honored

Miss Joan Fitzwater, of Rome, formerly of this city, who will sponsor for Tech at the game with the University of Florida this afternoon, will be honored this evening at a dinner party.

The affair takes place at the Clermont hotel and acting as hostesses will be a group of friends. The table will be decorated in white and gold and the place cards and favors will carry out the football motif.

Covers will be placed for the honor guests and Misses Jeanne Stanley, Nell Travis, Betty Ann Mayfield, Eleanor Calvert, Paula Brewer, Marie Boyd, Lois Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Calvert, and Jack Chambers, Roy Milling, William Travis, Charles Cates, Leo Kelly, Ralph Slaton, Frank Ship, Lee Daughtridge.

Brenau Alumnae Given Buffet-Luncheon

Mrs. Hill Robertson, president of the Atlanta Brenau alumnae, recently entertained at a buffet luncheon for the executive board of officers of the Brenau Alumnae Association at her home on Manor Ridge drive. The lace-covered table in the dining room was centered with a large bowl of yellow earthenware filled with yellow chrysanthemums. Brass candelsticks holding yellow tapers flanked the centerpiece.

Announcement was made of the monthly international relations forum of the Atlanta Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Robertson is chairman, meeting on Monday at the club at 3 o'clock with Professor Glenn Rainey as speaker.

Mrs. Warren Foster was named chairman of a committee to plan for other direct activities of the club in the near future. Mrs. Forrest Osgood, Atlanta alumnae secretary, spoke on student opportunities at Brenau.

Enjoying Mrs. Robertson's hospitality were Mesdames J. R. Kindig, J. Lee Kelley, Warren Foster, Asbury Greene, Mabel York, Brock Pearson, Paul Bowles, Forrest Osgood, Claude Grizzard and George H. Slappey.

Mr. and Mrs. Tourjee Fete Bridal Pair

A delightful affair was the recent dinner party at which Dr. and Mrs. Gary B. Tourjee entertained at their home on Lanier boulevard honoring Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Jordan.

Autumn flowers were placed throughout the home, and the table was centered with a graceful arrangement of white blossoms.

Present were Dr. and Mrs. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lunsford and the hosts. Guests attended the Tech-Georgia freshman football game earlier yesterday.

Reception To Honor Rev., Mrs. Crandall

The Woman's Auxiliary, the Men's Club, the Young People's Service League of St. Timothy's church will give a reception to the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Littleton Crandall Sunday from 3:30 to 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. W. Bryce, 2646 Alston drive.

Mrs. Crandall is the former Miss Erin O'Neal Clarke of Macon whose marriage was a brilliant social event of November.

Mrs. Tom Clarey, president of St. Timothy's Women's Auxiliary, will be assisted by Mesdames Marian Swanson, Robert Duncan, W. Brooks, J. M. Flanigan and others, in entertaining. The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Crandall are invited to attend this reception.

For Mrs. Kennedy

Mrs. S. D. Vaughn complimented Mrs. Herbert Kennedy Jr. recently with a miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. Guy H. Hardegree on Woodland avenue. Mrs. Vaughn was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Irene Flury.

Mrs. Kennedy was before her marriage, which took place on November 16, Miss Jeanette Hays degree. The young couple will reside in a Clark Howell apartment, after January 1.

For Miss Sanford

Miss Dorothy Sanford, whose marriage to Ralph Boynton will be solemnized at a high-noon ceremony on December 7, was central figure yesterday at the luncheon and kitchen shower at which her aunt, Mrs. John Hynds, was hostess at her home on Habersham road.

Mrs. John Sanford, mother of the honor guest, assisted her sister in entertaining. A crystal bowl containing an arrangement of varicolored chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece for the table. Vases filled with yellow roses were placed in the living room.

Mrs. Jones Is Hostess

Mrs. O. P. Jones was hostess to the Friendly Twelve club recently at her home on Lexington avenue, S. W.

Officers elected were Mrs. J. H. Kirk, president; Mrs. Wilmer Anderson, publicity chairman; Mrs. J. H. Smith, secretary and treasurer.

Prizes were won by Mrs. H. G. Hines and Mrs. W. Anderson. The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. H. Kirk, on November 27, at her home on Jonesboro road.

For Mrs. Boston

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harmon Boston have returned from their wedding trip to Florida and are residing at 58 Fourteenth street, N. W. The former Miss Maree Valentine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron B. Valentine.

Several parties have been planned in her honor, the first being a miscellaneous shower, given by the Misses Katherine and George Anna Maxwell at their home on McPherson avenue on November 27 at 8 o'clock.

Bridal Pair Feted At Buffet Supper

An interesting affair of last evening was the buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. John C. Aycock entertained at their home on Courtney drive honoring their daughter, Miss Betty Aycock, and Dr. Henry C. Dorris, whose marriage is an important event of this afternoon. The affair was held after the wedding rehearsal.

Mrs. Douglas McKenney, of The Rock, sister of the hostess, and Mrs. George Gibbs, of Decatur, assisted in entertaining.

The table, which was covered with a handsome damask cloth with lace inserts, was centered with a silver epergne containing an arrangement of small white chrysanthemums. Flanking the centerpiece were silver candelabra holding gleaming white tapers.

Among out-of-town guests who attended the affair were Mrs. John H. Dorris, the groom's mother; George Dorris, and Miss Doris Williams, all of Jackson, Miss., and B. G. McKenney, of The Rock, the bride's grandfather.

Miss Harris Hostess At Cocktail Party

A congenial group of society assembled Thursday at the West Andrews drive residence of Miss Dorothy Harris for a cocktail party at which Miss Harris was hostess following the Tech-Georgia freshman football game.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Harris, parents of the hostess; Miss Polly Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gill assisted in receiving guests numbering 40, the party having marked one of the gayest social affairs of the day.

A profusion of flowers in gold and bronze shades beautified the home.

For Miss Blackwell

Miss Virginia Blackwell, whose marriage to Ben O. McCollum will be an event of today, was honored at a kitchen shower given recently by Miss Mary Saywell and Mrs. Thomas O'Connell at 555 Hopkins street, S. W.

Miss Saywell and Mrs. Green were assisted in entertaining by their mother, Mrs. D. J. Saywell. Guests included Misses Louise Crew and Virginia Blackwell, Mesdames David Greer, Harvey Sells, Clyde Partain, George Embury, O. E. Blackwell, Walter Crew, B. F. Greer.

Atlantans Will Be Guests At House Party in Newnan

Among the interesting events planned for next week is the house party to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Manget at their handsome home in Newnan as a complimentary gesture to former Governor John M. Slatore and Mrs. Slatore, Judge Claude C. Smith and Mrs. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Seydel.

These prominent Atlantans will motor to Newnan on Tuesday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Manget, who entertain at a tea that afternoon for their guests. Among other social affairs given for the Atlantans will be the dinner party on Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. William Banks.

Luncheons, dinners and receptions are planned for the entertainment of the Atlantans while they are in Newnan. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Seydel will motor to Trion to attend the Rotary Club meeting on Friday, at which they will be honored guests.

Brookhaven Club Divides Into Groups

The Brookhaven Garden Club met recently at the home of Mrs. M. A. Conway on University drive.

The committees gave their reports. Each member responded to the roll call by telling how many shrubs and flowers she could exchange. Mrs. Z. W. Jones gave a report on the garden school held November 1, where her class had received 90 per cent for arrangement.

The civil committee was divided into three groups. Group 1 consists of members living in Brookhaven Heights to Decatur road. Group 2, members living in Fernwood from Decatur road to Candler road; Group 3, those living from Candler road north to Hospital 48.

Group 1 will plant dogwood and crape myrtle on the sidewalk, and on November 16 this group cleaned up unsightly spots with the help of their sons and husbands who were available.

Group 2 has not completed the beautifying of the park facing the railroad. Group 3 has taken as its project a small park bordering Peachtree road. This group has made great headway and the park is all ready for the planting at this time of year.

The December meeting will be a Christmas party, time and place to be announced later.

Alatheaan Class

Alatheaan class of Virginia Avenue Baptist church celebrated recently the close of a membership contest with a dinner.

Arrangements for the occasion were made by Mrs. Ira Collins, class president, with the assistance of several members of the class.

Senior Hadassah Plans Membership Tea on Monday

Atlanta Chapter of Senior Hadassah will hold its annual membership tea on Monday at 2:30 o'clock at the Mayfair Club.

The membership tea this year will pay homage to Henrietta Szold, Hadassah's beloved leader and founder, who will be 80 years old on December 21. To demonstrate their deep affection and esteem, Hadassah members throughout the country have arranged for a Henrietta Szold 80th birthday book, in which will be gathered the signatures of 80,000 paid-up members.

An interesting program has been arranged. The recent 26th national convention will be enacted in miniature by Mesdames Sol O. Klotz, H. S. Jacobs, J. M. Rosenfeld, R. M. Travis, George Chait and I. M. Weinstein. Mrs. Charles Bergman will present a musicale featuring Mrs. Nora Allen Volpi, vocalist, and Miss Rose Stern, accompanist.

Miss Rose Goldstein Weds Mr. Anderson.

Samuel Goldstein announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Rose Goldstein, to Andrew L. Anderson, of New York and Atlanta.

The ceremony was performed in Miami on October 26 by Rabbi Moses Meseloff.

The bride has been associated for some time with the Federation of Jewish Social Service in Atlanta and is well known throughout the south in the field of social service.

Mr. Anderson, a native of Manchester, England, came to America at an early age. He has made several trips back to England, where members of his family reside. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Anderson, of New York, and is a descendant of the Rothschilds of England on his maternal side. His aunt, Miss Jeanette Rothchild, now of England, is remembered for her former residence in Atlanta.

The couple is residing at the Cox-Carlton in Atlanta.

Atkins Park Garden Club Holds Meeting.

Mrs. Charles E. Sumner entertained the Atkins Park Garden Club at her home on Oakdale Road recently. Co-hostesses were Mesdames J. H. Lorenz, C. M. Allen, R. A. Moore, and J. N. Sigman.

A Thanksgiving offering was made to be used by the American Rescue Workers. Mrs. J. H. Lorenz was appointed chairman of Christmas Fund to purchase fruit, candy, and toys for the children's Christmas breakfast trays.

Wild flowers and Christmas decorations were the subject of Mrs. J. C. Davis, guest speaker, of Stone Mountain.

Unusual exhibits of chrysanthemums, fruits, dried grasses, berries, and autumn leaves were arranged by Mrs. W. H. Brock, Mrs. J. H. Lorenz, Mrs. J. L. Pasley, and Mrs. J. O. Martin. Mrs. J. O. Martin, flower show chairman, reported 92 points won at Garden Center by Mrs. W. N. Sigman and Mrs. J. H. Mullin for their pitcher arrangement of chrysanthemums.

Zeta Tau Alpha

Alumnae Entertained.

The Zeta Tau Alpha Alumnae was entertained recently at a dinner-bridge by Mrs. Frank Tindall at her home on Woodward Way, N. W.

A special guest was Miss Lydia Cooley, a Zeta from Alpha Phi chapter at Northwestern University. Miss Cooley extended greetings from the Chicago Alumnae.

The president, Mrs. Karl L. Icenogle, announced that four new Zetas who recently had moved to this city are Mrs. Charles E. W. Rhodes, Mrs. Jerome L. Connor, and Miss John Thompson, Beta Gamma chapter, and Mrs. E. E. Wooten, Nu chapter.

Mrs. J. Lee Kelly was elected vice president to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. L. R. Plunkett who moved out of the city.

The next meeting of the Atlanta Alumnae will be held on December 13 when Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. J. R. Kindig will be co-hostesses at the home of the former, at 1696 Harvard Road, N. E.

Miss Wheeler Feted At Bridal Shower.

Miss Anna Sibyl Wheeler, bride-elect, was honored guest at a shower recently held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rhodes, 261 East Lake drive. Mrs. D. H. Humphrey was co-hostess. Miss Wheeler is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Wheeler and a niece of Mrs. Rhodes.

The hostesses were assisted in entertaining by their daughters, Mesdames W. L. Chapman, W. G. Rhodes, T. S. McIntosh and F. L. Roseberry. Carol Roseberry kept the bride's book.

Guests were Mesdames M. W. Buttrill, J. R. Wheeler, F. R. Wheeler, Clyde Wheeler, W. J. Crawford, W. M. Chapman, T. W. Kelly, Marvin Miller, C. C. Hobbs, T. J. Fountain, R. L. Mallard, Misses Pollyann Bradberry and Kathryn Kelly.

Glenncrest Club.

The Glenncrest Garden Club met recently with Mrs. A. B. Lee, 260 Glendale avenue. Mrs. Sam Clements, president of the club, presided.

Plans were completed for delivering Thanksgiving baskets. Mrs. C. G. DeNardie, chairman of this committee, will be assisted by Mrs. Wingate Jackson and Mrs. Mace Green.

Officers for the year 1941 were elected. They are: Mrs. L. F. Alford, president; Mrs. John S. Moore, vice president; Mrs. C. C. Wood, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. H. Kite, treasurer. Mrs. Harris Dew spoke on "Antique Glass." Tea was served.

NOTED CHURCH—Druid Hills Baptist church, of which Dr. Louie D. Newton is pastor, was The Constitution's contest picture for yesterday. Mrs. E. E. Barrett, of 996 Greenwood avenue, won the dollar by identifying it correctly and packing the most facts about it into a 25-word description.

WHAT IS IT?—Identify this picture correctly, write a 25-word description of the building of which it is a part, and send your answer in to The Constitution Contest Editor. Best answer receives a dollar.

Each day The Constitution is printing pictures showing a segment of some important Atlanta building. It may be an office building, it may be a church, it may identify a school. Write a 25-word description of it. Then send, as quickly as you possibly can, your answer to "The Constitution Contest Editor."

The dollar winner will be the one whose identification is not only correct, but who packs the most specific information into the 25 words.

For instance, for the puzzling picture of yesterday, which many wrongly identified, Mrs. E. E. Barrett, of 996 Greenwood avenue, N. E., won a dollar. The picture showed the Druid Hills Baptist church at the corner of Ponce de Leon and Highland avenues.

Though few identified it, it was a close contest among those who did, and Mrs. Barrett won by including just one significant fact about it which her nearest competitor missed.

First Draft Call To Take 44 in Fulton, DeKalb

Individual quotas for the first draft call, December 4, were issued yesterday by state selective service headquarters to the 188 local boards in Georgia.

The order, signed by Adjutant General Marion Williamson, called for 44 to be supplied next month by the board areas in Fulton and DeKalb counties, listed below. They will be sent to Fort McPherson.

Board No. 3—One white man, reporting December 6.
Board No. 4—One white man, reporting December 6.
Board No. 5—One white man, reporting December 6.
Board No. 11—Four white men, reporting December 5, and 15 Negroes reporting December 12.
Board No. 13—One white man, reporting December 6.
DeKalb No. 1—Ten white men reporting December 4, and two Negroes reporting December 12.
DeKalb No. 2—Eight white men reporting December 5, and one Negro reporting December 11.

Volunteers Fill Quotas.

Quotas for boards in this area, and throughout the state as well, will be filled by those volunteers who "are most anxious that they be accepted for military training next year," according to state officials.

Although only 412 of the state's 1,800 men who have signed applications for voluntary induction can be accepted in this call, it was said at headquarters yesterday that most of the volunteers would be absorbed in the January and February draft calls, expected to be for 2,000 men each.

Some counties in the state "passed" this call, stating that their volunteers were willing to wait until next year before beginning a course of army training. This does not mean, however, that these counties are evading their quota, because the gross local board quota for each unit in the state eventually will be filled.

In First Call.

Distribution of quotas in the first call was based upon the eagerness of the volunteers. Each board was queried earlier in the week as to the number of men who insisted that they be taken at once. The men in this group filled the first call.

The volunteers—who make up the first group of Georgians to be sent under the selective service—will leave for induction centers during the first week in December. Who they will be is a problem for each local board to decide between now and the end of November.

Men selected for the initial call will be given five days' notice to appear before the board and leave for the induction camp.

NEW "AG" BUILDING.

GREENSBORO, Ga., Nov. 22.—Preparations are being made for the erection of the new vocational agricultural building in Greensboro. The building will be erected on a vacant lot in front of the Greene county jail. The building will be erected with WPA labor.

Film Offerings

Best in Months; Talent Abound

There Is Something To Please Every Theatergoer in Town.

By LEE ROGERS.
Motion Picture Editor.

It's a parade of movie players on Atlanta's screens this week as the best film program—taken collectively—in some months is offered.

Such an array of talent is presented in each of the films that the only major complaint can be that you don't get to see enough of your favorite character actor.

From a dramatic standpoint, the best of the new offerings is Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton's interpretation of "They Knew What They Wanted," taken from Sidney Howard's play. It's a story of the old triangle with William Gargan aiding the stars in making those images on the screen seem so truly in character.

Cecil B. DeMille's most recent million-dollar spectacle, "Northwest Mounted Police," furnishes adventure, two love stories of deep contrast, humor and an astounding cast. It is done in Technicolor, plays the Fox and gets increased prices at the box office.

The music alone of "Bitter Sweet" is worth the money. Add to this the voices of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, Noel Coward's story but slightly changed for movie version, Technicolor and another character actor's social register you have the reason this film is packing them in at Loew's Grand.

"Hit Parade of 1941" puts a good majority of the Hollywood movie colony into the same film footage, gives them good music and a comedy supporting cast. This Rialto feature is a good film musical. Personally I liked the dance sequences by Ann Miller. Maybe you'll like the singing of Kenny Baker and Frances Longford better.

LOUGHTON, LOMBARD STAR AT PARAMOUNT

Charles Laughton has no romantic appeal, but today he ranks among the foremost movie stars. His reputation, which has never been as great in the South as in other sections of the nation, has been gained through his character interpretations—his "Captain Bilius" and his "Henry VIII," the "Rembrandt."

For many of his other characterizations he has drawn the criticism that he merely is playing Laughton—and the criticism often was justified. He likes to play Laughton.

But as Tony, the grapegrower, in "They Knew What They Wanted," I think Laughton gives one of the most human characterizations of his career. Maybe it's because I once knew an Italian immigrant who carried on in the same sputtering manner, was proud of his friends and his naturalization papers and exalted about both.

In the current Paramount theater offering, Laughton shares billing with Carole Lombard and both share acting honors with William Gargan and give way in brief scenes to Frank Fay and Harry Carey.

The story is as old as humanity itself and though the principal characters in this film found what they wanted, it is no guarantee others in the same predicament will find what they want.

He falls in love with her, rushing home to his foreman (Gargan) to get him to write her a letter. By mail and naive stories of his wealth and what he has to offer, he obtains her promise of marriage.

But he sends a picture of his headstone for her to see. You can imagine what happens when Carole arrives. Then the ex-waitress sees Tony's kindness and falls in love with him too late, and the foreman friend realizes when nothing can be done about it, that he has not found what he wanted but ruined three lives.

HARMONY PAIR STARS IN LOEW'S STANDOUT

The Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy musicals have been pleasing the moviegoing public for a good many years now. They have all had happy endings. In their new, "Bitter Sweet," in Technicolor, tragedy is introduced.

In this current Loew's feature, Eddy is killed in a sword "duel" with George Sanders in a cafe of old Vienna when he rushes forward to rescue his wife from the ill-mannered advances of the drunken friend who made a slight mistake in the judgment of character.

"Bitter Sweet," as M-G-M has interpreted Noel Coward's operetta, starts slowly but gathers momentum as the voices of the stars sing the world-popular songs and in the end succeeds in becoming intensely dramatic, something in itself noteworthy for these stars' stories, which before have, for the most part, been music alone.

"I'll See You Again" is the dominant song throughout, and "Dear Little Cafe" gets more than one rendition. Others include "Serenade in Vienna," "Ladies of the Town," "If Love Were All," "Tokyo" (sung with a fine choral background) and "What Is Love?"

In the cast are also Ian Hunter, the English lord who looks after Jeanette after her husband's death; Felix Bressart in another comic role as the Viennese friend of Eddy, who pawns the furniture to buy wine for the bridal party; Diana Lewis; Lynn Carver; Fay Holden; Sig Rumann and Herman Brix.

The picture pens with Eddy and Jeanette's music teacher. On the eve of her wedding to another man, she runs away to Vienna, where she marries Eddy. The struggles of the young couple as

NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE DE MILLE SPECTACLE AT FOX

The Northwest Mounted Police have always been picturesque characters around which to build a story. Around them and with the historical facts of the half-breed uprising which a handful of them squelched, Cecil B. DeMille has produced another of his stupendous film achievements, "Northwest Mounted Police," at the Fox.

While the mounties and the uprising are the main theme, there is a love story of the hardened-to-duty mountie sergeant, Preston Foster, and Madeleine Carroll on which the Texas Ranger, Gary Cooper, tries unsuccessfully to cut in; there is the even more tepid love affair between Madeleine's brother, a mountie too, Robert Preston, and the half-breed daughter of the leader of the uprising, Paulette Goddard.

And not to be forgotten is the gun fight between Lynne Overman, a half-breed Scot who won't fight against the Queen, and Akim Tamiroff, his half-breed trader-partner, who won't fight against his people. They shoot each other's hats off, clip their suspenders from their pants, shoot buttons from their coats, but never touch each other.

It's an exciting adventure and love story, telling the clashes of two great law enforcement organizations as they seek the same prisoner and the same girl, a and with it painting a tribute to the mounties and, with the aid of a beautiful technician as yet screened, paints a panorama picture of the great northwest. DeMille, in his best Radio theater style, paints the same tribute in words during a brief introduction to his movie.

Here again the cast is excellent. Included also are George Bancroft, Lon Chaney Jr. and Walter Hampden.

The only regrettable thing about the film is that DeMille saw fit to demand even a slight advance in box office prices.

"HIT PARADE OF 1941 IS RIALTO FEATURE"

Republic Pictures, all along, has been the one studio in Hollywood which has reckoned seriously with the possibility of television whittling in on some of the movie market. Now they have even produced a musical, and good as strictly musicals go, which tells the adventures of the owners of a television station.

It's the "Hit Parade of 1941," packed with catching new swing tunes and with good voices to sing them and with good feet to tap them. This is the current Rialto feature, the best songs from which are "Who Am I?" (sung by Frances Langford and Kenny Baker) and "Swing Low Sweet Rhythm" (sung by Miss Langford).

A clever and spectacular finale takes you on a memory jaunt back through the years since 1920 as a scantily clad "Musical Congress" helps the stars out in singing such old favorites as "Mary Lou,"

Senior Hadassah Plans Membership Tea on Monday

Atlanta Chapter of Senior Hadassah will hold its annual membership tea on Monday at 2:30 o'clock at the Mayfair Club.

The membership tea this year will pay homage to Henrietta Szold, Hadassah's beloved leader and founder, who will be 80 years old on December 21. To demonstrate their affection and esteem, Hadassah members throughout the country have arranged for a Henrietta Szold 80th birthday book, in which will be gathered the signatures of 80,000 paid-up members.

An interesting program has been arranged. The recent 26th national convention will be enacted in miniature by Mesdames Sol O. Klotz, H. S. Jacobs, J. M. Rosenfeld, R. M. Travis, George Chait and I. M. Weinstein. Mrs. Charles Bergman will present a musicale featuring Mrs. Nora Allen Vold, vocalist, and Miss Rose Stern, accompanist.

Miss Rose Goldstein Weds Mr. Anderson.

Samuel Goldstein announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Rose Goldstein, to Andrew L. Anderson, of New York and Atlanta.

The ceremony was performed in Miami on October 26 by Rabbi Moses Meschloff.

The bride has been associated for some time with the Federation of Jewish Social Service in Atlanta and is well known throughout the south in the field of social service.

Mr. Anderson, a native of Manchester, England, came to America at an early age. He has made several trips back to England, where members of his family reside. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Anderson, of New York, and is a descendant of the Rothschilds of England on his maternal side. His aunt, Miss Jeanette Rothchild, now of England, is remembered for her former residence in Atlanta.

The couple is residing at the Cox-Carlton in Atlanta.

Atkins Park Garden Club Holds Meeting.

Mrs. Charles E. Sumner presided at the Atkins Park Garden Club at her home on Oakdale Road recently. Co-hostesses were Mesdames J. H. Lorenz, C. M. Allen, R. A. Moore, and J. N. Sigman.

A Thanksgiving offering was made to be used by the American Rescue Workers. Mrs. J. H. Lorenz was appointed chairman of Christmas Fund to purchase fruit, candy, and toys for the children's Christmas breakfast trays.

Wild flowers and Christmas decorations were the subject of Mrs. J. C. Davis, guest speaker, of Stone Mountain.

Unusual exhibits of chrysanthemums, fruits, dried grasses, berries, and autumn leaves were arranged by Mrs. W. H. Brock, Mrs. J. H. Lorenz, Mrs. J. L. Pasley, and Mrs. J. O. Martin. Mrs. J. O. Martin, flower show chair at Garden Center by Mrs. V. N. Sigman and Mrs. J. H. Mullin for their pitcher arrangement of chrysanthemums.

Zeta Tau Alpha Alumnae Entertained.

The Zeta Tau Alpha Alumnae was entertained recently at a dinner-bridge by Mrs. Frank Tindall at her home on Woodward Way, N. W.

A special guest was Miss Lydia Cooley, a Zeta from Alpha Phi chapter at Northwestern University. Miss Cooley extended greetings from the Chicago Alumnae.

The president, Mrs. Karl L. Icenogle, announced that four new Zetas who recently had moved to this city are Mrs. Charles Grey, Beta chapter, Mrs. Jerome L. Connor and Miss John Thompson, Beta Gamma chapter, and Mrs. E. E. Wooten, Nu chapter.

Mrs. J. Lee Kelly was elected vice president to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. L. R. Plunkett who moved out of the city.

The next meeting of the Atlanta Alumnae will be held on December 13 when Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. J. R. Kindig will be co-hostesses at the home of the former, at 1696 Harvard Road, N. E.

Miss Wheeler Feted At Bridal Shower.

Miss Anna Sibyl Wheeler, bride-elect, was honored guest at a shower recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rhodes, 261 East Lake drive. Miss D. H. Humphrey was co-hostess. Miss Wheeler is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Wheeler and a niece of Mrs. Rhodes.

The hostesses were assisted in entertaining by their daughters, Mesdames W. L. Chapman, W. G. Rhodes, T. S. McIntosh and F. L. Roseberry. Carol Roseberry kept the bride's book.

Guests were Mesdames M. W. Buttrill, J. R. Wheeler, H. R. Wheeler, Clyde Wheeler, W. J. Crawford, W. M. Chapman, T. W. Kelly, Marvin Miller, C. C. Hobbs, T. J. Fountain, R. L. Mallard; Misses Pollyann Bradberry and Kathryn Kelly.

Glenncrest Club.

The Glenncrest Garden Club met recently with Mrs. A. B. Lee, 266 Glendale avenue. Mrs. Sam Clements, president of the club, presided.

Plans were completed for delivering Thanksgiving baskets. Mrs. C. G. DeNormandie, chairman of this committee, was assisted by Mrs. Wingate Jackson and Mrs. Mace Green.

Officers for the year 1941 were elected. They are: Mrs. L. F. Alford, president; Mrs. John S. Moore, vice president; Mrs. M. C. Wood, secretary; Mrs. Garnette O. Wood, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. J. H. Kite, treasurer. Mrs. Harris Dewis spoke on "Antique Glass." Tea was served.

NOTED CHURCH—Druid Hills Baptist church, of which Dr. Louie D. Newton is pastor, was The Constitution's contest picture for yesterday. Mrs. E. E. Barrett, of 996 Greenwood avenue, won the dollar by identifying it correctly and packing the most facts about it into a 25-word description.

WHAT IS IT?—Identify this picture correctly, write a 25-word description of the building of which it is a part, and send your answer in to The Constitution Contest Editor. Best answer receives a dollar.

For instance, for the puzzling picture of yesterday, which many wrongly identified, Mrs. E. E. Barrett, of 996 Greenwood avenue, N. E., won a dollar. The picture showed the Druid Hills Baptist church at the corner of Ponce de Leon and Highland avenues.

Though few identified it, it was a close contest among those who did, and Mrs. Barrett won by including just one significant fact about it which her nearest competitor missed.

First Draft Call To Take 44 in Fulton, DeKalb

Individual quotas for the first draft call, December 4, were issued yesterday by state selective service headquarters to the 188 local boards in Georgia.

The order, signed by Adjutant General Marion Williamson, called for 44 to be supplied next month by the board areas in Fulton and DeKalb counties, listed below. They will be sent to Fort McPherson.

Board No. 3—One white man, reporting December 6.
Board No. 4—One white man, reporting December 6.
Board No. 11—Four white men, reporting December 5, and 15 Negroes reporting December 12.
Board No. 12—One white man, reporting December 5.
Board No. 13—One white man, reporting December 5.
DeKalb Board No. 1—Ten white men reporting December 4, and two Negroes reporting December 11.
DeKalb Board No. 2—Eight white men reporting December 5, and one Negro reporting December 11.

Volunteers Fill Quotas.
Quotas for boards in this area, and throughout the state as well, will be filled by those volunteers who "are most anxious that they be accepted for military training next year," according to state officials.

Although only 412 of the state's 1,800 men who have signed applications for voluntary induction can be accepted in this call, it was said at headquarters yesterday that most of the volunteers would be absorbed in the January and February draft calls, expected to be for 2,000 men each.

Some counties in the state "passed" this call, stating that their volunteers were willing to wait until next year before beginning a year of army training. This does not mean, however, that these counties are evading their quota, because the gross local board quota for each unit in the state eventually will be filled.

In First Call.
Distribution of quotas in the first call was based upon the eagerness of the volunteers. Each board was queried earlier in the week as to the number of men who insisted that they be taken at once. The men in this group filled the first call.

The volunteers who make up the first group of Georgians to be sent under the selective service will leave for induction centers during the first week in December. Who they will be is a problem for each local board to decide between now and the end of November.

Men selected for the initial call will be given five days' notice to appear before the board and leave for the induction camp.

NEW "AG" BUILDING.
GREENSBORO, Ga., Nov. 22.—Preparations are being made for the erection of the new vocational agricultural building in Greensboro. The building will be erected on a vacant lot in front of the Greene county jail. The building will be erected with WPA labor.

Film Offerings Best in Months; Talent Abound

There Is Something To Please Every Theater-goer in Town.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

It's a parade of movie players on Atlanta's screens this week as the best film program—taken collectively—in some months is offered.

Such an array of talent is presented in each of the films that the only major complaint can be that you don't get to see enough of your favorite character actor.

From a dramatic standpoint, the best of the new offerings is Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton's interpretation of "They Knew What They Wanted," taken from Sidney Howard's play. It's a story of the old triangle with William Garret and the stars in the making those images on the screen seem so truly in character.

Cecil B. DeMille's most recent million-dollar spectacle, "Northwest Mounted Police," furnishes adventure, two love stories of deep contrast, humor and an astounding cast. It is done in Technicolor, plays the Fox and gets increased prices at the box office.

The music alone of "Bitter Sweet" is worth the money. Add to this the voices of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, Noel Coward's story but slightly changed for movie version, Technicolor and another character actor's register you have the reason this film is packing them in at Loew's Grand.

"Hit Parade of 1941" puts a good majority of the Hollywood movie colony into the same film footage, gives them good music and a comedy supporting cast. This Rialto feature is a good film musical. Personally I liked the dance sequences by Ann Miller. Maybe you'll like the singing of Kenny Baker and Frances Langford better.

LOUGHTON, LOMBARD STAR AT PARAMOUNT

Charles Laughton has no romantic appeal, but today he ranks among the foremost movie stars. His reputation, which has never been as great in the South as in other sections of the nation, has been gained through his character interpretations—his "Captain Bligh," his "Henry VIII," his "Rembrandt."

For many of his other characterizations he has drawn the criticism that he merely is playing Laughton—and the criticism often was justified. He likes to play Laughton.

But as Tony, the grapegrower, in "They Knew What They Wanted," I think Laughton gives one of the most human characterizations of his career. Maybe it's because I once knew an Italian immigrant who carried on in the same spirit.

For many of his other characterizations he has drawn the criticism that he merely is playing Laughton—and the criticism often was justified. He likes to play Laughton.

But he sends a picture of his handsome form, and you can imagine what happens when Carole arrives. Then the ex-waitress sees Tony's kindness and falls in love with him too late, and the foreman friend realizes when nothing can be done about it, that he has not found what he wanted but ruined three lives.

HARMONY PAIR STARS IN LOEW'S STANDOUT

The Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy musicals have been pleasing the moviegoing public for a good many years now. They have all had happy endings. In their newest, "Bitter Sweet," in Technicolor, tragedy is introduced.

In this current Loew's feature, Eddy is killed in a sword "duel" with George Sanders in a cafe of old Vienna when he rushes for the ill-mannered advances of the drunken officer who made a slight mistake in the judgment of character.

"Bitter Sweet," as M-G-M has interpreted Noel Coward's operetta, starts slowly but gathers momentum as the voices of the stars sing the world-popular songs and in the end succeeds in becoming intensely dramatic, something in itself noteworthy for these stars' stories, which before have, for the most part, been music alone.

"I'll See You Again" is the dominant song throughout and "Dear Little Cafe" gets more than one rendition. Others include "Serenade in Vienna," "Ladies of the Town," "If Love Were All," "Tokay" (sung with a fine chord background) and "What Is Love?"

In the cast are also Ian Hunter, as the English lord who looks after Jeanette after her husband's death; Felix Bressi in another comic role as the Viennese friend of Eddy, who pawns the furniture to buy wine for the bridal party; Diana Lewis; Lynn Carver; Fay Holden; Sig Ruman and Herman Bing.

The picture pens with Eddy as Jeanette's music teacher. On the eve of her wedding to another man, she runs away to Vienna, where she marries Eddy. The struggles of the young couple as HORROR MAN—Boris Karloff is one of three horror men appearing in "You'll Find Out," midnight feature at the Fox tonight. The others are Bela Lugosi and Peter Lorre.

NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE DE MILLE SPECTACLE AT FOX

The Northwest Mounted Police have always been picturesque characters around which to build a story. Around them and with the historical facts of the half-breed uprising which a handful of them squelched, Cecil B. DeMille has produced another of his stupendous film achievements, "Northwest Mounted Police," at the Fox.

While the mounties and the uprising are the main theme, there is a love story of the hardened-to-dusty mountie sergeant, Preston Foster, and Madeleine Carroll on which the Texas Ranger, Gary Cooper, tries unsuccessfully to cut in; there is the even more tepid affair between Madeleine's brother, a mountie too, Robert Preston, and the half-breed daughter of the leader of the uprising, Paulette Goddard.

And not to be forgotten is the gun fight between Lynne Overman, a half-breed Scot who won't fight against the Queen, and Akim Tamiroff, his half-breed trader-partner, who won't fight against his people. They shoot each other's hats off, clip their suspenders from their pants, shoot buttons from their coats, but never touch each other.

It's an exciting adventure and love story, telling the clashes of two great law enforcement organizations as they seek the same prisoner and the same girl, and with it painting a tribute to the mounties and, with the aid of a beautiful technician as yet screened, paints a panorama picture of the great northwest. DeMille, in his best Radio theater style, paints the same tribute in words during a brief introduction to his movie.

Here again the cast is excellent. Included also are George Bancroft, Lon Chaney Jr. and Walter Hampden.

"HIT PARADE OF 1941 IS RIALTO FEATURE

Republic Pictures, all along, has been the one studio in Hollywood which has reckoned seriously with the possibility of television whittling in on some of the movie market. Now they have even produced a musical, and good as strictly musicals go, which tells the adventures of the owners of a television station.

It's the "Hit Parade of 1941," packed with catching new swing tunes and with good voices to sing them and with good feet to tap them. This is the current Rialto feature, the best songs from which are "Who Am I?" (sung by Frances Langford and Kenny Baker) and "Swing Lo Sweet Rhythm" (sung by Miss Langford).

A clever and spectacular finale takes you on a memory jaunt back through the years since 1920 as a scantily clad "Musical Congress" helps the stars out in singing such old favorites as "Mary Lou,"

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Very favorable influences predominate before 3:47 p. m. for general business activities, wholesale and retail, for dealings with professional people, for matters related to education, for social and artistic affairs. There are times, however, when influences while good, also lead to extravagance and this period is one of them. After 3:47 p. m. avoid overexertion and take special care of health.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The entire day favors new and important undertakings. You may have opportunities to accomplish something towards your highest ideals today and until 10:42 p. m. Good will and co-operation should be more easily obtained.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The entire day suggests that you control self and act with much discretion and caution, for the predominating influences are such that may easily bring arguments, disputes and impulsive speech. The period does not especially favor new beginnings.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—The period previous to 2:30 p. m. favors beautiful home, putting into effect new ideas and methods. After 2:30 p. m. favors finishing up old matters and for exercising patience in all things.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Between 9:51 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. much good may be accomplished in routine matters, especially affairs pertaining to the home, property and household interests, providing you do not overreach and agree to assume too large a burden. After 5:30 p. m. favors social activities and matters of a romantic nature.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The hours previous to 11:48 a. m. favor attention to customary correspondence, routine matters and appointments and contacts with others, as the influences at this time are such as allow for an ease in dealing with people, and for successful diplomatic relations.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—The entire day favors social matters, partnership affairs, financial interests, dealings with the opposite sex, with the best aspects operating after 9:12 a. m.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The day should prove a most constructive period in every way, favoring financial interests, dealings with professional people, investments and work connected with large concerns.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 2:01 p. m. favors dealings in affairs of a conservative nature and for real estate transactions. After 2:01 p. m. favors matters of a mechanical nature, dealings with the opposite sex.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The morning hours and until 2:58 p. m. favor dealings in land, property and with older and stable people. After 2:58 p. m. friends, family and associates should be very helpful.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The entire day and through 12:25 midnight should be an inspirational, artistic or creative period, when your visions artistically, creative, and for matters of beauty can be put into practical form. Dealings with others should have pleasant results.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Before 10:57 a. m. any laxity in finances should be strongly avoided, a feeling of wastefulness or desire to undertake obligations that are more than you can afford. After 10:57 a. m. favors new plans, work that demands ceaseability. After 7:10 p. m. favors matters of a social and romantic nature.

Big Aluminum Plant Bound by General Strike

Mass Meeting of CIO Members Votes To Continue Walkout.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Nov. 22.—(P)—A mass meeting of CIO members voted unanimously tonight to continue a general strike, which today closed down the huge New Kensington works of the Aluminum Company of America, until the discharge of a non-union worker involved in a dispute over payment of $12 in back dues.

The vote was taken in the jammed, smoke-filled auditorium of the high school after two hours of discussion behind locked doors.

The strike, which threw 7,500 workers idle, also interrupted work on vast national defense orders, including those for airplanes and army field kitchens.

Union leaders said the strike was called because the company refused to dismiss a sheet mill worker who, they said, threatened a union official and members of the official's family after he had been asked to pay delinquent union dues amounting to about $12.

The company declined to make a formal statement.

The strike began yesterday with a walkout of several hundred employees in a sheet mill. A general strike was voted at a meeting of the CIO's Aluminum Workers' Union last night.

"PROGRESS" MADE IN ALUMINUM ORE STRIKE

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Nov. 22.—(P)—William L. White, federal labor conciliator, said today "some progress" had been made in negotiations to end a month-long strike of 1,200 union employees of the Aluminum Ore Company, a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America.

The plant here is of vital importance to national defense because it is far the larger of the only two in the country engaged in reducing bauxite ore to an intermediate product called alumina, from which aluminum alloys for airplanes are made.

The strike was called by the Aluminum Workers' Union in support of a demand for a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour.

THOMAS TO AID IN SETTLING VULTEE STRIKE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 22.—(UP)—President R. J. Thomas, of the United Automobile Workers' Union, announced tonight that he would leave Philadelphia by airplane about midnight for Downey, Cal., in an effort to settle the UAW strike at the Vultee Aircraft Company.

Thomas announced his decision for personal intervention in the west coast dispute after a lengthy conference with Labor Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman.

COX BLASTS STRIKES IN DEFENSE INDUSTRIES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—Representative Cox, Democrat, Georgia, told the house today a strike delaying vital defense operations should be declared an act of "treason."

Mentioning no particular case, the Georgian said such a strike was "just as much sabotage as for the crew of a ship to try to break down operations in time of an emergency." He demanded legislation to guard against this kind of "interruption."

Afterwards, Cox told reporters he had in mind the strike at the Vultee Aircraft Company, Downey, Cal.

COMPROMISE SUBMITTED IN VULTEE STRIKE

DOWNEY, Cal., Nov. 22.—(P)—A compromise proposal for settlement of a strike at Vultee Aircraft, Inc., was submitted to company officials and the CIO-United Automobile Workers' Union today by Major Sidney Simpson, representative of the War Department.

No statement was forthcoming immediately on the possibility of its acceptance as a basis of future negotiations.

Conferences were discontinued yesterday after the union balked at the company's proposal to insert a "no strike" clause in a tentative agreement that had been reached on a two-year contract.

Ex-Bolivian Envoy Asks Exchange of Young Men

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(P)—A former Bolivian diplomat suggested today that the United States should "do what the Germans have done"—exchange young men—to strengthen friendly relations between republics of North and South America.

Enrique de Lozada, former first secretary of the Bolivian legation at Washington, told the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

"Your country and ours should arrange an exchange of young men. They would not be students in the formal sense but, on the one hand, young North Americans who would go to South America with small capital or with no capital to live and to work on the other hand, from South America, engineering or the like would go to the United States—not to stay—but to perfect their techniques."

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

Cremulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to see you a bottle of Cremulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

CREMULSION For Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

Records of Crimes Are Hauled Away

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(P)—Men came to the West 47th Street police station today and carted off the old blotters, the records of great and horrible crimes. For tomorrow "the busiest police station in the world" goes to the wreckers.

Once—78 years ago—there were 12 cops in "West 47th"—the "Broadway precinct." (Cows in the street, too.) Tomorrow 300 policemen will parade up to their new $500,000 home on West 54th street, where they'll find all the modern police gadgets—and Venetian blinds over the windows.

No cop in town today knew all the criminal big and small fry who crowded into "West 47th." A few knew the late Jack "Legs" Diamond, prohibition-day monster; fewer saw the body of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, lying in the station house back room, only two remember the details of the strangling of "Dot" King, beautiful Broadway girl whose jewels were considered—by someone—more important than her life.

$231. Checking Accounts, Free, Arouse N. Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 22.—(UP)—A new scheme to "increase" buying power by establishing a $231 checking account for anyone with a $1 bill had merchants, bankers and New York state authorities here in a dither tonight.

The trouble was that checks issued to patrons of the National Depository of America began to bounce—in an apparently legal fashion.

The checks in general appear similar to regular bank checks, but differ in an inconspicuous but legal and practical way. Instead of the words "pay to the order of," they state "transfer to the order of" and at the bottom stipulate "and charge account number" They also bear the words "transferable by check only."

Legality Investigated.

Representatives of the State Banking Department and the state attorney's office said they were investigating legality of the scheme. Bankers were scheduling conferences with the 24-year-old manager of the National Depository's office here, the first in a proposed nation-wide chain.

Meanwhile, Frank O'Hearn, retired Toronto broker, and his son, Douglas, 24, sponsors of the scheme, were scheduled to appear in federal court today as scheduled because his office had failed to receive from her evidence of a final decree of divorce from August Mesritz, whom she married in 1923 and divorced in 1933.

Miss Pons and Andre Kostelanetz, the orchestra leader, were married in 1938.

Montgomery Advertiser Buys Alabama Journal

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 22.—(P)—The Montgomery Advertiser signed today "an agreement to purchase" the Alabama Journal, it was announced tonight by R. F. Hudson, president and publisher of the Advertiser.

Management of the Journal will be assumed by the Advertiser company December 1.

The Journal, 52-year-old evening publication, will retain its identity, and C. M. Stanley, editor-in-chief since 1927, will remain in that capacity, Mr. Hudson said.

Japanese Consulate Employee Sentenced

SINGAPORE, Nov. 22.—(P)—Mamuro Shinozaki, Japanese consulate employee, whose arrest last August provoked a strong Japanese protest, was convicted today on two of three charges of espionage.

He was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $1,000 or an extra six months' imprisonment.

Shinozaki was accused of spying on troop and aircraft movements and British naval defenses here.

JAYCEES' LADIES' NIGHT.

THOMASTON, Ga., Nov. 22.—President Harry Moore has announced the Thomaston Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual Ladies' Night celebration December 19.

Spy Suspect Offers To Yield His Memory

Willing To Undergo Operation, West Point Graduate Says.

MANILA, Nov. 22.—(UP)—Captain Ruffo Romero, West Point graduate and a former trusted officer of the Philippines Scouts, today told a court martial, which is trying him on charges of espionage, that he was willing to undergo an operation "for the purpose of removing the memory function from my brain" so that he could not reveal United States military secrets.

The captain asserted he had been "plotted" by enemies who were "plotting to separate me from my wife and ruin the future of my children" and hinted that one reason for his "persecution" was that he "knew too much about defenses of these islands."

The accused asserted that his enemies believed he had memorized maps of important fortifications and said that, while no such belief was justified, he was willing to undergo a "memory" operation so that any suspicion might be removed.

Officers for the prosecution said they were prepared to refute all the captain's claims of "persecution and framing."

They alleged the captain was a victim of foreign agents who had lost heavily gambling and took advantage of his difficulties to offer him a large sum of money for "certain confidential documents to which this officer had access."

The officer, who had been under surveillance, was permitted to remove documents from army files in mid-October and take them to his home. He was arrested while photographing the documents in a basement dark room.

Missing Paper Delays Lily Pons' Citizenship

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 22.—(P)—A missing document caused postponement today of the final formalities attendant upon Miss Lily Pons, the opera star, becoming a United States citizen.

Senior Examiner Ernest J. Hoover said that Miss Pons had not been notified to appear in federal court today as scheduled because his office had failed to receive from her evidence of a final decree of divorce from August Mesritz, whom she married in 1923 and divorced in 1933.

Miss Pons and Andre Kostelanetz, the orchestra leader, were married in 1938.

Huge Oil Still Japanese Naval Is Demolished Officer Urges War With U. S.

EL DORADO, Ark., Nov. 22.—(P)—The huge number four still at the Lion Oil Refining Company here was demolished by a mysterious explosion tonight. The big tubular distillery was immediately enveloped in flames.

The original blast was felt all over this city. It was followed by a series of lesser explosions, apparently caused when the flames reached each separate coil.

There was no immediate report of any casualties.

The El Dorado fire department and the refinery fire fighters confined the blaze to the single still, which was used for producing gasoline.

The Lion plant is at the southwestern edge of El Dorado.

Retired Admiral Says America Is Blocking 'Sacred Mission.'

TOKYO, (Saturday, Nov. 23.—(UP)—Admiral Ryozo Nakamura, retired, was quoted in a signed article in the highly nationalistic newspaper Kokumin today as advocating immediate war against the United States.

The article quoted the admiral as saying that the United States is the greatest factor blocking attainment of Japan's "sacred mission."

The admiral said that without fighting the United States Japan's establishment "of a greater east Asia co-operative prosperity sphere" as well as real settlement of the China affair would be difficult.

U. S. Officers To Train Costa Rican Troops

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Nov. 22.—(P)—A United States military mission will arrive in January, 1941, to spend several months in training the little Costa Rican army, it was announced officially today.

It was said, too, that Costa Rica would pay only the expenses of the American mission and not the salaries of its personnel.

Temperature Expected To Be Above Normal

ATLANTA may expect above normal temperature for the next two or three days, followed by a change to cooler, the United States Weather Bureau predicted last night in its five-day forecast.

Today will be cloudy with temperature expected to range between 68 and 54 degrees. Light to moderate rains may be expected Sunday, and again Wednesday, according to the forecast.

City Governments Flayed by Speaker

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 22.—(P)—Murray Seasongood, former mayor of Cincinnati, declared tonight that the governments of many American cities "are a blot on democracy."

Addressing the Southern Institute for Local Government, a meeting of county and municipal government leaders sponsored by the University of Tennessee, Seasongood asserted that "the highest peacetime activity which American citizenship could undertake would be to strengthen their local governments and remove bad, ill-advised and inept government wherever it may exist."

M-G-M Studio Flames Raze Four Buildings

CULVER CITY, Cal., Nov. 22.—(P)—Four storage buildings at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio were destroyed by fire tonight.

One of the buildings contained scenery from the film production "Tugboat Annie." The other buildings were used to store old sets. The flames did not reach the new concrete sound building but they raced through much of the west end of M-G-M's property on Overland boulevard near Washington boulevard. Several high tension wires were destroyed.

Fire trucks in Culver City and Palms answered the alarm. No one was injured.

14,000 Homes, Shops Out of 23,000 Bombed

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(P)—Mayor Albert Overland, of the Borough of Poplar, in the heart of London's severely bombed East End, told a party of American newspapermen on an officially conducted tour of that district today that 14,000 of the area's 23,000 homes and small shops had been damaged.

But he said only about 41,000 of the 80,000 population sleep huddled in shelters to escape death from German bombs.

The three-hour visit included a trip to the dock-surrounded Isle of Dogs where Queen Victoria once kept the royal kennels, but which now is the home of thousands of industrial workers who have forgotten what a good night's sleep is like.

A doctor who visits the people daily said the bombing was having remarkably little effect upon the nervous systems of the people.

"It's like going to the dentist," he said, "horrible while it lasts, but soon forgotten."

Metaxas Sees Victory in Long Hard Battle

Premier Says Greece Is Fighting for All of Balkans.

ATHENS (Saturday) Nov. 23.—(UP)—Premier John Metaxas of Greece, in a broadcast to the nation today following the capture of Italy's Albanian base of Koritza, said that "in the end we will defeat the enemy."

"Our fight will be hard and long and not strewn with roses," he said, "but we welcome all obstacles and will in the end defeat the enemy."

The 70-year-old premier who is playing a leading role in Greece's campaign against the Italians, said that "we fight not only for our existence but also for all the Balkan people and the liberation of Albania, and this goes beyond our borders and those of the Balkans to the whole of humanity."

"Thank God," he said, "Greeks again are the champions for the cause of freedom and liberty."

Metaxas said he wanted to "thank also the English Allies for the wholehearted aid in our struggle, especially their naval and air exploits."

"During the last 10 days the fight was hardest in western Macedonia, leading up to the fall of Koritza and the Italian flight along the entire front," Metaxas said.

"When Italy's dictator made his speech so full of bitterness and hatred against Greece he little expected such a quick reply from the Greek army."
